SAVES FUEL ON FORECASTS

Field Museum Heated According to Weather Bureau Reports.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—The Field Museum of Natural History is saving about $10,000 a year on its fuel bills by acting on the Weather Bureau reports, according to W. H. Corning, chief engineer of the institution.

The museum is located on the wind-swept lake front and has 1,250,000 feet of exhibition space, with 1600 radiators. By following the forecasts, the chief engineer said today that it is usually possible to avoid overheating or underheating as the temperature outside changes. Most commercial buildings could do as well, Corning said.

GIRL'S STORY OF DEATH OF ROGERS IS MADE PUBLIC

He Tried to Kiss Her but She Doesn't Remember Pushing Him, Miss Schneider Testified.

SHE HAD "ONE SCOTCH HIGHBALL"

Friend Says Gray Sedan Climbed From Ditch and Sped Away After Accident.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—The story Miss Marjorie Schneider, driver of the automobile in which Charles C. G. Rogers, bond salesman, and nephew of Mrs. Ogden M. Reid, was fatally hurt on the night of Nov. 1, told to Coroner Eli Mix, was made public today when the Coroner filed his transcript of evidence taken at the inquest. The Coroner held no one criminally responsible for the death of Rogers.

Miss Schneider's story was that she took her father's car on Saturday, Nov. 1, and went to lunch with Rogers. After lunch they drove to the Yale bowl and witnessed the Yale-Army football game. When the game was over they drove to town and went to a restaurant where Rogers had something to drink and she had one "Scotch highball."

Tried to Kiss Her.

Later they went to a friend's home in State street and started for an inn in Wallingford. While they were at the inn, Miss Schneider saw Wardell Jones, a friend, and was so glad to see him that she sent a note to him and afterward went out to his car and talked to him. She and Rogers left the inn about 10 o'clock, and the night was so foggy that she and Rogers were watching the road. "He told me to keep coming farther over to his side of the road," Miss Schneider said. "He tried to kiss me and I told him not to." She said she did not remember pushing him.

They were driving along, when, she said, the car seemed to swerve and that is all she remembered. She said she had no warning of the crash and that things "seemed very hazy in her recollection of the case."

Asked what she did after the collision, she stated: "I pulled him by the shoulders and tried to get him out of the car."

She was not conscious of anything colliding with her or the machine.

She had her head out of the left hand side of the car and Rogers had his head out of the right side of the machine watching the road. She then attempted to hail a passing machine and succeeded in stopping a car with two Wallingford youths in it, who in turn hailed a machine in which were Mr. and Mrs. Hulse and Mr. and Mrs. Ohl of New York.

Saw Auto in Ditch.

Mrs. Hulse testified that the first thing she saw was a spot light in the hand of a man along the road. They stopped their machine, and as they did so saw another machine in the ditch on the side of the road. They had to wait for this car to pull out so that they could pass.

It was described as a gray sedan and she said that it immediately stole away into the fog. She accompanied Miss Schneider to New Haven, while Mr. and Mrs. Ohl took Rogers to the hospital.

PRESIDENT SAYS HE PREFERS HIS DESK TO A VACATION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—President Coolidge has waved aside suggestions of some friends that he take a vacation, now that the campaign is over, assuring them, it is understood, that not only is he in the best of health, but also feels he will keep in better condition by sticking to work.

The President's decision is understood to have the indorsement of his physician, Dr. James F. Coupal, who at first was thought to be among those advising a short rest. Close friends explain that Mr. Coolidge feels more at ease when working and also regards it as his duty to remain as close to his desk as is necessary to keep in immediate touch with Government problems.

'UNCLE ELI' BUNTON, BANKER, GETS 3 YEARS

Head of Bank at Maysville, Which Failed, Found Guilty of Embezzling Note.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAVANNAH, Mo., Nov. 18.—Eli Bunton, president of the DeKalb County Exchange Bank at Maysville, Mo., which failed two years ago, was found guilty here today of embezzling a note for $3000 and was sentenced to serve three years in prison.

Some months ago Bunton was found guilty of receiving deposits when he knew the bank to be insolvent and was given three years, but has been at liberty on bond pending appeal. The cases were tried here on change of venue.

Bunton was for years the town builder of Maysville. They called him "Uncle Eel." He was at the head of every enterprise in the town. Between times he sat on a stone bench in front of the bank and talked the merits of "houn' dogs" to all who would listen. His booming laugh echoed across the square.

But the bank was not operated according to the rules of the game. That was discovered when a bank examiner came along. The losses were heavy. The town turned against "Uncle Eel," and he took a change of venue.

BUTLER TO BE SENATOR AND G. O. P. CHIEF, TOO

Announces He Will Not Resign as Party Chairman on Taking Seat in Upper House.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—William M. Butler announced today he would not resign the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee on taking his seat next month as Senator from Massachusetts.

There were indications that this decision was reached after a conference with President Coolidge, with whom Butler has been in consultation since his arrival here yesterday.

STOCK SALE RUSH RENEWED

More Than 2,000,000 Shares Change Hands and Prices Mount.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Trading in stocks again assumed gigantic proportions today with sales running above 2,000,000 shares for the sixth time since the current upswing started on the day after election.

Prices bounded upward in all sections of the list, over 70 issues attaining new high prices for the year.

United States Steel assumed leadership of the advance, rising 2 points to 116¾, the highest price since 1919. United States Distributing preferred soared 6½ points and Maxwell Motors "A," 5 points. Mack Truck, Davison Chemical and Great Northern preferred were among the many issues to sell 5 or more points above yesterday's final quotations.

BRIDE THE PRIZE WITH A DOLLAR LEMONADE

Frank M. Gould, Edwin's Son, Weds Miss Florence Amelia Bacon of Dallas.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The marriage of Frank Miller Gould, son of Edwin Gould and grandson of Jay Gould, and Miss Florence Amelia Bacon, of Dallas, Tex., was announced here yesterday by the elder Gould. The marriage took place Sunday at Dallas.

The engagement was announced a month ago. Stories from Dallas have it that the romance had its inception in a lemonade stand promoted by a young brother of Miss Bacon and financed by Gould with a dollar.

Miss Bacon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bacon and a niece of Daniel Upthegrove, president of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Co.

WEST VIRGINIA MASONS ARE CRITICISED BY U. S. JUDGE

Refused to Bar Persons Getting Liquor in Violation of Law, Says G. W. McClintic.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 18.—Criticism of West Virginia Mason for refusing to bar from membership persons obtaining liquor in violation of law was included in Judge George W. McClintic's charge to the grand jury in United States District Court today.

"I had hoped the grand lodge of West Virginia would pass such a resolution, but I am sorry to say they refused to by a large majority, and some seemed to be ashamed to think that such a resolution had been introduced into their grand lodge, and one of them wanted it expunged from the records, so nobody would know about it," said Judge McClintic.

"All these fraternal bodies base their organization on obedience to the laws of God and man, and if any of them hasn't the courage and common decency to uphold the duly constituted authorities in enforcing the laws of the country, it should have no place among the people of the country."

PROSECUTION ORDERED FOR INCOME TAX PUBLICATION

Attorney-General Issues Instruction to Present Six or Seven Cases to Grand Juries.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Attorney-General Stone has sent instructions to "six or seven" United States Attorneys to make presentments to grand juries asking indictment of that number of newspapers for publication of income tax returns.

The Attorney-General declined today to indicate the newspapers whose prosecution would be sought, but said he expected at least one suit to be filed within a few days.

Stone added that he had sent full instructions to the United States Attorneys who are to handle the several cases and explained that inasmuch as the prosecution must be instituted in a grand jury indictment he could not discuss details of the cases.

FRENCH SENATE GIVES AMNESTY TO CAILLAUX

Former Premier Was Found Guilty of "Impeding the Prosecution of the War" in 1918.

THE STORMY PETREL OF FRENCH POLITICS

Madame Caillaux Killed Calmette, Editor of Figaro — Was Regarded as Friend of Germany.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Joseph Caillaux, former Premier, who in October, 1918, was found guilty of having "impeded prosecution of the war," was voted amnesty today by the Senate, 176 to 104. The amnesty bill was adopted by the Chamber of Deputies last July.

Louis Malvy, former Minister of the Interior, convicted of communication with the enemy during the war and banished from France for three years, was voted amnesty by 195 to 62.

The vote on the Caillaux case after only two hours' discussion came as a distinct surprise alike to the friends and foes of the ex-Premier, who expected a long and acrimonious debate lasting for days and perhaps weeks.

Herriot Pleads for Caillaux.

The vote was taken immediately after a stirring speech by Premier Herriot, who pleaded with the Senators to let bygones be bygones.

"France is strong enough to be able to withstand divergencies of opinion," he said. "Let us bury forever in oblivion the quarrels and political differences which during the war appeared to be sources of danger. Your decision will demonstrate your confidence in your country and at the same time be a measure of mollification. The Government is asking the Senate to contribute to the work of appeasement throughout the country."

From a legal standpoint, argued the Premier, Caillaux had never been convicted of treason or even "intelligence with the enemy," but had been condemned under an antiquated clause inserted in the French penal code at the time of Napoleon's continental blockade in order to prevent French citizens corresponding with the enemy.

The Tiger Opens His Eyes.

The amnesty measure restores Caillaux to full civic rights. He now may run for Parliament and hold office. Upon well-informed authority it is said the Government intends to make him "financial adviser" to the Ministry of Finance.

He now is in splendid health, active and energetic, and is declared by his friends by no means to have said his last word in French politics.

The announcement of amnesty for the former Premier, whose case long gave rise to bitter disputes among Frenchmen in all walks of life, estrangement of friends, fist fights in restaurants and cafes, duels and rioting in the streets, caused hardly a ripple on the surface of the life of Paris today.

In connection with Caillaux's future career it was noted today that Georges Mandel, Clemenceau's right hand man during and after the war and a former Deputy, hinted in an authorized interview in La Liberte that should Caillaux attempt "to plead his cause, after being granted amnesty, by appealing to the French public through seeking re-election to the Chamber or the Senate, it would probably result in the intervention of some one who, although no longer connected with politics, has the interests of France at heart."

This is interpreted as meaning that Clemenceau would take up the cudgels against Caillaux, the "Tiger" making a series of addresses throughout the country.

Caillaux Ran Afoul of Clemenceau and Went to Prison.

To a greater extent than any other French statesman of the time, Joseph Caillaux has lived a life filled with romance, drama, sensation, honor and disgrace, success and failure.

When he was Premier in 1912, his Government fell because of his friendliness toward Germany. In his attempts to regain power, Figaro opened a series of bitter attacks on Caillaux, whose second wife had been the wife of Leo Claretie, literary editor of that paper. The first Mme. Caillaux had named Mme. Claretie in her divorce suit. After the publication of letters which passed before Caillaux had been divorced, Mme. Caillaux went to the Figaro office and shot to death the editor, Gaston Calmette.

In 1906, Clemenceau, then Premier, had made Caillaux Minister of Finance. In the early years of the war Caillaux, in the opposition,

KELLOGG, JUDGE AT "MOOT" TRIAL, GIVES WHISKY DECISION

U. S. Ambassador Presides at Ancient Ceremony of London "Benchers."

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Yesterday was "call day" at the Inns of Court, and last night Frank B. Kellogg, the American Ambassador, was the guest of the "benchers" of Gray's Inn, where he was called to the bar.

The proceedings included the ceremony of holding a "moot" trial, at which Kellogg had the honor of presiding over a suppositious case involving a British contractor's liability to carry out further deliveries of whisky to a United States consignee, after one of his consignments had been confiscated under the prohibition law.

After hearing arguments, Kellogg gave judgment based on his view of the British courts that British law could not sanction a violation of the laws of other independent states.

Lord Justice Atkin in proposing a vote of thanks to the American Ambassador, said that "moots" in Gray's Inn were of great antiquity and from the time of Queen Elizabeth formed part of the regular training of barristers. Lord Bacon had listened to the arguments of students at the same table.

This occasion was unique in the history, he said, in that the Lord Justice and Ambassador Kellogg in his judgment, had applied the principles of common law reigning in both countries and proved the unity of the two English-speaking nations.

Kellogg, who wore the bencher's gown, in returning thanks, said it was the first time in 45 years at the bar that he had acted as Judge.

SCOTLAND YARD'S "BIG FIVE" GOING AFTER "CAT BURGLAR"

Increase of Violence and Robberies in London Rouses Ire of British Detectives.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Alarmed at the proportions of the crime wave now sweeping over London, the "Big Five" of Scotland Yard's famous criminal investigating department conferred today upon the best means of tracking down the criminals. An elusive individual known as "The Cat Burglar" has figured in several big London robberies recently and his activities are a puzzle to detectives.

Another aspect regarded as serious in the outbreak of robbery and lawlessness is the increasing use of weapons and violence.

Alway at this time of year with the coming of long dark nights and frequent blankets of fog, highway robberies and violence show an upward tendency, but this year the increase has been far greater than usual. Although 4000 men are engaged in observation, it is felt that the unprecedented concentration of burglars in the metropolis demands a larger counter-force.

HIGHER TAX IN FRANCE FOR OWNER OF AUTOMOBILE

Possession of Car to Be Considered as Indicative Income Is Higher Than Return Shows.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Automobiles, although just emerging from the luxury class in France, have been officially listed as one of the signs of wealth by the Government.

The Finance Minister recently announced that hereafter the tax collector would not accept unquestioned a declaration of income if the person's mode of life seemed on a bigger scale than his declared income justified. As an illustration, it was said that if a man had a country home and an automobile the collector would rate him for an increased tax and that the taxpayer would then have to prove that he could live in style on his declared income or pay the higher rate.

INSPECTION OF INCOME TAX RETURNS TO BE RESTRICTED

Revenue Commissioner Asks Collectors to Set Aside Three Hours Three Days a Week for Work.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Internal Revenue Collectors were instructed today by Commissioner Blair to restrict public inspection of income tax lists to not more than three days a week and not more than three hours of any one day. The orders, dispatched in a circular today, constituted the first move by the Bureau of Internal Revenue since the question of the legality of income tax publicity was turned over to Attorney-General Stone for an opinion.

Hudson River at Troy Wadeable.

By the Associated Press.

TROY, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The Hudson River was rising today after reaching its lowest level on record—three feet below sea level. Navigation was hindered for several hours and many vessels were temporarily stranded. The low level record was caused by a strong north wind sweeping the water downstream with the tide, combined with the long drouth in the State. Persons wearing hip boots were able to walk across the stream.

$2,000,000 DEFICIT, BUT HAWKINS PAID DIVIDENDS

Government, in Resting Its Case, Presents Financial Status of Concern at End of Its Career.

NEVER EARNED ANY PROFIT, BOOKS SHOW

Motion to Quash Charges Against William Sacks of St. Louis Overruled by the Court.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 18.—Resting its case today in the mail fraud prosecution of officials of the Hawkins Mortgage Co. of Portland, Ind., and others, the Government submitted for approval of the jury its version of the operations of one of the most spectacular and seductive big business enterprises that ever demanded the attention of postoffice inspectors in the Middle West.

Introduction into evidence of the minutes book of the Hawkins company, and the testimony of a witness from Los Angeles, Cal., who lost his investment in the Co-operative League, a housing trust observed by the Hawkins company, brought the Government's case to a close at 10:25 a. m. Judge Geiger thereupon declared a recess of 15 minutes to give attorneys for the defendants an opportunity to confer.

There appears to be no link missing in the Government's skillfully welded chain of evidence against the principals in the Hawkins organization, but the defense is yet to be heard from and there is a jury to be reckoned with.

Always Operated at Loss.

The Government has adduced much evidence showing that officials and salesmen of the Hawkins organization, in stock sales letters through the mail and otherwise, represented the concern at all times as a most prosperous enterprise, when, as a matter of fact, it had never earned a dime on the investment.

Indeed, the company's own books show, and they are the best evidence, after operating five years, from the date of its inception, 1918, to 1923, when a receiver took charge, the company finished its career with a net deficit of $2,001,249. This deficit began to accumulate in 1918 and grew at the rate of more than $300,000 a year.

Notwithstanding this astounding situation, the company paid 8 per cent dividends on its preferred stock. There were no earnings, but that did not matter; dividends were paid out of revenue from stock sales.

Bait to Investors.

This paying of dividends was a pose, but was necessary for the Hawkins company. There must be a bait to dangle before the trustful investor. What, then, is more tempting than dividends?

An accountant of the Department of Justice gave evidence to show how the books had been maintained to make things look bright for the company.

The balance sheet on Dec. 31, 1919, showed a profit of $8913.20. As a matter of fact the company that year was in the red $87,196.66. How was this done? Easy. There was an item of deferred earnings on the balance sheet, in which Hawkins anticipated large earnings from 51 per cent of common stock his company held in a chain of loan agencies operated by the company. A more homely explanation would be that he made the grave mistake of attempting to count his chickens before they were hatched. The stock at no time earned anything.

The $9,000,000 "Item."

There was another "item," Hawkins would call it; a mere matter of $7,000,000 or so. Statements showed the concern had assets of more than $9,000,000. Expert accounts punctured this bubble with the Hawkins books, showing that the "item" of $9,000,000 had been appreciated about $7,000,000, or thereabout.

Hawkins was no piker. He advertised through the mail that he would have $200,000,000 to invest for his "contented family of stockholders," and that he would not be at all surprised to wake up any morning and find the wide world clamoring for that common stock at 100 or 125 a share. Par was 1 cent, but Hawkins foosled even this

SAYS MAIL HOLDUP PLOT WAS FRAMED IN KANSAS CITY

Joe Newton Testifies That Politician Was to Get the "Dope" From Postal Inspector.

THREE ROBBERY PLANS FAILED

Tells of Preliminary Work Done by Gang Before $2,000,000 Job at Rondout Was Executed.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Plans for a $1,000,000 mail robbery in Chicago were first discussed in Kansas City Jan. 10 last, Joe Newton, 22 years old, youngest of four Newton brothers, who have pleaded guilty in connection with the $2,000,000 mail train robbery at Rondout, Ill., June 12, testified today.

Joe took the stand and gave supplemental details to the story told by his brother, Jesse, who, with a broad-rimmed cattle man's hat in hand and wearing boots, testified yesterday.

Joe said James Murray, a politician and a defendant with William J. Sahy, former Postoffice Inspector here, and Walter McComb, who are on trial charged with conspiracy in connection with the robbery, furnished the information. He understood Murray had information from a postal inspector.

Murray Was to Get Dope.

He said he and Willis, Willie and Jesse Newton, met Brent Glasscock and Herbert Holliday, the latter of Kansas City, Jan. 10.

"Glasscock said that Murray had a big mail job for us to pull off in Chicago and he said some postoffice inspector was going to give Murray the dope. The job was worth $1,000,000, Glasscock said," Joe testified. There was another meeting in Chicago a month later, Newton continued, and they were told Murray had seen the inspector in question. The plan was to rob a mail truck, he explained, and that his brother, Willis, then investigated and said he was satisfied with what Murray had told him about the inspector.

There was another meeting of the band April 10 in Chicago and the truck holdup was postponed, but on April 23 Willis Newton reported everything was all ready for the holdup, which was planned for the next night.

Two Plans for Holdup Fail.

Newton told how the band went to the scene selected for the robbery and Willis Newton left them. In his absence the mail truck passed, but nothing was done. When Willis returned, the witness said, he said that he had seen Murray and the inspector, who were in an automobile around the corner. A second plan to rob a mail truck at the same place failed for the same reason—Willis was absent—Joe testified.

When his brother returned that time, Joe said, he told them "that Murray told him that there was a lot of money going on a train down to Indianapolis and that it would get there about 1 or 1:40 o'clock in the morning. We all went down there to hold it up and Glasscock came back to see Murray and find out when the money was going to leave."

Planned Rondout Robbery.

The Indianapolis plan also fell through, Newton continued, and the band returned to Chicago and, although Glasscock reported that the money was to have been transferred at Danville, instead of Indianapolis, nothing further was done and the Rondout robbery plan then was taken up.

Murray received information from the unnamed postoffice inspector in what car the registered mail would be placed, Newton said.

"Holliday and I went to Milwaukee and watched them unload mail," the witness said. "We found that what the inspector had said was right."

Took Loot to Garage.

Newton then described the robbery, saying he was on guard outside the train and told of the trip with the loot to the garage at Ottawa, Ill. His brother, Willie, had been wounded during the holdup.

"We started for Ottawa and got there about daylight," he said. "We went to an old garage, took Willie out and laid him on the floor and then threw the mail sacks on the floor, too. Glasscock went to look for Murray and while he was gone Murray came in."

"Did you get anything?" Newton testified.

"I said 'yes,' but Willis said, 'Never mind, we got a man shot and we have to take care of him!'"

$250 for the Doctor.

Newton said he and Holliday and Murray put Willie in Murray's car and started for Chicago. They kept him in a South Side private garage all day, he said, while Murray hunted a doctor. Murray got a doctor, but Murray said not to take Willie to a hospital, Newton said, so they took Willie to Walter McComb's flat on the West Side, where the Newton brothers, Murray and McComb later were arrested in a police raid. The doctor and an assistant came there and took care of the wounded man, and Murray and Holliday left $200 for the doctor and $25 for his assistant and then they went to the garage to meet the other members of the band.

Doesn't Remember Seeing Fahy.

Asked if he had seen Fahy before, or if Fahy had visited him, Newton replied he did not remember. Then he said:

"I was in his room with some detectives once. I had been brought from a West Side jail. Fahy came in and got a gun and went out. He didn't even look at me."

In September, Joe testified, he was taken to a hotel, where he met his brother, Jesse, who told him he had confessed and urged him to do the same. No promises of leniency were made him, the witness said.

Newton said he had invested $3000 in oil in 1921, on the advice of his brother, Willis, and had lived on the income, maintaining an apartment on Fortieth street, near Main, in Kansas City, for six or eight months in 1923, and had been known as J. H. Benson. He said he had worked on a ranch at Eagle Pass, Tex. Under cross-examination, Newton said he did not remember whether Fahy was the first person to tell him that Willis Newton had confessed.

Reports were current in the Federal building today that $600,000 of the loot had been recovered, after a trip by a postal inspector and Brent Glasscock, one of the defendants, who has pleaded guilty. Postoffice agents refused to affirm or deny the truth of the rumor, or to give any details.

Jesse Newton yesterday told from the witness stand his story of his part in the robbery.

After spending the day after the robbery in Chicago, Newton declared, he became frightened upon learning of the arrest of his brothers, Willis, Joe and Willie, and boarded a train for Dallas, Tex. He said he burned $4000 of his share of the loot "in four little glass jars about six miles out of San Antonio on the Fredericksburg road."

Others who testified yesterday included L. H. Phillips of Sparta, Wis., chief of the mail clerks aboard the train; Ernest J. Dibble, the fireman, and Joseph Murray, uncle of James Murray.

Joseph Murray, an automobile painter of Ottawa, Ill., testified that his nephew had asked him for the use of his garage for several weeks before the robbery, explaining that he expected a cargo of beer. The uncle said he could not identify any of the men or describe their activities in his garage because when they arrived James Murray warned him to stay away.

led a powerful body of pacifists, who stood for "peace without victory" and no Premier dared put an end to his activities until Clemenceau again returned to power. He immediately sent his former aid to jail and preferred charges of high treason against him. There he remained for two years.

"It was a case of Caillaux or myself," Clemenceau said. "President Poincare had no alternative. He must either call Caillaux to power or call me. He chose me. Had he sent for Caillaux, the latter would have had me arrested and made a separate peace with Germany. I decided to have Caillaux arrested and go on with the war."

Caillaux was found guilty of "Commerce with the enemy" but the charges of high treason were quashed. He was sentenced to prison but soon released. His residence was restricted, Paris being denied him, and his political rights were forfeited.

The action of the Senate today restores all rights and his immediate return to politics is assured. He is 61 years old, regarded as one of the ablest financial experts of France, and his health, once uncertain, is said to be completely restored.

Stay Denied in Battleship Case.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—A stay to prevent destruction of the battleship Washington as a navy target was denied today by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. Unfavorable weather today caused postponement of the gun tests for which the Washington, an uncompleted dreadnought, is to be used as a target.

$326,691 RAISED IN TWO DAYS FOR COMMUNITY FUND

Subscriptions Represent Total of 7287 Pledges in Campaign to Reach $1,751,521 Goal.

Subscriptions aggregating $326,691.43 have been received during the first two days of the annual Community Fund 10-day drive for funds, according to figures tabulated at a noon meeting of workers at Hotel Statler today.

The subscriptions represent a total of 7287 pledges, of which 4704 pledges aggregating $176,813.78 are the result of the past 24 hours' work. The goal for the drive is $1,751,521.15.

A large part of the new subscriptions recorded today are the result of the work of the special gifts division, which today reported the following subscriptions, ranging from $1000 to $10,000:

$10,000—Charles Rebstock.

$5000—Famous & Barr Co., Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Johnson, Henry C. Scott, Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., Scruggs-Vandervoort & Barney Dry Goods Co.

$3000—Mrs. Mary C. Hitchcock.

$2500—Elliot K. Ludington, Daniel N. Kirby, Mrs. D. L. Kilpatrick.

$2010—Polar Wave Ice & Fuel Co.

$1500—David May, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, Anonymous, Huttig Sash & Door Co.

$1200—Charles H. Peters, More-Jones Brass & Metal Co., Jeannette Investment Co.

$1000—Joseph Pulitzer Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Pryor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Elizabeth Peters, Mrs. Maurice Obear, W. H. Moulton, Moon Motor Car Co., Mr. and Mrs. Neill A. McMillan, Stewart McDonald, Morton J. May, Mr. and Mrs. Bert H. Lang, Johnson-Stephens Shinkle Shoe Co.

The colored division of the drive meeting at the Pine Street Y. M. C. A. reported 306 subscribers with a total gift of $2904.02. Only a few of the team captains reported there and a larger total is expected at tonight's meeting.

Reports Not Available.

Because of the different types of organization in the county and the employe divisions reports were not available yesterday but will be today. The employe division met today at noon and the sectional chairmen reported that their divisions would be 100 per cent subscribed. The sectional chairmen are: Harold M. Bixby, general employe; L. W. Baldwin, railroad employe; Charles M. Talbert, public employe; Albert T. Perkins, public utility employe and Dan W. Jones, financial employe.

George B. Logan, chairman of the individual subscriber division, presided at a meeting of the division yesterday.

"The important thing in this campaign," he said, "is not exceeding your quota, or having your team stand highest in the campaign, but in seeing every single person in your territory and soliciting his subscription."

POLICE SELL AUTO LIGHTS

This Is Part of Service in Kane County, Ill., for Tourists.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Ill., Nov. 18.—Kane County's motor cycle police are selling service to automobile drivers instead of distributing arrest slips, it was disclosed today. They carry with them light bulbs of all sizes for automobiles, which are sold at the ordinary retail prices.

This new service was suggested by the Aurora and Elgin Automobile Clubs and has the approval of Sheriff Herman Vierke. Instead of arresting a man whose car is without a tail light or other light, the motor cycle policeman offers to sell one. These highway officers are instructed to give service and protection to drivers and to make arrests only when necessary.

Senator David Walsh Spent $9774.

BOSTON, Nov. 18. — Senator David I. Walsh spent $9774 in his unsuccessful campaign for re-election, according to expense returns to the Secretary of State. Speaker Gillett spent $5385 in his successful campaign against Walsh, contributing $2000 to the Coolidge Finance Committee.

Sees Bigger Combines as Only Hope of Business Prosperity

Boston Merchant Cites New England's Loss of Shoe Trade to St. Louis in Plea for Trusts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 18.—New England's future prosperity depends on the development of mass production, through great, beneficial trusts, which the public must "help to work within the law," Edward A. Filene, a Boston merchant, told the New England district convention of Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in an address yesterday afternoon on "The Way Out for New England."

"Business in New England must be reorganized on a basis of mass production and mass distribution, to compete with the great national trusts that are developing in European countries to recover their markets," Filene said. He warned that the public must completely revise its ideas of big business.

"The business of the future has got to be bigger than it is now to be successful enough to survive," he declared. "Mass production is coming in every country. Mass production is possible only through big business. We must realize that big business is an improved machine. If we are to have big wages, we must help big business work within the law. We are already well into the first stages of the second industrial revolution. Big business for mass production is the new machinery of progress. We do not want to be in the same position as those who destroyed the first machines because they put some people out of work.

"Big Business Not Bad."

"Big business is not bad in itself. It may have bad spots in this, its pioneer stage. But it is incomparably more practical and better than the alternatives of Socialism and Communism. We have been trying to destroy the machinery of big business because in some cases it has been misused. No business, big or little, has any right to profit except through service. If it is a service, the bigger it is the more service it can render."

The new mass production will reverse the old process in industry and seek to put prices down and wages up, because it will depend on mass selling, which demands mass buying power, Filene said. He called the process of mass production and mass distribution "Fordizing" industry. The Ford vertical trust, he said, had shown the way. New England industry must be "Fordized," he said, to survive in the super-competition coming out of great combinations of European industry.

Mass production will eliminate waste, harness New England's unused water power, and unite small businesses in chain consolidations, Filene declared. He saw these chain industries succeeding in mass production without great centralization. Factory units of the chain, scattered along water power streams, would provide part-time employment in many farming communities.

New England is better fitted than any other part of the country, by her resources and natural advantages, to follow Ford's lead in mass production, according to the Boston merchant.

"Fordized" New England.

"The shoe industry offers an illustration of the pressing need for 'Fordizing' New England business," he said. "While the shoe business suffers here, consolidations of shoe manufacturers in St. Louis, New York and other places are prospering under mass production."

DEFICIT $2,000,000, BUT THE HAWKINS FIRM PAID DIVIDENDS

little putt, and never had a par. There were 800,000 shares of this stuff and Hawkins at all times, it was shown, held on to more than 401,000 shares.

Despite its lowly state, he talked it up to $65 a share and thousands of small investors were duped into buying it at this price. Each share that was sold showed an actual profit of $64.99 above par, which looked good on the books. But there were no earnings back of these profits; only the soft talk of beguiling stock salesmen.

Induced to Pool Shares.

Another device. Hawkins induced a great number of stockholders to pool their shares, and it has been shown that sales from this pool amounted to more than $30,000. Did the stockholders get it? They did not. Neither were their shares returned. In other words, Hawkins sold them the stock; called it back for resale for them at profit, and from the resale they got—nothing.

Dec. 31, 1920, the company had a deficit of $336,666.02; Dec. 31, 1921, a deficit of $774,345.29; May 31, 1922, a deficit of $804,694.49; Dec. 31, 1922, a deficit of $1,664,113.30, and May 23, 1923, a final deficit of $2,001,249.71½.

Judge Geiger demanded to know who got that ½ cent. The accountant was sorry, but he had not been able to ascertain.

More evidence of how the United Home Builders, a housing trust familiar to St. Louisans, was given a thorough rooking was disclosed by the Government accountants. It cost the Hawkins company $309,192.39 to acquire the United Home Builders from William Sacks, St. Louis politician and former banker, and William M. Webb, who were the trustees.

Judge Geiger overruled a motion for an instructed verdict for acquittal made on behalf of Sacks, by Patrick Cullen, St. Louis attorney.

Cullen argued that there was no testimony connecting Sacks with the Hawkins company, and that all that Sacks had done was to sell his interest in the United Home Builders, a St. Louis housing trust, to the Hawkins company. He said Sacks had done no wrong, had intended no wrong and that there was no evidence showing that he had done or intended any wrong.

Judge Geiger replied that Sacks went to Portland, Ind., headquarters of the Hawkins Mortgage Co., during negotiations in the sale of the Home Builders, and that this fact might cause the jury to infer that Sacks went there as a booster for the Hawkins company. Sacks was a trustee, said Judge Geiger, and as such made a deal very favorable to himself.

Judge Geiger added that the witness, James E. Powers, St. Louis broker and confidential agent of Hawkins in the negotiations for sale of the United Home Builders, was a reluctant witness for the Government and "hated to tell some of the things he told," and the Judge said he would prefer to have the jury draw its own inferences from the testimony of this witness.

Judge's Attitude in Case.

Addressing himself then to all the lawyers, Judge Geiger said he would entertain motions for them as to their clients, but, he added, "I am not going to take this case from consideration of the jury which may reasonably find from the evidence so far introduced that there was a gigantic scheme to defraud."

Even the Hawkins company, with its system of bookkeeping did not fare well on this deal, for the accountant testified that assets amounting to only $482,170.05 passed to Hawkins.

"Even so," said the District Attorney, addressing the witness, "do you mean to say that Hawkins paid $309,192.39 to acquire assets of only $482,170.05?"

"That is true," answered the witness.

Which serves to show that it cost the Hawkins company big money to do business with Sacks and Webb.

The accountant added that it had cost the Hawkins company $68,530 to acquire $258,358.56 assets of the Co-operative League, a Pittsburg housing trust.

View of Evidence as to Sacks.

Sacks and Webb, charged with conspiracy, are among the indicted on trial, but the Government has been unable to do more than show that Sacks sold his interest in the Home Builders to Hawkins. Close followers of the evidence said the case against him is not at all convincing, if there is any case at all.

Neither is the case a weighty one as to Frank Willis and Frank Haight, Indianapolis accountants, charged with making a deceptive audit of the Hawkins accounts, after Hawkins had rejected an audit by a Fort Wayne firm that showed the concern on the rocks.

Principals in the Case.

The Government accountant testified that any bookkeeper should have perceived the true condition of the concern at a glance. He could not account for the optimistic report of Haight and Willis.

The principals who have come into the case prominently and against whom the District Attorney believes he has made a case, are Anthony A. Scheib, vice president and secretary of the defunct concern; Carl B. Anderson, treasurer; John T. Sutton, vice president, former State Prosecuting Attorney; Frank B. Jaqua, general counsel; Leo P. Harrington, auditor.

There are seven other defendants besides those named, who were connected with the conspiracy in the indictments through their affiliation with concerns absorbed by the Hawkins company, as in the cases of Sacks and Webb.

There were a dozen witnesses yesterday, working men and women from all parts of the country, who came to tell how they had lost their investments.

More Victims Testify.

It was the same story in each case: A friendly letter signed "Yours faithfully, Mortimer Hawkins," inviting the prospect to invest; then a deluge of "literature" and references, in which the Hawkins organization was praised and Hawkins himself given a reputation for honesty beyond reproach. Then more literature and finally, in most cases, a call from a couple of high-powered, fast-talking boys, and, presto, the deal was closed.

The Government has shown the jury that the Hawkins organization did away with a lot of hard-earned money. Now comes the defense.

MRS. HARDING UNCHANGED

Pulse Becomes Weak But She Rallies Quickly.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., Nov. 18.—The condition of Mrs. Warren G. Harding showed little change during the night. The bulletin issued by her physician this morning said:

"Mrs. Harding's condition remained unchanged during the night. At 6 o'clock this morning the pulse became very weak and her respiration shallow. She is now rallying from this and seems to be a little stronger."

GALA NIGHT MARKS MELBA'S RETIREMENT

Tribute and Tears at Closing Appearance in "La Boheme" in Australia.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 21.—Mme. Nellie Melba, the prima donna, made her farewell appearance at a gala operatic night in His Majesty's Theater here Oct. 13. She chose "La Boheme."

Afterward she said: "I feel tired after it is all over, and it was all I could do to keep from breaking down. The people were so wonderfully sympathetic, and sympathy brings one to tears. I have put away Mimi's dress and resigned myself to retirement."

From all over the world messages came to the singer. From the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, where she made her debut in 1893, came the tribute of men who were present on that occasion. From London and Paris she received the best wishes from her friends and admirers.

On the night of the 13th, His Majesty's Theater was crowded. Those in the boxes paid £100 (nominally $500) for their seats; the stalls brought £50 a seat, and even the back seats were sold for good money. The reason for this was that Melba had decided to give the proceeds of the final night, together with a special appeal she made, to the Limbless Soldiers' Club. The appeal raised £18,000.

Prime Minister Bruce told her of the part she had played in the development of Australia. The chief civic representatives paid their tribute. The tears of women expressed the feeling of the people. It was a scene without parallel in Australia.

Mme. Melba announced that she would sail for London on Nov. 25.

American in England Loses Memory.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Scotland Yard is seeking to establish the identity of an elderly man who says he was formerly a professor of a college in New York and who was found wandering aimlessly about Woking, unable to give his name and only a hazy account of his past life. He was described as small and slim. On his handkerchief, between two shields, was embroidered the initials "W. W. H."

HER MARRIAGE TIES ANNULLED IN ROME

MRS. JOHN C. HAMILTON.

MARRIAGE OF ST. LOUIS WOMAN ANNULLED BY POPE

The marriage of Miss Edith Cates, daughter of Mrs. J. Mullanphy Cates of 4535 Maryland avenue, and Lieut. John C. Hamilton, U. S. A., has been annulled by the Pope, it was learned today. Mrs. Cates today confirmed the report of the annulment, but declined to discuss it and further details are not available.

The marriage of Miss Cates and Lieut. Hamilton was one of the outstanding social events of 1921. They were married quietly in a private chapel at St. Louis Cathedral and the guests were limited to a few friends and relatives. Lieut. Hamilton is a graduate of West Point, 1918, and the son of Col. Alston Hamilton, commander of the Coast Artillery in Panama.

The couple went immediately after the ceremony to Panama, where the husband was stationed at the time.

Praises Co-operation.

The next guest, Lieut. Eric Nel- , who flew the New Orleans, e to praise the co-operation be- d the scenes that helped the rld flyers, to tell of the supply tem.

"We had the world divided into sectors," he said, "with an air rvice man in charge of each, to range for landings and supplies. a good many places there were lines of communication and y had to hire boats, automobiles even camel trains. The Coast rd came through with wonder- help and the little Bureau of heries boat, Ida, stuck all the y into Russian territory.

"Glad It Is Over."

"Our navy stood by from Japan Calcutta. We traveled light, h only five or six pounds of lug- e apiece and mostly borrowed rything in clothes we needed m the boys on the ships. When went ashore we would look e like navy men than army. We de about 30 stops since we came k to the United States, and have more to go before we leave our nes, and are certainly glad to e this over with." (Laughter.)

The pilots' aids touched the hter side. Lieut. L. P. Arnold, s was Smith's mate, told about California fisherman who hed them luck when the world began, and had them all sign ir names on a door in chalk, erving the record with var- . Then someone stole the r.

Fell Asleep in Show.

"In Paris," said Arnold, "we had go to the Follies Bergere, as all rists do. We took a box, but unded the French people by g to sleep. 'Great guns!' they said, 'what will keep them awake if not the Follies Bergere?' We lived in all sorts of places, traders' stores, for instance. Sometimes we did our own cooking and it wasn't so terrible. We took food one place where the trader was away. It was all right. He'll be paid some time.

"In the Aleutian Islands we wanted some chickens a fisherman had. When he was away we put his motorboat engine out of business. When he asked us to fix it we agreed to—for two chickens. Probably our most pleasant welcome was in Siam, where they moved up a double beheading for our benefit. But we had to go that morning and some one said, 'You've ruined the day for those two fellows.'"

Tells of Forced Landing.

Lieut. "Smiling Jack" Harding, Nelson's aid, told of finding taxicabs, electricity, good hotels and "very little prohibition" in Iceland, as well as Paris and London styles on the ladies. Lieut. H. H. Ogden said his pilot, Lieut. Wade, would "never know just how I felt" when their first ship, the Boston I, made a forced landing in the cold Northern ocean. He described the disastrous attempt of a British trawler to salvage the plane.

Lieuts. Nelson, Wade, Ogden and Harding arrived here yesterday afternoon after a non-stop flight from Dallas, Tex., and the informal parade downtown from Hotel Chase when they went to the luncheon was their first public appearance here. Lieuts. Smith and Arnold had been here previously and made a ceremonious arrival Sunday afternoon. All will be guests at a dinner at the Racquet Club tonight tendered by the Flying Club, Air Board and National Aeronautical Association.

Tomorrow morning the world flyers will make their last hop in the famous planes from Scott Field to McCook Field, Dayton, O., where the craft will be exhibited permanently. Thus will end their triumphant progress through the country.

Three other aviation officers addressed the luncheon on the country's need of development of aviation. They were Lieutenant-Colonel John A. Paegelow, commandant, of Scott Field; Lieut. C. C. Moseley, winner of the first Pulitzer race, who is piloting the historian of the world flight, and Lieut. Burdette S. Wright, advance officer of the flight.

BANKER SUED IN REALTY DEAL

John G. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce, and his wife, Mrs. Marie Lonsdale, were named defendants in a suit for $1055 filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Harry W. Fulenwider, a real estate broker. Fulenweider alleged that at the solicitation of Lonsdale he interested Francis J. Minter in the purchase of property owned by Lonsdale at 4616 Lindell bolevard. He alleges that as a result Lonsdale sold the place closing the deal Sept. 22 for $38,000.

"In selling the property on Lindell boulevard I dealt entirely with Fletcher R. Harris, with whom I had contracted for the sale of the house," Lonsdale said. "Mr. Harris was exclusively my agent."

'Round-the-World Flyers Photographed at Scott Field

SALESMEN 'BIRD-DOGS,' HE DID 'SHOOTING'

Testimony of C. J. Gonterman as to How Mid-Continent Stock Was Sold.

Courtney J. Gonterman, 32-year-old president of the Mid-Continent Finance Corporation, always did the "shooting" in selling the corporation's stock, he testified today at the trial of a receivership suit against the corporation. Referring to one of his stock salesmen, the witness said: "Harry Hatch was one of my bird-dogs. I always did the shooting."

Denying that any misrepresentations were made in selling the stock, Gonterman said he was certain on that point because he was present at 95 per cent of the sales arguments and officially closed all deals. He said he had made the acquaintance of about 200 Illinois farmers and was careful that none of his salesmen impair that faith.

The method of selling stock, he continued, was to take the prospect to look over the Madison County subdivisions which Gonterman's private realty company promoted. The prospect was told that the Midcontinent Finance Corporation had been organized to handle the "paper" acquired in deals for the real estate. Then the potential purchaser was requested not to make a decision to buy or not to buy until he had thought the matter over for a day.

Gonterman said he had never received commissions on stock sales. The arrangement by which the corporation bought promissory notes which the realty company had acquired was advantageous to the company, as it afforded low interest rates and greater financial backing, he said. On the other hand, he continued, the corporation made about 12 per cent profit on the transactions.

The case is being tried before Circuit Judge Frey. It began a week ago yesterday.

SEIPEL QUITS CHANCELLORSHIP OF AUSTRIA; RAMEK SUCCEEDS

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.
(Copyright, 1924.)

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—Monsignor Ignatz Seipel has resigned as Chancellor of the Austrian Government, but retains his leadership of the Christian Socialist party. The Chancellor resigned because of the interests which are against the rehabilitation work which, so far, he has led successfully.

First the railroaders struck and obtained 100,000,000,000 crowns (approximately $1,400,000) in increased pay. Then the provinces demanded 600,000,000,000 crowns from the state in revenues. The demands of the railroaders were granted, but Chancellor Seipel resigned when the provinces forced through a plan to drain the Federal Treasury.

Although the plan of the League of Nations was not fulfilled to the letter, the Chancellor has made a serious effort to reduce the number of Government employes on the railroad and in the offices of state.

The Austrian conservative press is loud in its praise of Seipel. His successor will be Rudolph Ramek, a Salzburg lawyer and former Minister of the Interior. By placing the Government in the hands of the provinces, it is hoped that responsibility of continuing the reconstruction work of the League of Nations will be made apparent to the provinces and economies will be carried out..

WIDOW TELLS OF INFATUATION OF FRICKER FOR HER

that prevailed on the farm during her long term of employment there.

For several years prior to her marriage, she said, Fricker had forced his attentions upon her and objected vigorously when she made known her plans to wed Kehrli, a former service man. When she married against her employer's will, she related, Fricker was so jealous that he followed them on their brief wedding trip and told her he would have given her $1000 if she hadn't married. She testified she had known Fricker for 14 years, having started to work for him at 16. After her first husband's death she continued in his employ until two years ago, when she married Nungesser.

Kamuf, who is 63 years old, and now an inmate of the Clinton County Home at Carlyle suffering from heart trouble, preceded Mrs. Nungesser on the stand with testimony as to the circumstances of Kehrli's death. He and Fricker and Kehrli had gone to work at a tenant house on the farm adjoining a timber tract. Leaving him at the house, he said, Fricker took Kehrli into the woods. Later a shot was heard and Fricker came out alone. Fricker, he said, previously had made threats against Kehrli, and after the farmhand's death admitted killing him.

Faces Another Trial.

Kamuf also identified a revolver which was found beside Kehrli's body and which, he said, Fricker had bought a few days before Kehrli was shot.

As is known, Fricker's indictment for the murder of Kehrli resulted from a signed confession of Kamuf which stated he was ill and wished to tell all he knew about the case before death should overtake him. He had kept silence previously, he said, because Fricker had threatened him.

Fricker's trial with two others, Jacob Landert and Eldo Wernle, farmhand and son-in-law, respectively, for the murder of Nungesser is set for a later date.

Files Bankruptcy Petition.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy, listing assets at $47,000 and liabilities at $74,405.06, was filed for Friker in Federal Court at East St. Louis today. Before his arrest, Fricker operated a large dairy farm east of Highland and was reputed to be wealthy. Since his arrest, on Sept. 15, the farm has been operated by his wife.

Of the liabilities, secured claims are listed at $58,493.11 and unsecured claims at $15,971. The assets comprise real estate valued at $34,000, household goods, $300; cattle, $6500; vehicles, $1200; farm stock and implements, $1000; machinery and crops, $1600, and miscellaneous property, $1000. Among the secured claims are five farm mortgages totaling $47,699, held by the Liberty Central Joint Stock Land Bank of St. Louis, the Farmers and Merchants' Bank of Highland, the State and Trust Bank of Highland and Samuel Senn of Highland.

I. C. ELECTRIFICATION IN CHICAGO ASSURED

Contracts Contemplate Elimination of Steam Locomotives at Terminal in 1926.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Complete electrification of the Illinois Central Railroad terminal district, which will ultimately eliminate the road's steam locomotive from the lake front yards is provided for in a contract signed yesterday between the Commonwealth Edison Co. and the Illinois Central Co. A full supply of electricity will become available to the road at the beginning of the summer of 1926. The electrification will extend as far as Matteson, Ill., on the main line and to South Chicago and Blue Island branches.

AUTO STOLEN FROM CHAUFFEUR

While Charles Bricker, 2247A Ohio avenue, a chauffeur for a cleaning and dyeing company, was making a delivery yesterday afternoon at 501 Clara avenue two men stole the Chevrolet coupe he was driving. He saw the men enter the automobile and gave chase but was outdistanced.

The machine was found several houres later in front of 5814 Westminster avenue. Bricker told police two suits of men's clothing, a man's dress suit and a woman's dress were missing.

BRIDE FOUND SLAIN IN TRAPPER'S CABIN IN NORTH WOODS

160-MILE TRIP ON FOOT FOR SHERIFF

Minnesota Official and the Coroner Begin Long Hike to Scene of Crime to Make Investigation.

By the Associated Press.

WARROAD, Minn., Nov. 18.—Investigation of the mysterious death of Mrs. Elsie Wheeler, 31 years old, a bride of three weeks, in the isolated country of the northwest angle of Minnesota, today awaited the arrival of the Lake and Woods County authorities, who are making a 160-mile trip through the wilderness to a lonely cabin in the North Woods, where she was found stabbed.

Mrs. Wheeler was found dead in the cabin late last Thursday by her husband, Dean Wheeler, and Carl Hagen, owner of the place, a homesteader and trapper, and with whom the Wheelers were staying. A butcher knife had been thrust into her left side.

Traveled 160 Miles on Foot.

Her body was discovered on the floor by the two men when they returned from a trip to a river, three miles away, where they had run a trap line. The next morning, Hagen and Jake Coulson, a friend of the Wheelers, departed to notify the authorities of the death.

The men traveled on foot 160 miles through the wilds to reach this place. Upon their arrival here late Sunday, they notified county authorities at Baudette by telephone.

Sheriff Thomas Slind and Coroner John R. Morris came here from Baudette yesterday and the four men started on the long trip back to Hagen's cabin. The officers are not expected to return here before the end of the week, and details of the woman's death will not be known until then.

Scouts Theory of Suicide.

According to the woman's husband, she had been in the best of spirits. He scouted a theory of suicide.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler came to this vicinity from Clearwater, Kan., where they were married three weeks ago. They were accompanied by Jake and Robert Coulson, brothers, of Clearwater.

The Wheelers and the Coulsons had taken out homestead claims in Northwestern Minnesota, near the Canadian border, where they planned to make their homes. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler and the Coulson brothers were making their home with Hagen until they could build their own cabins.

Robbery Motive for Killing, Relatives of Mrs. Wheeler Believe.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Elsie Lucas Wheeler, formerly of Clearwater, Kan., who was found dead in a cabin in the wilds of Minnesota with a knife in her side, had about $400 cash on her person at the time of her death, according to relatives here. They believe robbery was the motive for the crime. She also had a large diamond and other jewelry at the time she left Wichita, according to L. T. Wheeler of Peck, Kan., her father-in-law.

Mrs. Wheeler was married in Wichita three weeks ago. Her husband, Dean Wheeler, had taken out a homestead claim in Minnesota and the couple left here immediately after the wedding to prove up the claim. They were accompanied by Jake and Robert Coulson, brothers, of Clearwater, who already had taken out claims and who had invited the Wheelers to live with them until they should erect a cabin. The trip to Northern Minnesota was to have been their honeymoon.

According to word received here, the Coulsons and Wheeler left Mrs. Wheeler alone in the cabin while they went to run a trap line in the woods. Carl Hagen, a trapper, was with them. When they returned to the cabin they found the woman dead.

Mrs. Lee Hoisington McPherson, sister of the murdered woman, and L. T. Wheeler left Wichita last night for Minnesota. It was Mrs. Wheeler's second marriage. Her first husband, Lawrence Elliott, and their son, Lawrence Jr., 14, reside in California.

Mrs. Wheeler was Miss Elsie Lucas. Her parents, now dead, were Clearwater pioneers, and among the largest landholders of Sedgwick County. Mrs. Wheeler owned 400 acres of rich farming land on the outskirts of Clearwater.

ADMIRAL BEATTY TO RESIGN COMMAND OF BRITISH NAVY

Term of Office Already Expired—Vice Admiral Brock Expected to Be Successor.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Admiral Lord Beatty will resign his post as First Lord of the Admiralty at the end of the year, according to some of the morning newspapers. It is recalled that rumors of his resignation were current about a year ago, when it was suggested he was retiring due to dissatisfaction with certain governmental schemes.

There is no suggestion of the kind on this occasion nor apparently any special significance in the resignation, as Lord Beatty's term of office has already nominally expired.

Naval circles expect his successor will be Vice Admiral Sir Osmond de Beauvoir Brock, commander of the Mediterranean station since 1922.

Lowden Injured on Train.

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 18.—Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, here to address the general convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, reached Savannah this morning on crutches. He fell on the train en route from Atlanta last night and was injured. He is not so badly hurt that he cannot speak tonight.

TWO MEN DIE OF INJURIES RECEIVED IN AUTO CRASHES

Morris Jaffe, Real Estate Dealer, and Albert Grabherr Succumb After Accidents.

DEAD.

Morris Jaffe, 47, of 5503 Vernon avenue.

Albert Grabherr, 66, of 109 Tenth street, Luxemburg.

INJURED.

Gerhard Niehaus, 54, of Ferguson, fractured skull.

Mrs. Marian Toomey, 28, of 4339A North Newstead avenue, internal injuries, and son, Robert, 3, scalp lacerations.

Morris Jaffe, 47, a real estate dealer, of 5503 Vernon avenue, died at Jewish Hospital Sunday of internal injuries suffered a week ago today when an automobile which he was driving was overturned in front of 5851 De Giverville avenue.

Accompanied by his brother, Joseph, Jaffe was driving northwest when a driverless three-horse wagon approached, zig-zagging from side to side. The tongue of the wagon pierced the automobile.

The team and wagon were stopped two blocks farther on and later claimed by the absent driver, Walter Prichard, 1443 North Nineteenth street, who said the horses ran away from Hodiamont avenue and the Olive Street road.

Accident Verdict Returned.

A verdict of accident was returned by a Coroner's jury in the case of Dr. Frank Collins, 415 Wilmington avenue, whose machine struck Albert Grabher, 67, of 109 South Tenth street, Luxemburg, St. Louis County, Sunday, causing injuries resulting in his death at city hospital yesterday.

Grabherr's death raised the number of automobile fatalities this year to 162, as compared with 125 for the same period last year.

Alfred C. Reddinger, 5040 St. Louis avenue, was ordered by the Coroner to be held for the Circuit Attorney today following a verdict by the Coroner's jury of criminal carelessness in the death of William Rausch, 4434 Natural Bridge road, last Sunday.

Man Suffers Fractured Skull When Struck by Auto.

Gerhard Niehaus, 54, of Ferguson, who conducts a grocery at 3948 Easton avenue, suffered a skull fracture yesterday when struck by the automobile of Wilford Rigg, 2309 C street, Granite City, at Easton and Warne avenues. Niehaus had just left a street car when hit.

15 COMMITTEES DRAFT A. F. OF L. POLICIES

Gompers in Addressing El Paso Convention Makes Passing Reference to Politics.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 18.—With the principal aspects of its task outlined in the annual report of the executive council and the opening address of President Gompers, the American Federation of Labor convention turned today to formulating through committee action its major policies for the next year.

Fifteen committees appointed yesterday will do the bulk of the work during the rest of this week. Executive hearings on topics of importance will be held by several committees.

The report of the executive council brought before the convention more than a score of questions, including child labor, workmen's compensation laws, pensions, convict labor, women in industry, labor banking, legislation affecting railway crafts, and education.

Approximately 1000 delegates from the Mexican Confederation of Labor marched from the convention hall in Juarez, Mexico, to hold a joint session with the American assemblage yesterday. The American convention plans to adjourn this afternoon to go to the Mexican convention in Juarez for a second joint session.

The executive council report recommended that labor organizations guard "against hasty formation of labor banks."

"Labor in this new field of activity has not passed the complete period of experimentation," the report said.

President Gompers, in his address, made only one allusion to political activities by labor organizations. In sketching the background of the American labor movement, he asserted that some 50 years ago the National Labor Union, "like previous similar labor efforts," had "organized a labor party and then passed out of existence."

A special report on the executive council dealing with the federation's participation in the La Follette-Wheeler campaign is ready for an early session of the convention.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Governor-elect of Texas, in a letter of greetings, urged the convention to give "most serious consideration to the protection of women and children in industry." She expressed hope of attending later sessions of the convention.

Body Taken From River Identified.

The body of the man taken from the river at Lesperance street last Friday was identified at the morgue last night as that of A. H. Frohbasco, 66 years old, a watchman for the Fruin-Colnon Construction Co. on their barges at Carroll street. A foreman for the company identified the body. Frohbasco disappeared Nov. 2, police were told. He has a brother in Detroit.

Officer Corliss Speaks on "Giving"

I've got a hard-boiled beat. Some of those little kids are tough as railroad spikes and won't stop short of—

Well, it's funny; but every once in a while I see one of them bloom out with a clean face, and stop cussin' and turn into a pretty decent lad. You can't blame me for wanting to find out what it is that's making my job easier, can you?—And friend, I have found out.

There are a lot of folks who are taking the time and patience to get these kids started right—to tell 'em what's what. That's the part of the Community Fund work that hits me right between the eyes.

If it wasn't for that work, we'd have more gun-toters, thugs and snowbirds. Knowing what I do, I can't help but care.

Coats as Exceptionally High in Quality as They Are Exceptionally Low in Price

AND now comes a Sale of great moment. A Sale such as is possible only to the greatest merchandising houses of the country. A Sale in which our great purchasing influence again works to your advantage.

In planning this sale we have considered every factor that would make it comprehensive, of interest to every St. Louis woman. A memorandum of the points we have covered is, briefly, as follows:

Price Appeal—
Special valuations, so low as to afford us profit only through the magnitude of business we will do.

Style Appeal—
Every Coat in this sale has not only smartness of style, but newness of style—the latest authentic Winter modes.

Size Appeal—
Because this house specializes in misses' sizes and extra sizes, you can rely upon finding your size in any group.

Quality Appeal—
Catering to a clientele that we recognize as fastidious, we have in every group stretched value-giving to the limit in order to maintain our high standards of quality.

MELLON PRAISED BY MORRIS CREDIT MEN

Bankers Urge Retention of Secretary of Treasury, in Resolutions to Coolidge.

Bank credit men, representing 590 banks in principal cities of the United States at the opening session of the mid-year convention of the Robert Morris Associates at the City Club yesterday urged the retention in office for four more years of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, in resolutions forwarded to President Coolidge.

Mellon's service to the country was praised as "distinguished, efficient, and unselfish," and his "courage and patriotism" commended.

More than 175 delegates from regional chapters of the association are present at the mid-year meeting which continues through today and tomorrow. Delegates were welcomed yesterday by Richard S. Hawes, vice president of the First National Bank, and listened to a brief talk on "The Shoe Industry of St. Louis" by William E. Baird, general manager of Roberts, Johnson & Rand branch of the International Shoe Co., which was followed by a cross-fire of questions from members present as to credits and the trend of the business.

J. N. Eaton of the Merchants' National Bank of Boston is president of the Robert Morris Associates, which is composed of bank credit men and has for its purpose the fostering of business and social relations among that craft, and of raising the standard of ethics and practice in their work. Alexander Wall of Lansdowne, Pa., is secretary-treasurer, Richard S. Hawes of St. Louis is a member of the advisory board and Arthur F. Barnes of the Mercantile Trust Co. a director in the organization. Mr. Barnes is to talk on "Has the Country Gone Time-Payment Mad?" at Wednesday morning's session. This afternoon Bert H. Lang, vice president of the First National Bank will speak on "Grain;" from the viewpoint of credits and financing.

Vote Against One Big Union.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, N. S., Nov. 18.—Delegates to the convention of District 26, United Mine workers of America, at yesterday's session voted down, 65 to 10, a motion to admit delegates from the One Big Union miners of Thorburn and Stellarton.

A Sale of Trade-Mark Shoes

Hamilton-Brown; Roberts, Johnson & Rand "Star Brand" and Eastern Makes

WOMEN who shop Wednesday will find very unusual values in these well-known makes of good Shoes. The assortment represents several purchases made for the Underselling Campaign, and includes the popular Dixie Tie, cut-out Oxfords, fancy cut-out strap pumps, staple Oxfords and a great many other styles for general and dress wear.

The materials used are patent leather, black satin, tan leather and kid, and the Shoes are well made and neatly finished in every respect.

There is a choice of high Spanish, Cuban and military heels. Some are termed "factory rejects," but the imperfections are hardly perceptible.

All sizes, 3 to 8, are included in the assortment, but, of course, there is not every size in each style. For this reason we suggest that you make early selection while the choice is most complete. Every pair is a splendid value!

Fat That Shows Soon Disappears

Prominent fat which comes and stays where it is not needed is a burden to carry, a hindrance to activity, a curb upon pleasure. You can remove the fat where it shows by taking after each meal and at bedtime, one Marmola Prescription Tablet. These little tablets are as pleasant and effective as the famous prescription from which they take their name. Buy and try a box today. All druggists the world over sell them, at one dollar for a box, or you can order them direct from the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. You can thus say good-bye to dieting, exercise and fat.

CHARGES AGAINST DIRECTORS OF CLOSED BANK DISMISSED

Justice at Peirce City Finds They Are Not to Blame for the Lawrence Failure.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEIRCE CITY, Mo., Nov. 18.—Charges of receiving deposits in an insolvent bank pending against the four directors of the defunct Lawrence County Bank were dismissed yesterday afternoon by Justice Elmer Watson. The directors were given a preliminary hearing Saturday. The directors discharged are: Ed F. Buckner, Will H. Roberts, John Sherdon and E. B. Wright.

Justice Watson said an examination of the bank's records did not show any irregularities in the bank's affairs for which the directors could be blamed, but that it did show there had been some laxity in the administration.

W. A. Rhea, former cashier of the defunct bank, is under bond awaiting trial in Circuit Court on a charge of embezzlement in connection with the failure of the bank.

John R. Pearson, former president, who is charged with receiving deposits in an insolvent bank, has not been apprehended. A warrant for his arrest has been issued. He is believed to be somewhere in Nebraska, his former home. The defunct bank is still in the hands of the State Finance Department. The bank was capitalized at $50,000. It had deposits aggregating $148,000 when it failed. None of the depositors has been paid.

RACE 48 MILES AN HOUR, BUT LOSE TO PATROLMAN

Two Drivers, Arrested After a Chase, Fined $115 in Police Court.

Charles Haas, 2914A Lemp avenue, raced out Gravois avenue from Meramec street to Grand boulevard, at 48 miles an hour Sunday night. His friend, George Minnich, 1328 Arsenal street, in another automobile, was close behind. A motorcycle patrolman won the race.

Before Police Judge Homer today both pleaded guilty. Haas was fined $60 for speeding, and Minnich $50 for speeding and $5 for passing a boulevard.

$4325 IN FURS STOLEN

Burglar Takes Four Expensive Pieces From Wardrobe Exchange.

A burglar in the Society Wardrobe Exchange at 3109 South Grand boulevard conducted by Mrs. Irma Heller early yesterday stole four fur pieces on which a valuation of $4325 was placed. The most expensive piece taken was described as an Eastern mink fur cloak valued at $3500. A duplicate key was used to get into the place.

4 out of 5 get Pyorrhea

The law of averages is immutable. Dental statistics prove that four out of every five over 40—and thousands younger, too—are marred by Pyorrhea. Do you want to escape?

It takes healthy gums to keep healthy teeth

If you neglect your gums—let them get in a "run-down" condition—you may soon be numbered among Pyorrhea's countless victims.

Bleeding gums are Nature's first warning. Then the gums begin to recede, lose that rich, healthy-pink color. Poisons collect in pus pockets and often drain through the entire system, causing indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism and other serious diseases of mid-life. In the final stages the teeth loosen and fall out.

Take no chances—use Forhan's

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea, or check its progress—something ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to do. It contains just the right proportion of Forhan's Astringent (as used by the dental profession in the treatment of Pyorrhea). It is safe, efficient and pleasant tasting. Even if you don't care to discontinue your favorite dentifrice, at least start using Forhan's once a day.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

This is the greatest Coat sale our Basement Coat Department has held in years. Every Coat is brand-new, and over 800 of these Coats are shown for the first time. The materials and furs alone are worth a great deal more than the retail price Wednesday of the entire Coat.

Nugent's

The Store for ALL the People

Due to bad weather conditions throughout the country, the Coat business has not been what it should, and manufacturers were willing to dispose of their stock at a fraction of their real value. Hence this price. It is the manufacturers' loss and your gain.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Physician's Discovery Safely Reduces It to Normal and Dizzy Spells Disappear.

Thousands who have dizzy spells, sleeplessness, nervousness, shortness of breath, pains in the head and impaired energy have been told by physicians or insurance examiners that they have high blood pressure. The serious results are well enough known to check it at once. High blood pressure, caused by overtaxing the heart, often brings on Bright's Disease, apoplexy and sudden death.

Norma reduces high blood pressure to normal. Often one bottle will do it. Many have so testified. It is a doctor's prescription that's harmless, and is also much used by women who at times usually have blood pressure above normal.

LIFE MADE MISERABLE, SAYS 'KETCHUP KING'

Miss Buell Embarrassed Him in Hotel and on Street, Millionaire Testifies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—An office boy, a stenographer and a chauffeur were witnesses yesterday when Miss Muriel Buell of West Chester, N. Y., appeared in the Tombs Court to answer a charge of disorderly conduct with Jefferson Livingston, "Ketchup King" and financier, as the complainant.

Their testimony, with that of Livingston, was that Miss Buell made life miserable for the millionaire; that she had walked in upon him and his friends at dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria; had driven him from his automobile when it was caught in traffic jams and had carried a gun when she visited Livingston's office to demand money.

Miss Buell once sued Livingston for breach of contract, declaring that he did not keep a promise to pay her $1750 a month for life. He contended he had settled with her for $12,500 cash.

Said She Carried Gun.

She was arrested at Livingston's Wall street office last Thursday and taken to a police station in her own sedan after a scene which the "kitchup king" declared was the climax to a series of embarrassing episodes. On that day, the office boy testified, Miss Buell demanded entrance to Livingston's presence, saying, "Don't be afraid of me, little boy. I'm not going to hurt you even though I carry a gun around."

The stenographer testified that she had seen Miss Buell rifling the pockets of Livingston's top coat where it hung in the reception room. When she saw the visitor extract a telegram from the coat and start reading it, said the witness, she summoned her employer, who retrieved the message.

Miss Buell's chauffeur also was a witness. She had him called into Livingston's office to see what occurred after the broker had called in his office boy and stenographer.

Livingston related that, earlier last week, Miss Buell had seated herself at a table at the Waldorf-Astoria, where he was dining with several guests, and, unannounced and uninvited, said: "Jefferson, I am hungry. I haven't had anything to eat for two days. I want some money."

He and his friends left the table, said Livingston. Miss Buell, he testified, followed him from the dining room screaming until house detectives led her away.

Fled from His Auto.

The traffic jam incident, as related by Livingston, caused him to flee from his automobile, leaving it in Miss Buell's possession, while he walked to his hotel. Then, when she confronted him at his office, again demanding money, he told her to see his attorneys and called the police.

Magistrate Simpson declined the request of Miss Buell's counsel that the charge be dismissed and the request of Livingston's counsel that she be sent to the Bellevue psychiatric ward for observation. Trial will be resumed tomorrow.

CCOUNTING SUIT VER E. D. FRANZ ESTATE ON TRIAL on of Man Whose $21,000 Investment in 1896 Is Worth $3,000,000 Is Plaintiff in Case.

rial of a suit for an accounting the estate of the late E. D. anz, which grew to its present e of $3,000,000 from a modest 000 "flyer" in the stock mar- in 1896, is being conducted to- in United States District ge Davis' Court.

As will be recalled, Franz made investment in the stock of the erican Arithmometer Co. which er became the Burroughs Adding hine Co. Ehrhardt Franz of ter Springs, Kan., son of the ator, in the plaintiff in the pres- suit.

He seeks to force G. A. Buder, trustee, to make an accounting, to have himself declared one of 10 potential heirs to the estate, and to obtain an increase in the $100,000 bonds, believed to have been given by Buder and by Gustav A. V. Franz, brother of the plaintiff and co-trustee with Buder.

Buder Not Under Bond.

During Buder's testimony today it developed that neither he nor G. A. Franz was under bond as trustee. Buder said they had an arrangement under which all the securities composing the estate were kept in a safe deposit box at the Mercantile Trust Co. The trustees have access to the box only when accompanied by the trust officer of the Mercantile Trust Co., he testified.

"What was the value of the estate in 1909 when the trust agreement was made?" Thomas M. Pierce asked. Pierce is counsel for the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., intervenor on behalf of the estate of Walter T. Franz, one of the sons of E. D. Franz.

"Between $250,000 and $300,000," Buder said.

"What was it in 1912?"

"One million six hundred three thousand four hundred and thirty-three dollars," reading from a memorandum.

"In 1919?"

"Two million eight hundred and twenty-six thousand eight hundred eight-nine dollars."

"What is it now?"

"In excess of $3,000,000."

Estate All Right Now.

"Don't you think the trustees handling the dividends should be under bond?" Pierce asked.

"Well, I can't see that they should, no," Buder said. "The estate is all right now. It would just mean we'd have to pay out $200 for a bond."

Buder said the dividends on the Burroughs stock for this year would be about $175,000. He said that after the heirs had got their quarterly checks the remainder would be reinvested, as in the past, in securities and added to the estate.

"Everybody is satisfied except Ehrhardt Franz," Buder said. "I know him. You ought to know the trouble I've had with him. He's liable to pop off at any time."

Letter Read in Record.

On the witness stand yesterday Ehrhardt Franz charged that Buder had refused to give him an accounting of the assets of the estate. He related that the income from the estate is distributed among 10 heirs in quarterly payments which began at $625. The heirs are now receiving $1250 a quarter. By an agreement with the trustees the heirs could borrow from the huge estate up to $25,000, and this amount, Franz said, he now owes the estate.

S. Mayner Wallace, counsel for Franz, read in evidence a letter written by the plaintiff Dec. 4, 1923, asking for an accounting of the capital assets of the estate.

"Did you receive a reply?" he was asked.

"I did not."

The witness added that he had written another letter and had been told that his request would be laid before G. A. Franz, his brother and co-trustee with Buder. He said that he repeated his request at Buder's office last February of Oscar Buder, brother of the defendant, and got no information. Oscar Buder is associated with G. A. Buder in a law firm with offices in the Buder Building.

Denied Access to Securities.

Even the safe deposit box where the securities of the estate were kept, at the Mercantile Trust Co., was barred from him on one occasion, the witness said, when the securities were being checked.

Wallace read into the record a copy of a resolution purporting to have been signed by Franz's mother and all but one heir, asking the annulling of the trust agreement. The resolution was executed Oct. 24, 1912, three years after the original document setting up the trust had been executed. The resolution was never carried out, the witness explained, because G. A. Franz, the co-trustee, refused to sign it.

At the close of the examination of the witness, Wallace read into the record a letter purporting to have been written by Mrs. E. D. Franz, widow of the testator, to Ehrhardt Franz, the witness. In the letter the writer expressed her regret "that we are in this predicament," referring apparently to the trust agreement, and expressed her appreciation of Ehrhardt Franz's efforts "in trying to help us get out from under this yoke."

Texas G. O. P. Won't Contest Election.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 18.—The election of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Democrat, as Governor of Texas, at the Nov. 4 election, will not be contested. This announcement was made here today after a two-day conference of State Republican leaders. "Despite many irregularities in the recent gubernatorial election," said a statement signed by R. B. Creager, Republican National Committeeman from Texas, and other party leaders, "we agree with Dr. George C. Butte, the Republican nominee, that in the light of our present knowledge of the facts, a contest would be unwise."

CHARRED REMAINS OF PASTOR'S WIFE FOUND IN FURNACE

Police Question Minister in Columbus, O., Suburb After Coroner's Verdict of Suicide Is Rejected.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—The Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, for nine years pastor of the Christ Lutheran Church of Bexley, a suburb, was being questioned by police today in connection with the finding of the ashes of his wife's body in the furnace of their Bexley home late yesterday.

The investigation into the mysterious cremation of the pastor's 51 year-old wife is being conducted by County Prosecutor John R. King and police who last midnight discounted Coroner Murphy's suicide verdict. The Coroner's verdict contended that the woman had crawled into the furnace and closed the door behind her. Because the furnace was filled with flame, Prosecutor King declared it would have been impossible for the woman to have turned to close the furnace door after crawling into the fire.

The minister-husband was not under arrest, but was being kept in Lieut. Shallenbarger's office for questioning.

The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley last night explained that his wife had been extremely nervous for some time and that she was alone in the home yesterday afternoon. He had postponed a hunting trip because of his wife's condition, he said, but went into town about 1 p. m. The woman's body was found at 4:55 p. m., when the minister returned. He was attracted to the furnace, he said, by the odor of burning flesh.

Mrs. Sheatsley, shortly before her death, the minister told officials during the examination, said: "I would like to be in the place you preached about Sunday."

The text of his sermon Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Sheatsley said, was "Man Driven Out of the Garden of Eden." She also mentioned the closing sentence of the sermon, "It is my conviction that Heaven will be a paradise restored," he told officers.

Four children of the couple, Milton, 20 years old, Clarence, 16, both students at Capital University, Bexley; Elizabeth 14, and Alice, 9, were being examined by officials this afternoon.

Clarence, the 16-year-old son, told authorities, they said, that he noticed the peculiar odor in the house when he arrived home from school about 3 p. m. yesterday. Tracing the odor to the furnace, detectives said he related that he opened the fire door and saw the body of his mother in the furnace. Instead of sounding an alarm, he told detectives, he went upstairs and did not mention the tragedy to anyone until his father returned home at 4:45 p. m.

Authorities are at a loss to understand his actions.

The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley is 51 years old.

The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley has accounted for his actions from the time he left his home about 1:30 p. m. yesterday until his return and they have been verified by authorities. He was being questioned again this afternoon, however.

Mrs. Sheatsley was described as a small woman, weighing about 115 pounds, and 4 feet 4 inches tall.

Fire Destroys $500,000 Plant.

By the Associated Press.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Fire last night totally destroyed the plant of the Vermont Milling Products Corporation near Fairhaven, Vt., with an estimated loss of $500,000, according to reports received here.

PROGRESS

Progress in chemical cleaning has been marked. Plant equipment has been greatly improved, quicker and more thorough cleansing methods devised, service speeded up, and your garments cleaned more thoroughly than ever. And now, to top it all, the Dollar Cleaning Co. has, by reason of careful management and a large and ever-increasing volume of business, been enabled to clean any kind of plain wool garment for a dollar.

This is progress, indeed, and the kind that the people of St. Louis appreciate, as is shown by our continually enlarging list of satisfied patrons. And, incidentally, we have demonstrated to every one of these customers that their clothes are cleaned just as thoroughly, just as efficiently, as they would be if we were to charge more.

If you have not yet tried Dollar Cleaning, won't you permit us to prove this statement? If you will phone Delmar 1170-1171, our representative will call.

WIFE IDENTIFIES ROBBER FATALLY SHOT IN HOLDUP

Apparent Leader of Men Who Robbed Roadhouse Was Hollis Byram of University City.

LEAVES FAMILY OF TWO CHILDREN

He Left Home Two Weeks Ago Saying He Was Going to Look for Job, Mrs. Byram Says.

An anonymous telephone call to Coroner Mercer of Granite City late yesterday resulted in the identification of the robber who was fatally shot Sunday midnight when seven men held up Eagle Park, a roadhouse north of East St. Louis, killed a watchman, and stole $1600 in cash.

The Coroner's informant merely stated that the dead man was Hollis Byram of 6747 Vernon place, University City. Subsequently, identification was made by his wife, when she was taken to the Granite City morgue by a Post-Dispatch reporter who had investigated the call. Mrs. Byram, who is left with two children, 10 and 6 years, said that Byram, who was 28, left home two weeks ago saying he would seek a full-time job as a mechanic in Tennessee. She had heard nothing from him until she was told of his death.

Apparently Leader of Band.

Byram, who apparently was leader of the robber band, was found mortally wounded in a Granite City hospital, where his companions had taken him after the robbery. Before his death he stated he was "J. H. Cole of Third street, Madison."

Meanwhile, Madison County authorities are watching hospitals for the appearance of another robber who is known to have been wounded, and are investigating on the theory that the Eagle Park holdup may have been engineered by the same band who seized "The Castle," a secluded resort near Mitchell, Saturday night, and held it six hours, robbing more than 50 men and women as they arrived there in automobiles.

In the Eagle Park holdup, two of the employes opened fire at the command, "Stick 'em up," and shots were exchanged. Byram and Melvin Norvell, 27, a watchman, were killed and another robber and two other employes were injured.

Taken to Hospital in Auto.

The robbers carried Bryam and Norvell to a stolen automobile and fled toward Granite City, where they shot Norvell to death, robbed him and pitched his body into the street. Then they took Bryam to Mary Wedig Hospital, Granite City, and left him with an attendant with the command, "Take care of him." The blood-stained automobile was abandoned near a Granite City steel plant.

Mrs. Bryam said her husband had never been in serious trouble before. They married when he was 18, she said, and until recently he had been steadily employed as a mechanic. When she viewed the body, she said: "I'm sure he couldn't have done anything like that if he was in his right mind."

ITALIAN CABINET APPROVES MUNICIPAL WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Mussolini Promises Delegation to Present National Law to Parliament This Year.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 18.—The Council of ministers yesterday approved the project of woman suffrage in municipal elections. Premier Mussolini also received a delegation from the Woman Suffrage Federation, composed of representatives from various parts of Italy. He told the delegation that he hoped a women suffrage law would be presented to Parliament and passed before the end of the year.

The council meeting authorized the Minister of the Interior to present a bill providing for national protection and assistance to maternity and infancy.

The projects of the Minister of War for the army were approved in general.

Ambassador Herrick in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

CHERBOURG, France, Nov. 18.—American Ambassador Herrick arrived today on the Mauretania. He said he had no intention of abandoning his post at Paris. He declared he never felt in better health, the long rest on his Ohio farm having been beneficial.

SHAVER OUSTS PUBLICITY BUREAU OF COMMITTEE

Order of Democratic National Chairman Taken as Evidence He Has Failed to Raise Funds.

SEVERAL MENTIONED FOR CHAIRMANSHIP

Shaver Plans to Reorganize Publicity Bureau on Economical Lines, With Assured Income.

By CHARLES MICHELSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Chairman Shaver of the Democratic National Committee is expected to resign as soon as he has cleaned up the deficit, amounting to upward of $200,000, which the campaign left in the committee's funds.

He has ordered the discharge of the entire personnel of the publicity department, which is another way of saying that the national headquarters at Washington are to be put in cold storage. About all there is to a national committee except in the active stage of a campaign is this organization which has charge of the card indexes, the collection and classification of ammunition to be used when the battle line comes—and similar activities.

The Democratic National Committee occupied a suite of 14 big rooms in the Investment Building here, manned by 40 odd people. They already are dismantling these offices and the rooms will shrink to one office besides the Secretary's and perhaps a couple that contain the files, clippings and records.

Shaver went to New York recently to get the money required to keep the establishment going. Besides the deficit this would involve something under $100,000 a year. The message shutting up shop is evidence that he was not able to get the pledges of contributions.

Trouble in Publicity Bureau.

There is bound to be something of a row over the summary cutting off of various important people who were functioning until last Saturday night. As a matter of fact there has been little but trouble about Democratic publicity since the campaign really opened.

Chairman Shaver had retained as Director of Publicity Richard Linthicum who had charge during Cordell Hull's successful regime, the high point of which was the congressional elections of two years ago. The Davis candidacy brought in as chairman of the publicity committee Former Interstate Commerce Commissioner Robert Woolley, who was conspicuous in the McAdoo campaign. There never was a clear definition of authority between the old and the new regimes, both of which were continued. Now both are extinct. Nobody supposes that the Democratic National Committee is going to quit business, of course, but the prophecy is that when the apparatus starts up again it will be with other men in charge.

Part of this program necessarily must be the elimination of Shaver and already gossip is busy as to his successor.

Among those who have been suggested are Cordell Hull—if he will take it, which is doubtful; Homer Cummings, Norman E. Mack and Senator Simmons. Should the anti-McAdoo forces prevail, Frank Hague of New Jersey is a probability and Ed Moore of Ohio also is mentioned.

Those who are suggesting an all around new deal speak of Representative Ayres of Kansas, one of the Democratic survivors of the recent catastrophe.

Glass and Cox Suggested.

Senator Carter Glass is another suggestion and there also is some thought of approaching former Gov. Cox of Ohio with a proposition. To the argument that Cox still has presidential ambitions is interposed the reply that he could not forward these better than by taking hold of the wrecked Democratic machine, pulling it together and showing his capacity by winning the by-elections two years hence.

Among those displaced by the Shaver order, incidentally, is Mrs. Banister, Carter Glass' sister, who was head of the women's bureau.

The desirability of the chairmanship depends largely on whether Shaver is successful in clearing off the debt. Few big enough for the job would be willing to take it if their first task was to get rid of the deficit. Cordell Hull did it four years ago and his performance was hailed as something verging on the miraculous.

He has ordered the discharge of the entire personnel of the publicity department, which is another way of saying that the national headquarters at Washington are to be put in cold storage. About all there is to a national committee except in the active stage of a campaign is this organization which has charge of the card indexes, the collection and classification of ammunition to be used when the battle line comes—and similar activities.

The Democratic National Committee occupied a suite of 14 big rooms in the Investment Building here, manned by 40 odd people. They already are dismantling these offices and the rooms will shrink to one office besides the Secretary's and perhaps a couple that contain the files, clippings and records.

Shaver went to New York recently to get the money required to keep the establishment going. Besides the deficit this would involve something under $100,000 a year. The message shutting up shop is evidence that he was not able to get the pledges of contributions.

Trouble in Publicity Bureau.

There is bound to be something of a row over the summary cutting off of various important people who were functioning until last Saturday night. As a matter of fact there has been little but trouble about Democratic publicity since the campaign really opened.

Chairman Shaver had retained as Director of Publicity Richard Linthicum who had charge during Cordell Hull's successful regime, the high point of which was the congressional elections of two years ago. The Davis candidacy brought in as chairman of the publicity committee Former Interstate Commerce Commissioner Robert Woolley, who was conspicuous in the McAdoo campaign. There never was a clear definition of authority between the old and the new regimes, both of which were continued. Now both are extinct. Nobody supposes that the Democratic National Committee is going to quit business, of course, but the prophecy is that when the apparatus starts up again it will be with other men in charge.

Part of this program necessarily must be the elimination of Shaver and already gossip is busy as to his successor.

Among those who have been suggested are Cordell Hull—if he will take it, which is doubtful; Homer Cummings, Norman E. Mack and Senator Simmons. Should the anti-McAdoo forces prevail, Frank Hague of New Jersey is a probability and Ed Moore of Ohio also is mentioned.

Those who are suggesting an all around new deal speak of Representative Ayres of Kansas, one of the Democratic survivors of the recent catastrophe.

Glass and Cox Suggested.

Senator Carter Glass is another suggestion and there also is some thought of approaching former Gov. Cox of Ohio with a proposition. To the argument that Cox still has presidential ambitions is interposed the reply that he could not forward these better than by taking hold of the wrecked Democratic machine, pulling it together, and showing his capacity by winning the by-elections two years hence.

Among those displaced by the Shaver order, incidentally, is Mrs Banister, Carter Glass' sister, who was head of the women's bureau.

The desirability of the chairmanship depends largely on whether Shaver is successful in clearing off the debt. Few big enough for the job would be willing to take it if their first task was to get rid of the deficit. Cordell Hull did it four years ago and his performance was hailed as something verging on the miraculous.

OFFICIAL CAUTION BEGETS MANY PLANS, BUT NO PLANES

"Aviation in Infancy," Authorities Protest, as Fighting Equipment Becomes Obsolete.

What is the United States doing in aviation?

The Post-Dispatch and the New York World have just completed an exhaustive inquiry into the situation, gathering the data from the War, Navy and Postoffice Departments and presenting for the first time, even to these officials, a complete statement of just what has happened and what ought to happen if American pre-eminence is to be regained and maintained. The details of this inquiry will be presented in a series of articles, of which the following is one:

V.

By Peter Vischer.

War is a cinch. Any military man will tell you that. Everybody enthusiastic. Everybody patriotic. Everybody anxious to pitch in to help. Plenty of men. Plenty of money. Blank checks to fill in, and nobody to quibble about economies.

Peace-time reorganization is another matter. The aviation services of the United States—the Army Air Service and the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics—have found that out. They are allowed but few men, the Army 1061 officers and 8764 men and the Navy 624 officers and 4250 men, not a third as many as are needed They have but few planes—the Army, in commission and on order, 975, and the Navy 509, most of them obsolete, not a tenth of them first-class modern fighting equipment.

We haven't more because of the huge sums we spend annually for aviation—$56,000,000 last year and probably more this—we have to keep up such considerable establishments, pay salaries, build buildings, conduct experiments, that there's no money left over for aircraft. Of last year's $56,000,000, the army spent $3,360,000 and the navy $5,800,000 for "construction" —more for engines, spares, parts and accessories than for actual aircraft.

Less was spent on aircraft and less on exceedingly costly experimental projects for two reasons—first, the reason already stated, that when what might be called the overhead on the present establishments was paid there wasn't more left over, and, second, for the reason that neither the head of the army nor the navy air services believes the science of aeronautics has progressed far enough to warrant huge expenditures on aircraft at this time.

Money Turned Back.

During the fiscal year 1922, Brigadier-General Mason M. Patrick, head of the Army Air Service, failed to use $2,458,265.77 which had been appropriated for his use because he felt that aircraft at that time were in so transitory a stage that the money would have been thrown away. Of that sum, $800 000 was ordered saved by the Secretary of War, $1,458,265.77 was actually turned back into the surplus fund and the other $1,000,000 was reappropriated for use during the current fiscal year.

Now, Gen. Patrick is ready to buy aircraft. He points out that year after year, instead of having more planes, we have fewer. We need 2433, he says, and we haven't many more than a third of that number, and most of those we have ought not be counted. Because of the lack of money, he says, we are only able to develop plans, not planes.

"It's my task to keep the air service in the air," he says, "and at the rate we're going now that will be impossible before many years have passed. If it weren't for left-over wartime stocks, Jennies and DHs, we would hardly be flying now. These planes are obsolescent, if not obsolete, but, at least, they fly. We're doing the best we can.

"What we need, and need imperatively, is an appropriation of $10,000,000 a year for the next five years for the purchase of aircraft. If we had that, or, indeed, had any continuing policy that we could rely on instead of having to go from hand to mouth year after year, we would soon have a first-class efficient fighting Air Service instead of plans in a drawer."

"Nothing Worth Counting."

Major-General William Mitchell, Assistant Chief of the Air Service, is much more emphatic about it than Gen. Patrick.

"You might just as well disregard what we have now," he says. "We haven't a thing worth counting. Why, the aircraft we have amounts to this: We're trying to feed 300 men with one slice of meat. We haven't a thing, except a very few pursuit planes, and they're just a drop in the bucket. I am convinced that this situation will never be remedied until we get an aviation policy, and we won't get that until we have a separate Air Service, directed and controlled and manned by flyers."

In the navy the situation is little better. The navy has quite a few modern post-war planes, but the navy's greatest problem is that of landing on and taking off from ships at sea. That problem is not yet fully solved, though a solution is undoubtedly near. Last year the navy spent $1,573,224 on catapulting and other experiments, and the same amount is to be spent this year.

Admit Lack of Knowledge.

"If we were given $100,000,000 to spend on aircraft right now," says Capt. A. W. Johnson, Acting Chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics when Rear Admiral William A. Moffett is absent, "we wouldn't know how to spend it. Our difficulty is not only lack of funds. It is also the state of the art. Aviation, you know, is still a very new science. It hasn't yet progressed so that we know just what we want and how to get it.

"We in the navy don't know yet just how important our aviation is. With us, the development of the navy comes first and above the development of any specific bureau. We want to find a fair balance and preserve it. We have other things to do besides fly. And that's why of all our funds we have less than 30 per cent available for new aircraft and less than 10 per cent for experimental work.

"It is possible now to design aircraft whose probable performance in flight can be predicted with remarkable accuracy. Materials still have physical limitation and aerodynamic laws impose restrictions. Aircraft must withstand stresses and strains in flight and on the ground or water, and in the case of the navy, also when landing into the arresting gear of a carrier or being catapaulted from the deck of a ship.

Asks for Patience.

"Demands for greater speed, faster climb, higher ceiling, greater endurance, greater weight carrying capacity, increased ruggedness, better maneuver ability are constantly being made. But they're not always being met. We have a long way still to go in aviation, and if we were to sink a lot of money into it right now we'd be throwing much of it away. A fair increase of money we need badly, and, I hope, will get. But people mustn't get impatient. It takes lots of time and great sums to build up our army and navy air services."

The army spends much more for experimental work than it does for new aircraft. Last year when $3,360,000 was spent for aircraft and engines, spare parts and accessories, $4,544,000 was spent for experimentation and research work. During the last three years $14,694,000 was spent for experimenting and only $12,534,000 for aircraft engines, spares, accessories, etc.

Most of the money spent for experimentation is used at McCook Field, Dayton, O. Gen. Patrick has plans to use considerable more there, for the field now in use is too close to Dayton to be safe for the city and he plans to move out toward Wilbur Wright Field, where the people of Dayton have given the nation a considerable tract of land worth about $900,000.

See Fight Ahead.

Gen. Patrick expects to build a new McCook Field there, spending probably $1,500,000 to get it into operation next year and enough in the succeeding years to bring the total expenditures up to $4,000,000 or possibly $5,000,000. His plans will undoubtedly bring up a curious fight.

Dayton is very anxious to keep McCook Field. The reason for that is plain to see; during the last three years nearly $15,000,000 has been spent in and around Dayton by the Government, to say nothing of what has been spent there by individuals attracted to Dayton because of McCook Field. Hundreds of residents of Dayton have been given jobs. The automobile industry has been kept in close touch with aeronautics. A new McCook Field would bring a building boom as well.

Dayton wants McCook Field. Any city would want McCook Field or any other Government center in which $20,000,000 or more is spent in five years.

It is an open secret among those who know aviation that the last international air races at Dayton failed to get entries from the navy and the Postoffice Department because they were not interested in glorifying McCook Field. The last meet was the Army's show.

Now there's a question as to whether or not an expenditure of $20,000,000 for experimentation and research over a period of five years is justifiable when the only actual development is one plane—the new pursuit planes, direct result of speed racing. Of course, a great deal was done with tests, accessories, instruments and the like. But $500,000 was also spent on the Barling bomber, considered quite useless for war purposes. An additional sum of $250,000 was spent on a helicopter. A huge engine

SPANISH ARMY EVACUATES HOLY CITY OF MOORS

Withdrawal From Sheshuan Described as Most Difficult Operation of the Moroccan Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Nov. 18.—The Spanish forces have evacuated the Moroccan city of Sheshaun, and in their withdrawal have reached Dar Akoba, six miles to the north.

This was officially announced today by Admiral Marquis de Magaz, acting president of the military directorate, and completes the first stage of a plan for the evacuation of Moroccan territory devised by Gen. Primo Rivera.

The operation is described as the most difficult yet carried out in Morocco and only three of the Spanish troops were killed. Ten thousand Spanish troops were involved in the movement. Since Gen. Primo Rivera has been at the head of the army in Morocco, 180 Spanish positions, which were continually in danger of falling into the hands of the tribesmen, have been abandoned.

"It is a cause for rejoicing," said the statement of Admiral Magaz, "no previous Government has dared to face the problem."

The "Holy City" Sheshuan, or Xauen, was founded in the fifteenth century and for many years has been the scene of attempts by the Spaniards to capture it. After numerous battles it was first captured from the Moors by Spaniards under command of Damaso Berenguer, high commissioner in Morocco, on Oct. 14, 1920. When the disaster to the Spanish army occurred in 1921, the Spaniards lost Sheshuan, but again took it in 1922.

Since early this year the Spanish garrison there had been besieged by the Moors and its relief had been impossible of attainment until now.

Sheshuan is 300 feet above sea level and is surrounded by a wall. Ten gates lead into the city, which contain eight mosques.

COUSIN OF PERSIA'S SHAH IN U. S. FOR A DEAL IN OIL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Prince Rokneddine Mirza Kadjar, cousin of the Shah of Persia, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Adriatic. He has no official mission and comes as a private citizen. He will remain in America several months.

The Prince is 28. He was born in Teheran and educated in Russia, the country he served during the early part of the war. He was decorated for gallantry. Since the Russian revolution he has lived in Paris.

He is the owner of estates on the borderland of Persia and the Caucasus, adjoining some of the Standard Oil territory. One of the reasons for coming here, he said, was to interest American business men in the development of a part of his property as oil land.

STONE CROSSES FOR WAR DEAD

Monuments Commission Decides on Markers for Overseas Graves.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The battle monuments commission, headed by Gen. Pershing, has decided informally that the graves of American war dead in France shall be marked for all time with white stone crosses, in patterns similar to the wooden markers that have stood over the graves since the war.

Gen. Pershing explained that this decision probably would be formally voted at a meeting to be held here this week. The plans will then be presented to Secretary Weeks for approval before actual work of planning the stone crosses is begun. Stone crosses will be ordered only for graves overseas. The graves of soldiers whose bodies were returned to the United States will be marked with stone slabs in conformity with the practice followed since the Civil War in all military burial grounds in this country.

ORLANDO MAN QUITS FASCISTI

ROME, Nov. 18.—Deputy Giuseppe Lanza di Trabia, in a letter to the Fascisti party directory, announcing his resignation from the party, states that he is unable to further accept the Fascisti program of "intolerance and violence."

The resignation is considered important because Deputy di Trabia is one of the leading lieutenants of former Premier Orlando. The Deputy's withdrawal is interpreted as meaning that Orlando will take the first opportunity to vote against the Cabinet.

Pilot Carried Across Ocean.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The steamer America arrived here this morning with Christopher Ahearne, the pilot who guided the ship out of Queenstown harbor, still aboard. Rough weather off the Irish coast prevented him from leaving the ship.

Alfonso --- Ibanez --- de Rivera

Author Declares King of Spain Is a "Wily and Crooked Monarch"

Like His Great Grandfather Ferdinand VII, the Ruler of Spain Is Held to Be "a Mixture of Craftiness, Treachery, Acuteness and Complete Irresponsibility, a Nature as Shifting as Quicksand."

ALFONSO XIII.
King of Spain.

SENOR IBANEZ, the foremost living Spanish author, whose "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" has been translated into nearly all languages, has taken the lead in the movement of European intellectuals who hope to overthrow the Military Directorate of Spain and possibly even the monarch himself.

The Post-Dispatch publishes herewith the second of a series of articles by Ibanez which are designed to explain the situation, expose the corruption now existing in high places, and declare the aims of the revolutionists.

The revolutionary movement in Spain has attained magnitude and importance within the last few weeks. It should be borne in mind that the distinguished author, already committed to the revolution, speaks as an advocate in these articles. He writes from his villa in France.

By V. BLASCO IBANEZ.

FOR a number of years the King of Spain enjoyed a mild sort of international popularity; that I am willing to concede. His youth, his free-and-easy manner of speaking and the light-hearted daring that in common with other young officers he displayed won him the sympathies and the liking of the crowd which saw him only from a distance and judged him only by appearances.

The kind of man we in Spain call "simpatico"—the "good fellow"—the man who is liked by his friends and acquaintances because he is "such a kid" may, in the wrong kind of situation for a "kid's" capabilities, prove to be a dangerous sort of person. Chronic adolescence may be permissible in certain walks of life, but in the ruler it is distinctly out of place.

The King of Spain is like the infant prodigies who attract attention early in life by their precocious development in some one direction. But if that development is not rounded out, such "infants" usually become unbearable as they grow older. What is worse, they may even become a menace to themselves and their friends. For the intelligence which flowered too soon, dries up or at least fails to develop further, yet the ex-prodigy cannot believe that the brilliance once admired in him has ceased to shine. He still claims to know more than the common herd and, hungering for the adulation he once received, conceives and carries out acts which indicate either a low grade of intelligence, or else positive lack of mental balance.

Alfonso XIII is descended from the Spanish line of the Bourbons, and he has inherited all the faults of his great-grandfather, Ferdinand VII who, in his youth was as much of a "good fellow" as his great-grandson. To gain some idea of how this sort of character affects the trend of history it is only necessary to reflect that the great Napoleon's downfall was due to Ferdinand's falsity or foolishness or both. What possessed Napoleon to undertake the disastrous Spanish campaign, historians have never ceased to wonder; and Napoleon himself, in the solitude of Saint Helena marvelled at this "greatest mistake of his life." But even a genius as clear-sighted as Napoleon Bonaparte may be misled by a character like that of Ferdinand, a mixture of craftiness, treachery, acuteness and complete irresponsibility, a nature as shifty as a quicksand. At the very moment when Ferdinand was of his own free will offering Napoleon the crown of Spain, and fairly going down on his knees to the Emperor to beg for the hand of Napoleon's niece in marriage, he was making the Spaniards believe that the French were holding him prisoner. It is easy enough to understand how Napoleon, judging the Spanish by the King they tolerated, thought he was dealing with a nation of demoralized cowards. If, today, one were to judge of the Spanish people by their King, one would be likely to make the same mistake.

Throughout his long and shameful career, Ferdinand VII, like the ill-fated Charles II of England "never said a foolish thing and never did a wise one." He, too in his youth had won the liking of his contemporaries by his quickness of speech and what passed for a ready wit. But when he had induced Louis XVIII of France to send him "a hundred thousand of Saint Louis' sons" to vanquish the Spanish liberals and put him back on the throne as absolute sovereign, he celebrated the achievement by setting up the Inquisition once more and shooting a large number of the liberals, who had surrendered, believing that the presence of the French army guaranted protection.

Toward his supporter, Ferdinand displayed not a whit more kindness nor loyalty. He made fun or friends and enemies indiscriminately. To his way of thinking there was room for only one person in Spain, the King. All the rest were nothing but a flock of sheep. He would stir up absolutists against liberals. but if the liberals chanced to gain the upper hand he did not hesitate to incite them to massacre the very individuals he had himself urged to fight on his behalf.

Such Spaniards as were not taken in by Ferdinand's play-acting made fun of this Roman Emperor with his Bourbon nose, and his pig's jowl. "Narizotas" they called him in the allusion to the former, "Dough Face" in allusion to the latter, the "blacks" or liberals having found the first nickname, and the "whites" or absolutists who did not stomach their King's treachery, calling him by the second. Yet, with inconceivable frivolity, Ferdinand would on occasion amuse himself at the palace by twanging his guitar and singing the words of the song that was to carry his nickname down through history.

"Narizotas, sour dough-face,
Blacks and whites are all the same to him."

And in truth many a white and many a black perished through the King's fiendish machinations. This was the likeable, the "simpatico" young fellow who had been as popular in his youth as his great-grandson, Alfonso XIII was a few years ago.

Comparison With the Kaiser.

The resemblance, once it was pointed out, became unfortunately more and more convincing. "He's Ferdinand VII all over again," some of his Cabinet ministers began saying, after close association with their sovereign for a period of years. "Ferdinand VII? He's Ferdinand Seven and a Half!" was the rejoinder of one of Spain's leading reactionaries one day.

Other comparisons, scarcely more pleasing, come to mind as one watches Alfonso. He has at times earned the nickname of "the Kaiser's understudy." Comically enough the old Emperor and the young King hate one another cordially, perhaps because they both had such a passion for the theatrical. Each laid claim to the same role, each wanted the center of the stage and all the limelight. Both of them seem animated by the same passionate love of attention, and by the same mania for taking a hand in everything, managing everything, making speeches about everything, and taking part in the most brilliant scenes that ingenuity can devise of their positions make possible. And both have the same passion for disguises. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Alfonso wears an Admiral's uniform; at 3 o'clock he must be dressed up as a Death's Head Hussar, and at 4 he appears in the regalia of the Lancers—and so on throughout every hour of the 24. But military uniforms do not provide enough variety. The King has been known to ride into the middle of the polo field dressed as a clown, and on occasion the costumes he has invented for himself have been so ludicrous that the illustrated papers of Madrid have been warned not to publish photographs of His Majesty. There are limits to what even a King may do with his dignity.

The hostility these two royal comedians feel for one another has found expression in various incidents recorded in the private annals of their respective courts. William II has always obstinately refused to approve of certain cronies and counselors of Alfonso's who cherished the project of annihilating the republic of Portugal and creating an Iberian empire—all for the laudable object of giving Ferdinand VII's great-grandson the opportunity to assume the airs of an Emperor.

Alfonso expressed his resentment of this lack of sympathy for his imperial role much as a Madrid street gamin might have done. His pompous cousin, the German Emperor, had given orders that no hired vehicles were to enter the grounds of the imperial palace at Berlin. That "good fellow," Alfonso, could think of no better joke to play every time he passed incognito through Berlin than to get into a hack at some street corner and drive to the palace. Out of regard for his royal person the palace guard had to disobey the Emperor's orders and admit him.

His Attitude in the Great War.

These "boyish" pranks through which Alfonso's private animosity toward William found expression would have been amusing enough if the war had not come along. But when it came, Ferdinand's great-grandson picked up something that looked very like his great grandfather's guitar and began in his turn humming the song of Bourbon selfishness, which knows neither friends nor enemies.

The mother of Alfonso XIII was an Austrian, and although in his frolicsome youth he had behaved like a frisky college boy and refused to obey his mother's orders, the Queen-mother had none the less in the course of time regained her influence over him. That influence represented a number of Austrian Archdukes who had lost their fortunes and the directors of a number of religious orders.

As skillful a comedian as the Ferdinand who deceived Napoleon, Louis XVII and the most fervid of his own partisans, Alfonso lied to the belligerents on both sides during four years, making each side believe that he was disposed to throw in his lot with it. But there is small doubt as to where his real sympathies lay.

Like his mother and her court, Alfonso XIII desired the victory of the Central Empires. In spite of his personal dislike of the Kaiser, he admired William's policies and thoroughly approved his absolutist ambitions. How much he must have sympathized with them is evident from his own recent acts such as the destruction of constitutional government and his approval of the military dictatorship.

Nevertheless Alfonso, who has never for a single moment ceased being the real master of Spain, chose to play the victim. His love of France, so he said, exposed him to the greatest dangers. He was surrounded with enemies, he complained.

"France has no friends in Spain except me and the rabble," he is reported to have said. And there were not lacking fools on both sides the frontier to applaud these cruelly ironic words. The rabble—that meant us, the writers, the teachers, the artists, in a word, the intellectuals of Spain, who from the very first hour of the war had flocked to the side of the Allies.

But in the eyes of Ferdinand's descendant the people of distinction in Spain were doubtless the ignorant and stupidly devout aristocracy and the reactionary and savage rural population who were heard to approve all the cruelties of the Germans.

"A Wily and Crooked Monarch."

I do not know Alfonso personally. I have never chosen to meet him. But for years I have been observing him with all the interest a novelist takes in a human document. and I know him perhaps better than those who have observed him from close-hand.

I never chose to meet Alfonso because I knew the day was coming when I would be forced to speak against him, and to tell the truth. What torture it was during the war not to be able to speak out! Not to be able to tell the Allies plainly in so many words what manner of man this was who called himself their only friend—with the "rabble!"

But of what use to make a scandal at such a time? Besides the men who were in control in France knew as well as I what sort of a "friend" Alfonso XIII was. If only they could publish certain notes and secret documents that are securely put away in their archives!

But the moment has come to speak at least of what may publicly be known—though so many people do not know it—and to cry out the truth, and assign now in the living present the place in history that he deserves to this wily and crooked monarch.

The Bourbons of Spain have always displayed, as I have been at some pains to point out on other occasions, a sort of diabolical skill in getting around all the obstacles in the way of their imposing their will on the nation. They always have known how to dissimulate even their most violent projects under an appearance of paternal good will. Ferdinand VII in his time was responsible for the shooting down of hundreds of liberals, but the wholesale executions he ordered were always "for the good of the country." And the people with the discrimination habitual to the populace at large believed him and looked upon him as a father.

But Alfonso's love of wielding absolute authority has not destroyed his sense of prudence. He always liked to appear to be acting at the instigation of the people around him. In case of mishap he is then always provided with a scapegoat, and while his pretended advisers are taking their punishment, he can pass himself off as completely innocent. It was this prudence which kept him from openly declaring his sympathy with Germany during the war. Up to the very last minute he refused to believe that the Allies could win. But he preferred not to risk offending neighbor France.

PERSIA PROTESTS SUDDEN HALT OF OPIUM CULTURE

Too Many Depend on Cultivation for Livelihood, Delegate Tells Conference at Geneva.

AMERICANS OUT TO GET RESULTS

Press for Action to Curb Drug Evil—Curtailment of Shipments Urged.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Nov. 18.—The nations cannot expect with one stroke of the pen to deprive multitudes of the Persian people of a livelihood by suppressing opium cultivation in Persia, declared Prince Arfa Ed Domleh of Persian before the international opium conference this afternoon. He said he favored the objects of the Hague opium convention, but pointed out that many thousands of Persians, now dependent upon this cultivation, must be assured of a means of existence. He would later bring forward concrete suggestions, he said.

Persia, China, Turkey and India are the countries which produce the world's opium supply.

Delegate Sugimura of Japan predicted an agreement would be heached here in Geneva. He told the conference that Japan's consumption of opium in Japan proper, in Formosa and in the Kwangtung leased territory was strictly limited to medical and scientific purposes.

An American offensive, launched at the very start, appears to have impressed the delegates to the conference that the United State is determined to do everything possible to bring about results from the gathering.

The conference has received numerous petitions. One, from the International Medical Association of China, comprising chiefly American and British physicians, declared that the habitual use of opium, morphine and heroin is unnecessary, deleterious and morally degrading. The association added the warning to physicians throughout the world that the greatest care should be exercised in prescribing narcotic drugs, as it might lead to a habit worse than the disease itself.

Various British organizations headed by the League of Nations Union told the conference that the British and Indian Governments should see to it that the exportation and importation of opium in connection with the Eastern colonies is reduced over a period of 10 years, until it is prohibited altogether. Exception is made for opium required for medical and scientific purposes.

Alluding to the failure of the preceding conference, which was limited to countries having Far Eastern colonies, to elaborate an effective system for the suppression of the opium traffic in the Far East, Representative Stephen G. Porter, head of the American delegation, made it clear that something must be done in this direction. He gave notice that the American delegation reserved the right to present some suggestions looking to regulation of the situation in the Far East. Thus, he paved the way for later introduction of some American plan of suppressing legalized opium smoking within a definite period of years.

Cripples Can Be Cared For.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I RESPECTFULLY ask that you give special attention to the following reply to a letter signed "Citizen" which occurred in a recent issue of the Post-Dispatch daily.

The Community Fund has repeatedly maintained that the presence of beggars on the streets of St. Louis is wholly unnecessary. The 50 charities and philanthropies which are members of the fund and are now federating their appeals for financial help for the year 1925, have ample facilities for caring for these unfortunates. We have, several times in the past, appealed to the citizens of St. Louis to co-operate with us in caring for beggars by referring them to the St. Louis Provident Association, which has nine district offices readily accessible to all parts of the city.

I think it is quite clear that the Community Fund lacks police power and therefore cannot assume the initiative in this matter. We will continue to maintain, however, that we will not deny help to any who may appeal to us regardless of race or creed.

We have also had the assurance of the Police Department that begging on the streets is unlawful. It is our understanding that all police districts have been instructed to see that beggars are not permitted to ply their trade and that where ever they may be found that they be ordered to desist. We believe the authorities are wholly aware of the Community Fund's ability to care for such people and that when beggars are found they will be referred to one of the district offices of the Provident Association where they may be assured of receiving sympathetic and constructive assistance.

Thank you for the hearty support the Post-Dispatch has rendered our cause in the past. Yours very truly,

HARRY B. WALLACE,
General Chairman, Community Fund.

Now for Good Roads!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PLEASE permit me to express my appreciation for the excellent support and publicity given Proposition 5, which was of untold value in conducting the campaign successfully and is greatly appreciated by myself and associates.

I know of nothing that has been done in the State for many years which will contribute to the welfare and prosperity of our great State as the adoption of Proposition 5. Very sincerely, Minority Representation in City and County.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOW that Amendment No. 3, which provided for the election of the Board of Aldermen by wards, instead of the city at large has been defeated, and No. 7, permitting the uniting of certain portions of St. Louis and St. Louis County has been adopted, there is something which should be brought forcibly before the voters of St. Louis and St. Louis County.

As the political situation is at present constituted, there is about 120,000 Democrats in St. Louis that are absolutely disenfranchised, insofar as civic affairs are concerned; they have no voice in the city government, cannot elect an Alderman in their own ward, even though their ward is Democratic.

Now, in St. Louis County the situation is also that out of 50,000 voters, 20,000 are Democratic, and I further understand that in each of the boroughs, townships, towns or communities, they have participations in their local affairs, in other wards, have complete local self-government. If they come into the city they will lose all this. Now, if the people consent to be absorbed in the city of St. Louis, in addition to the 120,000 Democrats in the city of St. Louis, being deprived of their right to participate in local affairs, there will in addition thereto be added about 20,000 Democrats in the county who at present actively assist in the election of Mayors, Constables, Board of Supervisors, etc.

Now, what is the remedy. I understand an election will be held to amend the City Charter, to provide for the amalgamation of St. Louis and St. Louis County and why cannot it be provided in this election, also an amendment to the City Charter for the two-house system of legislation, one of say about 10 members, being elected by the city at large and the other elected by the voters of each ward, which will permit minority representation.

It is wrong that the Democrats of the city should not have minority representation in the Board of Aldermen. They pay taxes, bear their proportion of the cost of city government and should have a voice in city legislation.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN ELECTIONS.

While we are discussing the policies of the President and the Congress, elected Nov. 4, when they come into power March 4 next, and are wondering what the new Congress will do when it comes into session a year from now, the new British Government, elected Oct. 29, is functioning and putting into effect the policies approved by the country.

The campaign and election in Great Britain, which occurred during our presidential campaign, emphasized the sharp contrast between British and American political methods.

Our campaign activities began months before the election in preparation for the party conventions which were held in June and July. After the conventions the campaign activities became intense, and were conducted until the day before the election in November. The administration we elected on Nov. 4 does not come into power until March 4, next year; unless a special session of Congress is called the new Congress does not meet until December next year, 13 months after the election. Meanwhile, the President in office at the time of the election and the existing Congress remain in power until March 4. The Congress which has been voted out of power holds office and meets for a short session in December. The lame ducks and dead ducks of Congress continue to vote on legislation. And the President, who might have been repudiated in November, holds executive power until March 4.

If the President in office had been repudiated Nov. 4 and the political complexion of the existing Congress had been completely changed, they (the administration) would remain the same, and the power to legislate would still be held by the repudiated President and Congress.

In Great Britain the MacDonald Government was repudiated by Parliament on Oct. 9. It appealed to the country and writs of election were issued immediately, and after a campaign of three weeks the new Government was in power and ready to put into effect the policies approved by the voters. Mr. MacDonald retired from the premiership and Mr. Baldwin succeeded him on Oct. 29.

The contrast in the matter of issues between British methods and our methods was not as sharp in the recent elections as it usually is. The MacDonald Government was repudiated on a trivial issue. The Singapore naval base figured in it. There was a co-operation between the liberals and the conservatives, and a "red" scare, as in our own campaign, was the decisive factor. Usually the British elections are decided on one issue, as in the election which brought the Labor party into power, when protection was the big issue voted upon by the people and decided promptly and conclusively.

In our presidential campaigns there are usually half a dozen or more issues, some of vital importance, but all jumbled together and more or less influencing the voters. In our recent election we had the protective tariff, corruption in office, the World Court, the League of Nations, the Ku Klux Klan, business generally, agricultural policies, labor questions and the red menace. Voters who were against high tariffs or in favor of the World Court or the League or against corruption, or any one of the major issues, might have been influenced to vote against their convictions on any one of the questions by their convictions on others. The public mind is invariably confused and both press and speakers are helpless to direct public thought in one vital direction. The force of any issue, no matter how big, is completely dissipated by the confusion of issues. Our elections, therefore, decide nothing except which party shall be in power.

When we do decide what party shall be in power, the policies of that party cannot be put in effect short of a year, unless a special session of Congress is called by the President.

In congressional elections every two years we only elect one-third of the Senate, six years being required to completely change the Senate's membership.

The British fare better than we do in elections and in the change of governmental administrations. They get what they vote for and get it quickly. We cannot vote for precisely what we want, and we get whatever we vote for a long time after, if at all.

Under our Constitution we cannot adopt British political or governmental methods, but we can at least, without impairing the principles of the Constitution or our form of government, get quicker results after our elections. We can change the dates when the new administration comes into office and the new Congress begins work.

CONDITIONS THAT BREED GANGS.

A Chicago University professor, Frederick M. Thrasher, having the keenness to sense the importance of city gangs, undertook a deliberate scientific survey of Chicago gangland. By living among gangs for months and forming intimate association with them he counted the astonishing number of 1313 gangs and what he calls clubs.

Some of these aggregations, he says, were found to be a basis of neighborhood spirit and progress, but most of them serve as cradles of crime. Some specialize in certain forms of crime, others in immoral relationships. There is in these groups, governed only by the law of the jungle and following natural leaders, a suggestion of primitive society, restored by the wilderness of slum streets and the magnitude of the city, which obscures identification.

The revival of a society of lawless gangs, confined almost entirely to city districts without open spaces and attractive homes, suggests the responsibility of society as a whole for the springing up of lawless gangs. What is there to attract the average youth in the ugly poor districts, with narrow, unwashed streets, but vice? Will the cities be obliged to purify and humanize their blighted areas to thwart the growth of criminal gangs?

A JOB FOR A NAPOLEON.

If the President intends to make the United States as dry as Kansas ever was, as asserted by a White House visitor, he can make a good beginning right at home. Washington, it is estimated by an Assistant District Attorney in the capital, has itself a population of 5000 bootleggers. This means that one out of every 100 persons one sees on the streets, in the hotels, or perhaps in the Capitol itself, is taking orders for the stuff that cheers.

If there are that many Constitution breakers in the shadow of the capitolline dome what might be the proportion in the border regions of Minnesota, Arizona or Florida? Mr. Coolidge may be a sincere Puritan. We must not expect him to be a Napoleon, with a bigger job of conquest on his hands than Russia. However, preservation of "things as they are," which is the Republican shibboleth, may keep the price of booze beyond the reach of the poor man. That is a standard believed to be quite satisfactory to a good many employers of labor who are concerned not with temperance but with production.

Well, if some adherents of the National Chamber of Commerce did not feel the sting of income tax publicity the law would have failed of its purpose.

LOW TEMPERATURES ON STREET CARS.

Eighty-five per cent of the St. Louis traveling public are passengers on the street cars. The heating of these vehicles is governed by an ordinance which permits the United Railways Co. to leave passengers without heat until the outside temperature falls to 40 degrees or less. This is an unreasonable ordinance, especially when it is considered that the frequent opening of doors subjects passengers to drafts and changes of temperature. These conditions not only make for discomfort in large numbers of persons, but are apt to greatly aggravate colds, rheumatic pains and other infirmities.

No one expects as much comfort or as high temperatures in street cars as in hotels or homes. But, with temperatures near freezing out of doors, fires should be kept burning in the cars, to insure reasonable comfort and safeguard the less hardy passengers from colds that may lead to impairment of health. The electrically heated cars once used here and still in use in some cities were comfortable. The present heating system is inadequate in very cold weather. But there is no excuse for keeping the passengers in discomfort on average wintry days.

The surprise alike of the Egan gangsters and of the public over the convictions attests to the cynical disbelief in successful prosecution of gangsters in St. Louis.

TO SOME OF THE LADIES.

THEY may talk till they're hoarse of the blessings of Peace;
They may pray on their knees that the cannon may cease;
But so long as the mails are delivered on time,
And the girls pen their notes, I can't think War's a crime.

There were Jane's, there were Anne's, there were Mary's and Kate's—
I'd enough for a harem while here in the States;
They sent sweaters and socks; they sent candy and cake
Of the kind that we used to say mother could bake.

I swore love to each girl and each vowed in return
That for me all the time her fond love true would burn;
By this time, I am sure, some of them must be wed,
But you see none by me to the altar were led.

There were times I felt blue in the mud of "Fair France,"
There were times when I sought all in vain "War's Romance,"
At such times I was richer than Croesus by far
With a note from a girl that I loved—through the war.

Here's a toast with such drinks as we have here today
To the men of all lands who helped finish the fray;
But a toast with a drink the amendment would bar
To the girls that I loved—by mail—during the war.

Sir: E. W. Howe, the Atchison Globe man, writes in the Saturday Evening Post: "I recall, when seven years old, my father grumbling to me that I had been a burden to him up to that time, and must work hard thereafter to atone for idleness. That sort of thing is scarce now."

Like other professional humorists, Mr. Howe seems unwilling to credit anyone else, even his own progenitor, with having a sense of humor. Fathers should be careful about making these grim jests in the hearing of sons who may grow up and write for the papers. We prefer to the Howe anecdote the familiar Coolidge story—how young Calvin asked his father for a cent to buy candy, and was refused, on the ground that it looked as if the Democrats were going to win in the presidential election then pending, and times might be hard. When the election resulted in a Republican victory, the elder Coolidge loosened up and Calvin got his candy.

Life in Missouri.

(Monroe County Appeal.)

Here is a hint to ministers who preach to empty pews: Install a barrel close to the pulpit and conduct a drawing after each service, giving one ticket to every individual who listens to the sermon, two tickets to all who contribute a dollar when the basket is passed and three additional tickets to all who can tell what the preacher was driving at in his discourse. If the barrel idea will cause traffic jams on Main street in midweek, when people are supposed to be at work, there is every reason to believe it would draw like a mustard plaster on the day when everybody is supposed to be idle.

DOINGS IN TASSELTOWN.

The east window of the postoffice is being boarded up today. It was decided to do this because the sun shines in there directly on the Sheriff's star at the place he likes to sit, and reflects right in the postmaster's face when he goes to distribute the mail.

The telephone line between Gooseankle and Bender was opened last Monday with ceremonies that did the occasion proud. The first message over the wire was sent by the Mayor of Bender to the Mayor of Gooseankle. It read: "What hath God wrought."

Some rascal stole the footboard that crossed Doodlebug Creek near the Toad Rock school house last Sunday, necessitating that our churchgoers jump part of their way to church. They left before the sermon was over for fear they'd be too tired to jump back.

Pete Sims has a pumpkin vine that is better than an alarm clock for waking him up. It climbed in his window this morning to a place just above his bed and dropped a pumpkin on his head.

THE OLD LOG SCHOOLHOUSE.

The shingles are warped and bleached gray by the sun,
The logs are worn shiny and bare,
The clay-colored mortar that holds them in one
Has crumbled away here and there.
The old crooked chimney of mud, sticks and stone,
The half-consumed log on the hearth,
Where the wicked red wasps and the mud-daubers drone
And the lady wren twitters her mirth.

On the crest of the slope shady sycamore trees
Like trusty old sentinels stand;
And tenderly touched by a wandering breeze
The tall grasses billow and bend;
The echoes of sweet childish laughter resound
Through the afternoon shadows that pass,
Though the voices are hushed 'neath some half-forgot mound
Or long lost in the day's urge and press.

Oh, why should a world-driven soul pause to yearn
For a structure so humble and small,
When the youth of today in an edifice learn
Resplendent in turret and hall?
'Tis the way of a heart to hark back to days gone,
Thus the charm of sweet memories still lures us on
To that spot we loved best as a child.

CULTURE OF MIND AND BODY.

From the Washington Post.

THE secretary of Princeton University authoritatively confirms what has been frequently been indicated and stated elsewhere that champion athletes are generally good students and often rank as the best in their classes. Thus the men at Princeton who have won letters in sports have a scholastic standing considerably above the average of the student body. By interesting coincidence, Gen. Atterbury, who has just been made vice president and is presently to become president of the Pennsylvania Railroad system, is quoted as testifying that his college education and cultural training proved of great benefit to him when he began work as an apprentice in a machine shop, enabling him to make in three years the progress that otherwise would have required four years. All this is perfectly natural and logical, the only wonder being that any intelligent persons have ever taken a contrary view. There is an intimate and vital relationship between mind and body, producing a correlation between and a coordination of their activities * * * a strong mind is never a handicap to a strong body, nor a strong body to a strong mind. The classic rule, mens sana in corpore sano, a sound mind in a sound body, is the true ideal, which experience proves to be possible, and toward which the efforts of education should always be directed.

GIRL SCOUTS AND COOKING.

From the New York Evening World.

THERE is a prevalent opinion, not without some justification, that the modern girl is drifting away from her traditional work as a home-maker. Predictions are freely made that another generation will witness the passing of the real home, with families merely having rooms in which to sleep, and with community kitchens to relieve the women of home work. It is gratifying to find that no such thought is entertained by the great organization of the Girl Scouts. Last year almost 4000 girls successfully passed their tests as cooks, and among the 55 merit badges that are awarded, the highest goes to those who prove themselves superior in domestic science. This is a splendid showing for the Girl Scouts, who are not only taking their members back to nature and strengthening their bodies through wholesome outdoor exercise, but are holding them to the old virtues for which no satisfactory substitute has been suggested.

CANADA'S THANKSGIVING.

From the Toronto Globe.

THANKSGIVING is a key that will open any door that we need to enter. Thanksgiving will accomplish more and carry us farther than any other attitude or act of our life.

Thanksgiving may seem, at first sight, more like inactivity than activity. It may seem to be passive rather than active; one of the weaker rather than the more vigorous of the virtues. Yet a little study shows it to be tremendously dynamic. It is a spiritual TNT. We may, therefore, welcome the special observance of a national Thanksgiving day, which both Canada and the United States have at different times in this autumnal month rich with memories and evidence of prosperous crops and successful harvesting. It is to be hoped that many may turn their thoughts to the deeper significance of Thanksgiving, and learn afresh how and why the true giving of thanks is so athrill with life and power.

MRS. JOHN T. DYER of the St. Regis apartments, will be hostess at the largest debutante party of the day, a tea at the St. Louis Woman's Club for her daughters, Misses Elizabeth and Willis Dyer. Miss Elizabeth, a bud of this season, will make her formal bow to society. The young woman was educated at Mary Institute, Chevy Chase at Washington, D. C., and Washington University.

Yellow and pink, a new color scheme this year, has been chosen for the occasion, with roses the predominating flower. The receiving line will stand in the library, which will be decorated with asparagus fern and yellow roses.

The debutante will wear a white crystal robe and her sister, white beaded crepe. Both will carry butterfly roses. Mrs. Dyer will be gowned in black embroidered chiffon and lace.

Fifteen of the debutantes, Misses Harriet Moore, Mildred North, Ruth Krause, Lois Engel, Mary Elizabeth Stewart, Margaret Eakin, Barbara Bay, Jane Whiteside, Catherine Hall, Betty Corby, Elizabeth Bemis, Jane Thompson, Mary Louise Cotter, Marjorie Little and Mary Howell Betts, have been invited to serve. About 100 members of the younger set have been invited for supper and dancing this evening.

Mrs. Mellon-Jones of the Guild Hall Apartments returned recently from a two months' trip East with her family. She spent the late summer at Spring Lake, N. J., where the Mellon family has a summer home, and later went to Northern Ontario, where her uncle has an estate.

Miss Grace Pollard Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Walsh of 5959 West Cabanne place, departed Sunday for Fort Worth, Tex., where she will be presented to society at the Assembly Ball, an exclusive function given each year in that city. Each year a few young women are chosen for the honor of making their debuts on that occasion, and the list is kept secret until the time of the party. Miss Walsh will be the guest during her fortnight's stay of Mr. Walsh's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Sanguinet.

Mr. and Mrs. David Curlender, the latter another daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walsh, who have been on a several months' honeymoon in Europe, have sailed from Genoa for Calcutta, where they will make their home for two years. Robert Walsh Jr., and his aunt, Miss Pollard of Boston, were at the pier at Genoa, and will return to Paris for the winter.

The wedding of Miss Frances Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Felps Stevens of 5530 Cabanne avenue, and Robert W. Hoffman will take place at 11 o'clock tomorrow in St. George's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Robert Hall Atchison officiating. Miss Dorothy Stevens, who is to be her sister's only attendant, will wear French blue crepe divine, with a hat to match, and an arm bouquet of roses. The bride will wear gray crepe back satin, the tunic of which is embroidered in gray and silver, and a gray picture hat to match. Her flowers will be pink roses and lilies of the valley, arranged in a shower bouquet. Following the ceremony, the families and bridal party will be guests at a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents. Robert Holtgrewe is to be best man and Edwin F. Stevens Jr., W. J. Taylor, Stewart Hoffman and Richard Kremer, ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman will occupy their new home, recently purchased, at 3505 Oakdale avenue, Pine Lawn, St. Louis County, after a wedding trip.

Mr. Hoffman, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hoffman of 4011 Greer avenue, is an alumnus of Illinois and Washington Universities, and a member of Sigma Chi.

Mrs. M. C. Myerson of 6601 Kingsbury boulevard is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Koppel, in Hopkinsville, Ky.

WILL MAKE DEBUT

MISS ELIZABETH DYER.

Miss Felecia Chisholm, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Edlward North Chisholm of 841 Westgate avenue, gave a bridge party and handkerchief shower yesterday afternoon for Miss Henriette de Penaloza, who is to be married Nov. 29. The guests were Misses Minerva Carr Nichols, Helen and Elaine Voight, Viola Bircher, Jessamine Rugg, Ruth Woerner, Clemence Adreon and Mmes. Harry R. Stocker and Francis Warner.

The Lenox Hall Alumnae Association will give a bridge party at Hotel Chase Friday, Nov. 28, for the benefit of their scholarship fund. Miss Frances M. Murray of 5553 Waterman avenue is in charge of arrangements.

The St. Louis Woman's Club announces a dinner and card party for the evening of Friday, Nov. 28. Mrs. Henry S. Butler is chairman of the committee.

Miss Mary Markley of New York, head of the Student Movement in the United Lutheran Church, will address an audience of young people at the Central Y. W. C. A. Wednesday evening, Nov. 19, at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Eric Tarrant Davis of Houston, Tex., formerly of Shanghai, China, who is the guest of friends in St. Louis, will give a unique program Friday morning, Nov. 21, in the Toy Theater. Mrs. Davis will be arrayed in oriental costume and give a talk on China. The debutantes who will serve as ushers will wear mandarin coats furnished by Mrs. Oscar Johnson, who will also furnish the oriental setting for the stage. Among the patronesses for this occasion are Mmes. Oscar Johnson, William Bitting, J. O. King, O. L. Garrison, John Dwight Filley, Robert W. Walsh, J. Harry Pohlman, J. F. Klein, Georgia Hough, Gerold O'Reily, Winthrop G. Chappell, Floyd Stewart, W. C. Younglove, Edward Love, Alexander Robertson, H. Murry French, Wirt Wright, O. L. Biebinger, Ivan Lee Holt, J. Clarke Coit, E. G. Scudder, W. K. Bixby, George A. Bass, Sam Shaver, J. W. Fristoe, J. G. P. Lewis, E. N. Beach, W. N. Claggett, Emmett P. North, Leo Moser, Clay E. Jordan, Fred Sanger, W. H. Burritt and Miss Emily Sproule.

The Apollo Club has announced its first concert of the season Tuesday evening, Nov. 25, at the Odeon. Miss Thelma Given of New York, violinist, will assist the club. The performance will begin at 8:30 o clock.

"TEN YEAR" CLUB HOLDS ITS FIRST REUNION HERE

Seven of Eight Surviving Members Answer "Here" at First Meeting.

The Grand-Arsenal corner of Tower Grove Park was the scene of a spirited and talkative gathering of young women at 2:30 p. m. yesterday when the roll of the "Ten Year" Club was called and seven of the eight surviving members answered "here."

They had kept a pledge, made on Nov. 17, 1914, that they would reassemble at the designated spot 10 years later to renew old acquaintance. Although the seven who appeared are all residents of St. Louis, it was the first time many of them had met since their parting in 1914.

There were nine in the club originally. They were all employed at a gown shop on South Grand avenue and the parting came when the establishment went out of business. One member, Mrs. W. H. Webb, now resides in Newark, N. J., and was unable to keep her appointment yesterday. She remembered the occasion, however, and wrote that she would be with the others "in spirit."

All but two of the others are now married. They are: Mrs. O. H. Von Kessler of 3157 Portis place; Mrs. J. H. Apperson, 3751 Potomac street; Mrs. W. Shubert, 6300 Alamo avenue; Mrs. A. Wagner, 4110 Humphrey street; Mrs. O. E. Friedrich, 4926 Wiesse-han street; Miss Theresa Beckmann, 3819 Fairview avenue, and Miss Clarice Storr, 3223A Meramec street.

A luncheon at Mission Inn and a renewal of the pledge to meet on the park bench again in another 10 years closed the festivities.

THOMAS I. KINSELLA DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME

Thomas I. Kinsella, 56 years old, for many years prominent in the affairs of the Forest Park Golf Club, died suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage at 11:25 p. m. yesterday at his home, 6025 Pershing avenue. He was one of the charter members of the golf club and had served four years as secretary and six years as a member of the board of directors of that organization, retiring a year ago. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, fourth degree, and of the Royal Arcanum.

Kinsella was a public accountant, with offices in the Syndicate Trust Building. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary A. Kinsella, and one son, J. Hixon Kinsella. There are two brothers, Frank E. and Daniel P. Kinsella, and two sisters, Mrs. S. D. Grattiaa and Miss Maurine Kinsella, all of St. Louis. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Filene Peace Prizes Awarded.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—In distributing the British Filene peace prizes at Kings College, Viscount Cecil yesterday applauded the Filene scheme as calculated to promote agreement among nations. He remarked that almost all of the 4700 British essays, submitted in the peace contest were in support of the League of Nations. He said that getting the intelligence of Europe to thinking about this subject was of itself of immense value.

FUNERAL SERVICES TODAY FOR MRS. JENNIE HOLBROOK

Former Wife of Millionaire Devoted Much Time to Improving Condition of Working Women.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jennie Holbrook, who died at the Delmonte Hotel early Sunday, will be held at Centenary Methodist Church, Sixteenth and Pine streets, at 2:30 p. m. today. Burial will be in Valhalla Cemetery.

Mrs. Holbrook's death followed a long illness from paralysis. She was 67 years old and had been confined to her room since June 1. She is survived by only one relative, a brother, Dr. James Foote of Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Holbrook was the former wife of Walter J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. She procured a divorce in June, 1908, so that he could marry a younger woman, Miss Jessie Purcell, his stenographer. At that time she was reported to have received an alimony settlement of $150,000.

Mrs. Holbrook was one of the founders of the Women's Christian Association, which was merged with the Y. W. C. A. in 1910, and for many years devoted much of her time and income to improving the condition of young working women of St. Louis.

NICHOLAS LAMB FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Funeral services for Nicholas Lamb, former president of the Lamb Construction Co., will be held tomorrow at All Saints' Church, with burial in Calvary Cemetery. Lamb died Sunday, following an attack of acute indigestion, at the home of his sister, Miss Margaret Lamb, 875 Sixty-sixth street, University City. He had been ill only a few hours.

He was a native of St. Louis and was educated at Christian Brothers' College. He was active in St. Louis County politics for several years and was a Colonel on the staff of former Gov. Hadley. He was 46 years old.

His widow and seven children survive. They live in San Antonio, Tex., and he recently visited them. The children are Nicholas, Mary Catherine, Thomas, Ann Frances, Margaret, John and Patrick.

RELIEF SOCIETY ANNIVERSARY

Ladies' Auxiliary of Jewish Organization to Meet Monday.

The St. Louis Ladies' Auxiliary Chapter of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society will celebrate its eighteenth anniversary next Monday with a dinner and reception at B'nai Amoona Temple, Academy and Vernon avenues.

Dr. C. D. Spivak, secretary of the society's sanatarium at Denver, Col., passing through St. Louis at the time, will be the principal speaker.

Hold Expenses Justified.

Gen. Patrick and Gen. Mitchell hold that the great sums spent at McCook Field are justifiable. They say that the air service engineers must keep up with progress in aeronautics. Manufacturers generally agree with that, and it's simply a question whether $20,000,000 is a justifiable sum for that purpose.

Some manufacturers say that McCook's work has been invaluable. They point out that the McCook Field handbook is a text book on aeronautics so excellent that in four years it hasn't had to be revised once. They say McCook is years ahead of the industry and that the industry ought to be permitted to catch up.

Others say McCook Field ought to be abolished; that the army doesn't need a huge experimental plant, with expensive buildings and fields such as are planned by Gen. Patrick. They hold the army ought to confine itself to an experimental laboratory, in or near Washington. It's a controversial question.

No Army Factory.

There's a similar question about the naval aircraft factory at Philadelphia. The Army has no aircraft factory and Army officers say that the Navy ought not to be permitted to have one, that it keeps prices up and hurts the industry generally. The Navy spends approximately $1,500,000 a year on its aircraft factory, but insists it does little or no manufacturing and keeps the factory only as an experimental station and storehouse. Still, it says it likes to have the factory because it is one manufacturing plant which can be relied upon.

The curse of the naval aircraft factory seems to be political. Whenever economy would dictate a cut in wages at the factory, or the laying off of a number of men, then tremendous political pressure is brought to bear upon the Navy. The economy has to be canceled because somebody's constituents wouldn't like the lay-off or the cut and some kind of election is near.

The squabbles over McCook Field and the naval aircraft factory simply make another example of the pulling this way and that that goes on between the two services because there is no defined aviation policy in the United States.

The next and last article of this series will deal with the controversy between officials who are for and against a united air service.

TO DECIDE IF TELEPHONE USERS MUST BEAR COST OF RADIO

Utilities Body Is Given Washington Company's Plea That Upkeep of WCAP Prevents Rate Cut.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The moot question as to the manner in which radio broadcasting shall be charged and paid for is involved in a controversy before the Federal Utilities Commission here. The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., local branch of the Bell system, has been cited to show cause why telephone rates in the District of Columbia should not be reduced. The company has replied that it cannot reduce rates and continue operating its powerful radio station—the one which has carried the voice of President Coolidge and other national orators to the far corners of the United States.

The commission is to be called upon therefore to decide whether the expense of broadcasting is a legitimate one for a public service corporation and whether this expense may properly be assessed against the general telephone subscribers regardless of whether they operate a radio receiving set or not.

The decision may be a two-edged one, for if the commission rules that the expense is legitimate and that broadcasting is a proper function of the telephone company, it may also decide that the company continue broadcasting at all times in the future as a part of its obligation to the public.

During its last fiscal year the experts of the commission have found that the Chesapeake and Potomac Co. earned a return of 8.21 per cent on its investment. The commission is said to consider that a 7 per cent earning rate is sufficient.

The Utilities Commission has not taken into consideration an item of $90.000 listed by the telephone company as the cost of operating its local radio station—WCAP. The company is arguing that the commission should so accept it.

HAMILTON'S HOME TO BE SAVED

Anonymous Donor Sends Title to the "Grange" to Society.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Hamilton Grange, once the home of Alexander Hamilton, is to be preserved as one of New York City's famous landmarks. The fate of the old mansion was decided yesterday when title to the property was given to the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, through the generosity of an anonymous donor.

Originally the Grange, built in 1801, stood on what is now One Hundred and Forty-third street, just west of Convent avenue. In front of the house were 13 trees planted by Hamilton to symbolize the 13 original states. In 1889 the uptown march of building threatened the home with destruction and it was given to St. Luke's parish and moved to its present location next to the church at Convent avenue and One Hundred and Forty-first street. For a time the parish used it as a chapel.

Wallace, Laborer, Speaks on "Giving"

My fourteen-year-old boy lost his mother when he was born. Since then, we've been living together—just the two of us.

Well, you know the way of a kid without a mother, and him not seein' his Pop much, because I was working every day from whistle to whistle.

Jimmy was runnin' wild a year ago; and I couldn't stop him. Then he got into trouble and was hauled down to the Juvenile Court. I was worried.

But somebody who cared, got ahold of Jimmy and started telling him things. They told him about this Boy Scout business; and they kept on telling him until he paid some attention.

Things are different now, friend. Jimmy is a different kind of kid than he would of been if nobody cared. Ain't it wonderful that some folks think of kids without mothers?

IDENTIFY SECOND BODY BURNED AFTER CRASH

Officers Find Daniel Driscoll Was Other Victim in Crash on County Road.

The second of two bodies found in the burned wreckage of an overturned automobile on Olive Street road, near Olivette, Sunday, was identified yesterday as that of Daniel Driscoll, 29, of 6302 Suburban avenue, University City. The other body, as told yesterday, was identified as that of John Stephenson, 50, of Leona and Maples avenue, University City.

Robert Lee of 5710 Chamberlain avenue, who was named as the owner of the car and as the man who extricated himself from the wreckage and ran away, surrendered to the Sheriff yesterday and was released on $5000 bond to answer any charge. The bond was signed by his father, H. Lee.

Dazed After Crash.

Lee said he was dazed when he left the scene, and later, when he regained his senses, and learned two men had been burned to death in the wreckage, he was too alarmed to surrender. Yesterday, however, his father appeared at Clayton to inquire about bond and his surrender followed.

The driver of the car, Richard Creegan, 7076 Allison avenue, who was arrested at the scene while wandering about dazedly, arranged his $7000 bond today and was released pending an inquest at Clayton Courthouse tonight.

He has told of meeting Lee, Stephenson and the man subsequently identified as Driscoll Saturday night and of driving to a resort at Creve Coeur Lake where they sad drinks. All were intoxicated, he said, when they started back for St. Louis. Creegan drove the car into another car and it overturned into a ditch, catching fire. Creegan and Lee escaped, but the other two burned to death.

Says Skulls Were Fractured.

Coroner Bracy, after an examination of the bodies of Stephenson and Driscoll, reported the skulls of both had been fractured. He is investigating to determine if the injuries were suffered in the wreck or elsewhere.

Identification of Driscoll was made by a brother, John, who said he had been missing from home for three days. The body was charred almost beyond recognition, but Creegan identified a photograph of Driscoll as that of the man who had been with Creegan, Lee and Stephenson.

RAILROADS CREDITED WITH 7 NEW RECORDS FOR 1924

These Cover Reported Car Movements, Cars Loaded; "No Shortage or Congestion."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Railroads of the nation thus far in 1924 have established seven records in the transportation of freight without car shortage or congestion, the car service division of the American Railway Association reported to that organization today, in semiannual session here.

Four records were set in October. In one day of that month 1,030,211 freight cars, laden and empty, were moved, constituting according to the report, "the greatest movement for any day in history."

In one week of October, 1,112,345 cars were loaded with revenue freight. This exceeded by 14,832 the previous record, made in 1923.

The greatest number of cars of grain and grain products ever loaded in a single week was 72,474—another October (1924) record. In this same month records were smashed in the loading of 422,890 cars of miscellaneous freight in a week and of 259,617 cars of merchandise and less-than-carload lots.

Covering the year from Jan. 1 to Oct. 25, there was "the greatest movement of commodities on record." The report discloses that exclusive of coal, coke and ore, which would add 26 per cent to the grand total, 31,700,789 cars were loaded, or 361,162 more than in 1923, which had topped previous high marks for freight transportation during a similar period.

"A seventh record was established in respect to the number of surplus freight cars and serviceable locomotives in storage when loading of revenue freight was in excess of 1,000,000 cars a week," the report continued. "At the same time, there was no car shortage or congestion due to railroad disability. Such congestion or accumulation as existed during the year was due to inability of consignees to unload cars promptly on arrival."

BORE WAY INTO DRUG STORE

Tools taken from the building in process of completion were used by burglars to bore their way into the Pershing-Belt Pharmacy, 5501 Pershing avenue, occupying one of the new stores in the building there, early yesterday.

They forced a transom in the basement and then bored holes through a door into the store. A filing cabinet was forced and from it $633 was taken. From the register $12 was taken. Goods valued at $165 also are missing.

Reports Theft of Pocketbook.

Frank Levin of 2839A Dayton street was robbed of his pocketbook containing a check for $150 at 10 a. m. yesterday by two men as he was walking in Webster avenue near Thomas street, he reported to police. Payment on the check has been stopped, Levin said.

Farmers Sustained Loss of $40,000,000,000.

KLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Nov. 18. r four years the farmers of country have sustained losses h can only be absorbed in their capital account, but they are now coming out of the depression, President Charles S. Barrett declared in his annual address here today before the National Farmers' Union.

A $40,000,000,000 loss was suffered by agriculture since 1920-21 and in a single year 1,200,000 farming people were driven from their homes, he declared. Those facts constitute the real reason for the exodus from farms and explain, he said, why many state and county officials have found it so difficult to collect taxes during the last four years and why there have been so many foreclosures.

DISPUTE OVER APARTMENT HOUSE TAKEN TO COURT

Owners of Lots at West Cabanne and Catalpa Sue to Set Aside Building Restrictions.

A suit to set aside restrictions forbidding the erection of apartment houses on West Cabanne place, has been filed in Circuit Court by Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Roemer, owners of a lot at West Cabanne and Catalpa avenue, on which they desire to erect such a structure.

The suit is directed against the West Cabanne Improvement Co., which originally owned the property, and five residents in the block who, the plaintiffs state, have objected to Roemer's plan. The petition argues that the invasion of apartment houses and stores in the general neighborhood have rendered the restrictions, drafted in 1906, no longer suitable and of benefit only to a few property owners.

West Cabanne place runs from 900 Hamilton avenue, west two blocks to Catalpa avenue. The individuals named as defendants in the suit are Thomas B. Hennings of No. 6049, William S. Gephart, No. 6015; George Kingsland, No. 6034; Frank W. Ives, No. 6005, and Robert C. Brooks, No. 6048.

Woman Felled and Robbed.

A negro who knocked Mrs. Margaret May, 56 years old, 1308 Webster avenue, to the sidewalk yesterday morning as she was walking in front of 2824 Easton avenue escaped with her pocketbook, containing $40.75.

Neuritis the Nerve-Wrecker

Those who have experienced the agony of a well developed case of neuritis know its baneful influence upon the entire nervous system. Many sufferers, tortured in mind and body and driven to despair by the ravages of this insidious disease, have finally sought relief through self-destruction.

The first indication of neuritis is usually a sharp cutting pain in the shoulder, neck, forearm, thigh or leg, sometimes accompanied by soreness in the muscles, stiffness in the joints or numbness in the hands or feet.

If you suffer from neuritis, don't experiment! Take Eopa Neuritis Tablets—a treatment that has proven its merit in hundreds of stubborn cases. Indorsed by many leading physicians. Guaranteed to be free from narcotics and coal-tar products. Price $1.00.

Sold in St. Louis by Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., and all other leading druggists. Boericke & Runyon Co., Mfrs., San Francisco.

ST. LOUISANS WILL ATTEND WATERWAY SESSION IN INDIANA

Senator Reed and Congressman Newton Will Be Among Speakers at Evansville Meeting.

More than 1500 waterway advocates, including many from St. Louis and Missouri, are expected to attend the national waterway development demonstration to be held at Evansville, Ind., Thursday, Friday and Saturday, under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley Association.

James E. Smith of St. Louis, president of the assocation, will preside at the opening session, at which Senator Reed of Missouri and Congressman Newton of St. Louis will speak. The purpose of the demonstration is to crystallize sentiment behind two bills which Congressman Newton is supporting in Congress, and which provides for completion of all waterway projects within five years.

Among the St. Louis delegates are W. Palmer Clarkson, president of the Chamber of Commerce; W. K. Kavanaugh, chairman of the Chamber's Waterways Committee; H. W. Geller, president, St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau; C. B. Foxe and Edward A. Faust.

Friday the delegates will inspect Ohio River Dam No. 47, now under construction above Evansville, and Saturday will be devoted to open discussion and the exchange of views and opinions.

NEGRO GIVEN FIVE YEARS FOR WORKING CONFIDENCE GAME

Complainant Says He Paid for Suit but Got Bundle of Excelsior.

Amos Scott, negro, 25 years old, of 2323 Market street, was given five years in the penitentiary by a jury in Circuit Judge Ittner's court yesterday for working a confidence game on another negro, Arthur B. Cooper of 4210 Cook avenue.

Cooper testified that Scott, representing himself as a porter for a clothing firm, promised to get him a suit and overcoat at half its usual price. He paid Scott $45 and was given a paper-wrapped bundle which later proved to contain nothing but excelsior.

FINDS HUSBAND DEAD IN BED

Edwin Meinert, 41 years old, of 4247 Gano avenue, a plater, was found dead in bed with an empty cup and a small package of poison beside him yesterday evening when his wife, Emma, returned from her work. She told police her husband had been out of employment eight weeks and was despondent. She had gone to work temporarily pending his efforts to find employment, she said.

A neighbor had talked with Meinert a half hour before the wife returned home but he had not mentioned his plans.

Back to Hand Loom Days

A custom-tailored Overcoat of homespun full silk lined—

$60

If there were enough sheep in the neighborhood, the hand looms hummed, and the men folk appeared in new clothes of homespun. Pure wool, quaint and charming color mixtures. But new clothes didn't go with each new season. Homespun was woven warm and to serve long. We have some homespun with all the old-time virtues. Hand fashioned into an Overcoat, with a full silk lining, it gives warmth enough for all the winter days.

RANCHERS READY FOR SIEGE IN LOS ANGELES WATER WAR

Governor Declines to Send Troops Requested by Sheriff; Spillway Gates Stay Open.

By the Associated Press.

LONE PINE, Inyo County, Cal., Nov. 18.—Owens Valley's "army of occupation" still was in undisputed possession of the Los Angeles aqueduct early today. No one had yet made any effort forcibly to eject the invaders or to close the gate through which they are causing the waters of the aqueduct to go to waste.

The approximately 100 men took turns standing guard all night. Searchlights swept back and forth over the hills unceasingly.

"I feel confident," said Mayor Cryer of Los Angeles, "that the peace officers of Inyo County, supplemented if necessary, by the forces of the State, will take care of the situation."

Sheriff Collins of Inyo County took a different view. After serving the raiders with a court order forbidding them to interfere with the Los Angeles water supply, and after seeing copies of the order tossed into the spillway, he telegraphed Gov. Richardson a second appeal for State troops. He said he and his deputies were "powerless to cope with the situation."

Collins' first request was denied by the Governor.

11 DISPENSARIES OPENED FOR ANTI-DIPHTHERIA TOXIN

Health Commissioner Announces Stations Will Administer Toxin Free to School Children.

The opening of 11 dispensary stations where anti-diphtheria toxin will be administered free to school children of the city was announced by Health Commissioner Starkloff yesterday. The stations, which are scattered throughout the city, will be opened next Wednesday, and doctors employed by the Health Department will give the treatments from 3 to 6 p. m. daily. The injections, it is said, are accompanied by virtually no discomfort or ill effects. Each patient will receive three injections, a week apart.

Dr. A. J. Smith, chief diagnostician for the city, declares the toxin to be an absolute preventive and urges all school children to take the treatments at the nearest station. The stations will be located in the police stations of the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Twelfth Districts, in the City Dispensary, Manchester and Vandeventer avenues; in room 3, at 4154 North Newstead avenue; at the office of Dr. R. N. Abel, Union boulevard and Harney avenue, and in room 28, Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

SIZE OF FAMILIES DISCUSSED

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Divergent views on the question of what part the cradles should play in the modern home have been expressed by the bench and bar, and by the church.

While Judge Cluer was declaring that "a family of three children is reasonable and a family of nine unreasonable," the Rev. T. Walker at Stratford told the church conference that "People who enter the married state with the deliberate intent of keeping the cradle out of the home should not be recognized among Christian people."

Premier Grabski to Handle Finances, Trugutt Vice President.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Nov. 18.—The Grabski Cabinet has been reconstructed with the radical leader, Stanislaus Trugutt, minister without portfolio, acting as Vice President. M. Trugutt will devote himself to political matters, prinicpally the improvement of conditions in the Eastern provinces, where there have been many bolshevik raids, leaving Premier Grabski free to handle financial and economic questions.

The other new ministers are M. Ratajski, Mayor of Posen, who takes the portfolio of Interior; M. Zychlinski, who becomes Minister of Justice, and M. Sokal, who takes the Labor portfolio. M. Sokal has been the Polish delegate to the Internatonal Labor Bureau at Geneva.

SEES WIDE USE OF AUTOS AS BOLSHEVISM CHECK IN U. S.

English Observer Says Motor Trips Go Long Way Toward Preventing Discontent.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Wide and, indeed, almost universal use of the motor car has proved for the United States the antidote for Bolshevism."

This is the impression brought back from his American visit by Lord Ashfield, chairman of the London underground railways.

"The motor car," he says in an interview, "has afforded the working people in the cities an opportunity of reaching the country, spending their leisure hours away from their ordinary surroundings along with their families and friends. It gives them something to which to look forward when their day's work is finished and goes a long way toward preventing discontent and unrest creeping in."

CONFERENCE OF GOVERNORS DISCUSSES AUTO ACCIDENTS

Indiana Executive Cites Estimate That 800 Will Be Killed at Grade Crossings this Year.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 18.—The conference of Governors of the United States, meeting here in sixteenth annual session began its concluding session today with Gov. Branch of Indiana and Gov. Cox of Massachusetts, reading with papers on prevention of grade crossing accidents and safe guarding the highways.

Gov. Branch said it had been estimated that 800 persons would be killed and more than 8000 injured in grade crossing accidents during 1924.

Gov. Branch said he would make recommendations to the next session of the Indiana legislature for a law regulating grade crossing traffic.

GERMAN SUGAR COMING IN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The American sugar market today was confronted with the prospect of competition with the German product when it was announced that 1500 tons of German refined sugar had been sold for December shipment to New York at a price of about 6 cents a pound, more than a cent below prevailing quotations in New York. No German refined sugar has been sold in this market for several years. Several weeks ago, however, American buyers obtained a substantial price concession on 7000 tons of German raw sugar, part of which will be shipped to refiners here.

With the European sugar crop estimated at almost 2,000,000 tons larger than last year, local sugar authorities today predicted that this market would encounter growing competition during the remainder of the season.

WHEN YOU ARE ALL EXCITED!

Baalmann's Gas-Tablets

offer you a way to immediate relief. Any form of excitement tends to shock the delicate nerves of the stomach, upsets the function of that organ and produces gas. Anger, fright, grief and worry—all have an evil effect upon the digestive system. For want of a better name, doctors term this condition "nervous dyspepsia."

Baalmann's Gas-Tablets are made especially for the relief of gas and stomach distress. They act in a safe, natural way upon the weakened stomach nerves and glands, gradually helping to restore them to normal strength and activity. When this is done you will no longer suffer from gas pains around the heart; from palpitation, smothering spells, rumbling noises, bloating, burning, sour taste or drowsiness after eating. You will be like other normal, healthy, happy people.

Baalmann's Gas-Tablets are for sale in St. Louis by Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., and other good druggists. J. Baalmann, Chemist, San Francisco. Get the genuine in the yellow package. Price $1. First dose usually affords quick relief.

ONE MAN WRITES: "I had the worst unruly hair any man ever wrestled with until I tried Stacomb. Now it stays in place and it was never healthier or in better condition."

Smooth, well-kept healthy hair is now so easy to have!

STRAGGLY, unkempt hair was once as nearly universal as the healthily smooth, neatly combed hair you see everywhere today.

Of course, well-dressed men realized then as well as now that nothing spoils the appearance so much as hair that is always out of place.

But what could they do?

Ordinary pomades only matted the hair and made it intolerably greasy. Water left their hair more unruly than ever. It dried the scalp and caused the hair to fall out. Then came Stacomb.

At last, a safe natural way to keep the hair in place

Men took to Stacomb eagerly—and now, wherever well-dressed men gather, you see well-kept, naturally glossy hair. In Stacomb they have found what they have always needed—an easy, safe way to keep the hair combed as they want it from morning until night.

Stacomb is actually beneficial to the dry scalp so prevalent today. Its healthful oils keep your scalp cleaner and healthier than ever before. Simply by giving your scalp just the right amount and kind of oil it needs, Stacomb keeps the hair smooth and in place.

Women, too, are enthusiastic about Stacomb. With this delicate, rose tinted cream they can keep their hair fashionably smooth and close to the head. They are finding it corrects the drying effect of the permanent wave and makes a marcel stay in longer.

Try Stacomb yourself. Use it freely. Any skin specialist will tell you it cannot possibly hurt the hair or scalp. Stacomb comes in two forms—the original light, velvety cream, and Liquid Stacomb. Both non-staining and non-greasy. At all drug and department stores.

Speaks on "Giving"

I'M a motorman.

Several times every day my street car carries me through the part of town that the city knows as "the slums."

It's a terrible place—the slums. You see a lot of people who wonder where their next meal is coming from. They have the problem of facing Winter without coal and tiding little babies over hot summer months without ice or milk.

I wish I was a writer and could tell you how tough it is for these people. All I can say is that it makes me think I'd be heartless if I didn't care.

But of course I see it; and you don't. I wonder if you'll take my word—and care.

DECLARES DOHENY 'MADE NATION SECURE'

Defense Attorney in Oil Lease Suit Says Honest Men Carried Out Plans.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 18.—The Government counsel has failed to show any loss to the Government through the operation of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil leases and contracts, it was argued here today by Frederick R. Kellogg, counsel for the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co. and Edward L. Doheny, in the Government suit against these interests to cancel the contracts. Kellogg was making arguments of law in what counsel believed would be the final session of the Federal suit which charges conspiracy to defraud.

If there has been a conspiracy the Government would not be entitled to cancel the leases and contracts unless it produced evidence to show that the Government suffered actual damages as a result of such conspiracy, Kellogg argued. He drew the distinction between a civil suit and a criminal action on charges of conspiracy. In a criminal action, he said, proof of the exercise of a fraudulent agreement was sufficient for judgment, but in the civil action proof of actual damage suffered through such conspiracy was necessary in addition to proof of the exercise of a conspiracy.

Defense arguments of fact were completed yesterday by Frank J. Hogan, who assailed the Government's charges that Doheny conspired with Albert F. Fall, then Secretary of the Interior, to gain control of the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserves and to that end "loaned" Fall $100,000.

Walter K. Tuller followed Hogan with defense arguments on the loan, submitting decisions in support of his proposition that only on the allegations contained in the plaintiff's bill could the Government's case stand or fall, and declaring that, regardless of whether the leases and contracts were wisely or unwisely granted, the prayer of the Government complaint could not be granted unless the charges of conspiracy and fraud were proven.

"In Regular Manner."

"Everything that was thought of, done or said in this matter was communicated and handled through the Navy Department. Everything was done in routine and regular manner through proper governmental channels. Does a conspiracy work in that way?" Tuller continued.

"The project itself was ordered by Edwin Denby and worked out by highest Government officials. All negotiations fere open to all interested parties and were and are part of the official Government files and were carried out by men whose honesty and integrity cannot be questioned. Does a conspiracy work in that way?"

The disclosure of details of the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, fuel oil storage base after the promulgation by the Navy Department involving orders on secrecy, Tuller declared, would have been next to treason and not compatible with the public welfare.

Defense of Doheny.

Tuller closed with an impassioned defense of Doheny and the naval officials with whom he negotiated. Declaring that as a result of their establishment of a great naval fuel oil base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, "American can sleep tonight secure from the danger of being overrun by a Mongol nation," he held up to scorn what he termed the villification of the men involved in the working out of the plan. They did what they did, he declared, "to save you and me and our country."

174 FLOGGINGS OF CONVICTS IN TEXAS SINCE JAN. 1

Abolition of 'Dark Cell' as Form of Punishment Responsible for Increase in Whippings.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 18.—The number of floggings legally administered in the Texas penitentiary system during the present year has broken all records, according to Prison Commissioner Walker Sayle, who announced yesterday that 174 men have been whipped since Jan. 1. There are about 3800 men in the penitentiary and on the farms, he said.

Abolition of the "dark cell," formerly a favorite punishment for obdurate prisoners, is responsible for the increase in whippings, Sayle said.

The "horse," a four-inch beam on which prisoners were compelled to sit for three hours without moving, was abolished by the prison authorities about two months ago, on the recommendation of physicians, Sayle said. A barrel now is used in place of the "horse." The prisoner is forced to stand on the barrel for three hours, or until he promises to "do the right thing."

Whippings, legalized by Texas statute, are given only under a written order from the prison commissioners and under the supervision of a prison physician.

Farmer and Wife Shot to Death.

By the Associated Press.

HALEYVILLE, Ala., Nov. 18.—Reports reached here today that Dcc Riddle, a farmer, and his wife, were found shot to death near the Riddle home, 15 miles north of Haleyville, in the neighborhood of Wolf Pen Church, yesterday. Authorities were endeavoring to determine whether Riddle shot his wife and then killed himself.

THE map tells the story. You can make the Gulf Coast trip first, continuing from Flomaton on the L. & N. main line to Florida, and returning North on any of the L. & N.'s perfectly-equipped all-steel through trains: The Southland, The Dixie Flyer, The Dixie Limited. Or you can visit Florida first and return via Pensacola and Flomaton, from the latter the short side trip is made to the other Gulf Coast points. The principal ones are shown on the map.

Diverse Routes to FLORIDA and
Gulf Coast Region

Never so warm as to be enervating; never so cold as to keep you indoors, the Gulf Coast is a favorite place to play! There are numerous splendid golf courses, as well as tennis courts; bridle paths; and fishing, sailing, hiking and hunting.

The Diverse Route plan of the L. & N. for visiting Florida, including the Gulf Coast from Mobile to New Orleans on the same trip, at slight additional cost, or including Pensacola at no extra cost, will be a feature of Southern travel this year.

The Gulf Coast offers so varied a list of attractions—equable climate, old-world atmosphere, modern hotels, beautiful scenery, all sports, truly hospitable people, cooking that is an epicuran delight;—that the list of visitors grows every season. And of course, there's New Orleans!

Visit the Gulf Coast this year. The diverse route plan makes it easy and very inexpensive. Let the undersigned give you full information and arrange your itinerary. Ask or write for descriptive literature.

ELGIN TAKES THE TIME FROM THE STARS AND PUTS IT IN YOUR POCKET

How Elgin puts the stars to work

SO far above us that the measure of their distance cannot be conceived in ordinary units, the stars blaze out. Always they have fascinated and mystified man. In ancient times he wove legends and myths about them. Now that he has come to know them better he makes them serve his daily life through astronomy, oldest of the sciences. As you shall see.

THE Elgin Time Observatory is the astronomer's work-shop—filled with all the curious modern instruments of this ancient science.

Here every night the Elgin astronomers watch and record the passage of the stars across the meridian.

For the orderly procession of the stars is the final and absolute measure of time—the celestial time-piece which none but an astronomer can read.

In the making and timing of a watch there must be constant reference to some time-standard. In the making of an Elgin—the professional timekeeper—this standard must be as exact as human knowledge and experience can make it.

So to the stars themselves Elgin goes for the precise time and the Elgin astronomer contributes star-time precision to every operation in the Elgin work-shops and timing laboratories.

The Elgin Observatory does more than furnish the precise time by which Elgin watches are made and regulated in the Elgin work-rooms.

Its influence—the ideal of accuracy for which it stands—makes itself felt in everything that Elgin does.

And the country over men and women are buying better and better watches than they ever did before. Watches that are professional timekeepers.

The new model—extra thin Elgin "Streamline"—17 Jewel—adjusted, in white or green engraved, or plain polished green, 14-Karat gold-filled case—$40. In attractive gift boxes.

For Dinner Tonight:

This enticing dish—favorite dinner of a world-famed restaurant.

College Inn Chicken a la King

Let Me Serve You —At Home, Tonight with this famous dish of a famous restaurant

—by the College Inn Chef

Ready-to-Use

No kitchen bother, no muss, no cooking. A home meal prepared in less than 5 minutes.

I want you to enjoy this world-famed dish, at home, tonight.

No work or trouble in preparing it.

And this luxury meal—for which the College Inn is remembered by travelers from all the world—will actually cost less than ordinary roast, steak, or chops.

Hotel cooked

Only the choicest meats of specially selected fowls are used. Fresh cultivated mushrooms — pimentos from Spain — richest cream.

These good things give it inimitable savor and richness. It is not ordinary, commercial "canned food."

An every-day economy

Special processes bring it to you at a cost less than commonplace foods.

At hotel or restaurant three portions would cost at least $2.50. Even if you could prepare it at home the cost would be three times what it is this way.

Serves 3 to 6

Just as it comes to you each can contains plenty for two—enough for three, served on toast.

Add half a can of peas and a bit of cream gravy and you have plenty for five or six.

Simply open the tin and serve. No planning, no kitchen work, no muss of cooking.

Tonight!

Delight the family, and yourself, with this dinner tonight! A supremely appetizing change from ordinary dishes.

$3,982,000 LOSS IN U. R. PLAN FOR NORTH AMERICAN

Holding Company Also Due to Lose Controlling Interest Under Reorganization Scheme.

The North American Co., which holds 181,000 shares of United Railways common stock which it acquired 20 years ago at $22 per share, will lose $3,982,000 and be divested of its controlling interest in the company under the provisions of the financial plan of reorganization, printed exclusively in the Post-Dispatch yesterday. There are 249,130 shares of common stock.

The North American Co. is holding company for a number of public utilities throughout the country, including the Union Electric Light & Power Co. and the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co.

For some time the North American Co. has carried its United Railways stock holdings on its books at $1 for the total. The loss, therefore, will not affect its present finincial status.

Its holdings in the United Railways other than the common stock include only the Lindell and Cass avenue bonds, totaling $3,114,000. It holds no preferred stock. The reorganization plan provides that these bonds shall be taken up.

Control of the new company will be vested in the present preferred stockholders and holders of the $9,790,000 issue of St. Louis Transit Co. bonds. Preferred shareholders will be permitted to exchange one share of their holdings for one and one-half shares of new common stock, with an additional payment of $12.50 per share. Transit bondholders, in addition to receiving $300 in cash and five and one-half shares of new preferred stock for each $1000 bond, will be permitted to subscribe for 10 shares of new common stock at $12.50 per share. This will account for a total common stock issue of 343,645 shares.

Such new stock as is not subscribed by the holders of present preferred stock and transit bonds will be offered to present holders of the common stock on the basis of one share and $12.50 for each new share. It is not regarded as likely at this time by the Reorganization Committee that this amount will be material.

TOWER'S TRUST CONVEYANCE NOT A WILL, COURT HOLDS

Estate Valued at $500,000 Gross to Be Administered as Though There Was No Will.

A trust conveyance executed in 1904 by the late George F. Tower Jr., is not to be considered as Tower's will, according to a decision of Judge Holtcamp in the Probate Court yesterday.

No will was found after Tower's death at his home, 27 Vandeventer place, July 26 last, and his son-in-law, Eugene Pettus, and the St. Louis Union Trust Co. were appointed administrators of his estate. Later a trust conveyance by which 20 years ago Tower sought to set aside his property in trust for the benefit of his wife and daughter was discovered among effects. It was brought into court to determine if it should be considered as a will.

Judge Holtcamp pointed out that Tower had not himself operated under the terms of the document he executed and ordered that the estate be administered as though there were no will.

Tower left an estate valued at $500,000 gross, consisting of the Tower Building, against which there is a mortgage; stock in the Tower Nut Products Co., of which he was president, and in the State National Bank. He also left a country home at Clarksville, Mo. The wife and daughter share equally in the estate under the Missouri law.

Fayro Actually Dissolves Fat

Reduce 2 to 4 pounds in a night with this wonderful hot springs home bath.

Doctors now prescribe Fayro baths.

Do you truly want a slender figure?

Do you really want to be rid of fat?

You can reduce weight if you will.

This has been proved by thousands. And not by gruelling exercise, not by fasting that robs of needed nourishment.

Mother Nature has long provided a way to reduce—the hot springs that dot the globe. These fountains of youth "boil you out," refresh, revitalize, and brace. They reduce weight for the thousands who have time to go to them.

We analyzed the waters of 22 of the most famous springs. Now we duplicate their active ingredients in Fayro.

When you drop Fayro in your bath you recreate the hot springs. This wonderful bath opens your pores, dissolves subsurface fat and forces you to sweat away pounds of surplus fat and body poisons. We guarantee a weight reduction of 2 to 4 pounds in every Fayro bath.

This new bath is now the habit of thousands—society matrons, business men and women, even doctors and nurses use it for its bracing and cleansing effects. It leaves your skin glowing and alive—you feel younger, better, brighter.

Prove Fayro yourself.

Every good druggist and toilet counter now has Fayro.

Buy a large $1.00 package. Read the enclosed booklet "Health and Open Pores." Start this new method of weight control tonight.

Let your scales tell the story. Your dealer has been authorized to refund your money if Fayro fails to reduce your weight 2 to 4 pounds in each bath.

Laboratory tests prove the value of Fayro as a solvent of fat. An 18 ounce piece of beef fat melted to 11⅛ ounces — a reduction of 38% — during nine hours immersion in Fayro and water solution. Fayro in your bath enters the pores, melts sub-surface fat and forces elimination by excessive perspiration.

TWO KILLED IN HOTEL FIRE IN ATLANTIC CITY

Several Persons Hurt; Pier Casino Damaged; Grange Exhibit Destroyed.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 18.—With two persons dead, fire which destroyed the Bothwell Hotel and its annex, formerly the Senator, last night, and for a time threatened many fine residences at this coast resort, burned itself out today. Only part of the walls of the hotel remain and the Casino, on the famous Steel Pier, was badly damaged. The loss is estimated at about $800,000.

James Bennett, 80 years old, of New York, died shortly after midnight as a result of injuries he received as she was being rescued. The body of a woman about 40 years old, was found in the hotel ruins today.

Capt. Charles McMenamis, fireman, rescued four persons, then was overcome by smoke, but was revived. Several others, mostly firemen, were hurt.

The cause of the fire has not been determined, but is thought to have resulted from a boiler explosion. Fire companies from nearby towns responded.

Only the fact that the wind sent sparks and burning embers out to sea saved Atlantic City from a worse fire. The usual sea breeze prevalent here, it is believed, would have made a clean sweep of many of the finest residences and a score of frame hotels which stood to the north of the fire.

Temperature of 15 degrees above zero and the cutting wind made the firemen's task difficult.

The exhibit of the National Grange, which is in convention in Atlantic City, with farmers and ranchers from many states attending, was destroyed. It was valued at $10,000.

FINED AND REPRIMANDED FOR BARRING SUBPENA SERVER

Manager Assessed $15 for Refusing to Allow Deputy Sheriff to Enter His Plant.

Philip Mayer, manager of the North American Electric Lamp Co., 1116 North Grand boulevard, was reprimanded and fined $15 for contempt of court by Circuit Judge Ittner yesterday because he refused a Deputy Sheriff to serve a subpena in his plant during business hours.

The deputy complained he visited the lamp plant with a subpena for Eugene Rauch, and was told by Mayer that employes could not be seen during business houres. When he returned at 4:30 p. m. he found that Rauch had not worked there for three days, the deputy said.

Mayor was summoned into court yesterday and lectured from the bench on the ethics of jury service. He paid the fine.

Engineer of Freight Engine Avoids Crash by Derailing.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—Bandits under Vidal Tenorio stopped a freight train on the Vera Cruz-Isthmus line yesterday, sacking the cars and afterward sending the locomotive against an approaching passenger train, according to press dispatches. A crash was avoided when the engineer drove back the passenger train while the crew successfully derailed the locomotive.

Wants Convict Chauffeurs Guarded

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 18.—David W. Peters, representative of Cole County in the next Legislature, and candidate for the speakership in the House, has announced that one of the first bills that he will introduce will be a measure prohibiting any convicts of the State penitentiary here from "stepping outside" of the prison walls, unless they are accompanied by a guard. Peters asserted that the measure would include a "definite provision" against convicts driving State automobiles unless a guard is in the car.

Mother!

Your Sick, Constipated Child Needs "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry Mother. Even a feverish, bilious or constipated child loves the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup." This gentle, harmless laxative never fails to sweeten the stomach and open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. It doesn't cramp or overact. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

ANXIOUS. — Write to the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass., regarding your ancestors.

ATA BOY—The book in question can be obtained at the Public Library. You can get the name of the author by looking through the index.

R. N. K.—The gold dollar dated 1851 is worth from $1.50 to $2.50; the one of the mint 1852 is worth from $1.50 to $2.50 and that of the mint 1859 is worth from $1.50 to $2.50.

9. 9. 9.—Make inquiry direct to the circulation department of the Post-Dispatch, or watch the "Business For Sale" advertisements in the Sunday Post-Dispatch each week.

READER.—Cream-colored spanish lace can be cleaned and made to look like new by rubbing it in dry flour; rub as if you were washing in water. Then take it outdoors and shake all the flour out; if not perfectly clean, repeat the rubbing in a little more clean flour. The flour must be thoroughly shaken from the lace, or the result will be far from satisfactory.

G. D. — When old oil paintings have become dark and cracked proceed as follows: Pour alcohol in a dish and put the picture over it, face downward. The fumes of the alcohol dissolve the paint of the picture, the fissures close up again and the color assumes a freshness which is surprising. Great caution is absolutely necessary, and one must look at the painting very often, otherwise it may happen that the colors will run together or even run off in drops.

T. J. J.—It is provided in the Constitution that each State shall appoint in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but no Senator or Representative or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be appointed an elector.

MRS. V.—Following is the recipe for green tomato pickle: Take 6 green tomatoes, 2 green peppers, 4 onions, all medium size; chop these quite fine and mix with 1 tablespoon of salt; let stand two hours, then drain; add 12 apples, chopped; 1¼ cups large seeded raisins, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons mustard seed, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 pint vinegar and 1 pint of water. Mix thoroughly and cook until the apples are clear.

COOK.—The following is a recipe for Thanksgiving pudding: Four cups of scalded milk, 1¼ cups of rolled crackers, 1 cup sugar, 4 eggs, 1-3 cup of melted butter, ½ grated nutmeg, 1 teaspoon salt and 1½ cups raisins. Pour milk over crackers and let stand until cool; add sugar, eggs slightly beaten, nutmeg, salt; add butter; parboil raisins until soft by cooking in boiling water to cover; seed and add to the mixture; turn into buttered pudding dish and bake slowly 2½ hours, stirring after first half hour to prevent raisins from settling; serve with brandy sauce.

ANXIOUS. — The first recorded attempt at transportation facilities of any kind in St. Louis was made in 1830, when an omnibus was secured and an attempt made to induce the people to ride in it, but it was not until 1845 that Erastus Wells and Calvin Case succeeded in establishing an omnibus line. The Jefferson avenue electric line was a cross-town road connecting the districts of Lafayette Park and the Fair Grounds. It was of marked convenience to residents in those sections of the city, and served as a feeder for several of the larger railway systems. It was owned and operated by a syndicate controlled by the four largest companies of the city. It was operated under a lease and was the last road to abandon mules and diminutive cars.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

INFORMATION.—Separation, no matter how long continued, does not have the legal effect of a divorce.

IGNORANCE.—You should have a lawyer draw your will and see that it is properly signed and witnessed.

E. L.—If he accepted half of the rent and you have offered him the other half, then he cannot put you out in five days. If he gave you notice to vacate, then you can move the furniture. If he sues you or makes any trouble, you should consult a lawyer.

MARY.—If you have filed a suit for possession of the premises, in the Justice of the Peace Court, you should not have any trouble in getting possession. However, this cannot be done in less than five days, under the law.

R. J. L. — Find out from your agent what the additional $5.20 was for. There may have been other items accruing later. If he testified falsely before the Justice of the Peace he can be prosecuted for perjury.

T. J.—The former wife probably can collect, but it depends on the terms of the policy. She should consult a lawyer. The law could not authorize them to change the beneficiary without the consent of the insured unless the policy provided for that.

REPUBLICAN. — The party in question has been convicted of a crime, and his civil rights can only be restored by a pardon from Governor. He would have to answer "yes" if asked whether he had ever been convicted of a crime.

MRS. E. B.—(1) Your stepson's insurance will be paid to the beneficiaries named in his policy. If his father died before he did, then the stepson could name some one else as a beneficiary of that one-half of the insurance. If he did not do so, then this would go to his (the stepson's) estate. (2) If your husband's insurance is made out to you as beneficiary when he dies then you will receive it all. It is not necessary for him to make a will unless he has some other property.

DUMB DORA.—(1) The wife and the child would each receive one-half of the estate. They could either keep up the payments on the house and lot or let them be foreclosed. (2) The money should go through the Probate Court in the usual way, if it really belonged to the man. The same thing is true of the contents of the safe deposit box. (3) The will described, without any witnesses, would not be legal. At least two attesting witnesses are required. (4) If his income is less than $1000 no return need be filed.

Use this Eveready 45-volt "B" Battery to save space

EVEREADY 45-volt "B" Battery No. 772 is designed for use on all sets having not more than four tubes using 90 volts. On this service it is most economical. Because of its vertical construction, it is also especially suited for use with the Radiola Super Heterodyne and other self-contained sets.

This battery contains the same three, powerful cells as the large, horizontal type. Three Fahnestock spring clips—giving 22½ and plus 45 volts. There is an Eveready Radio Battery for every radio use. Buy them from your dealer.

Olander Partly Regains Vision.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—An operation has partly restored the vision of Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, nearly blind for the past five years as a result of cataracts. The growths were removed from one eye yesterday by Dr. F. N. Bonine in Niles, Mich., and a second operation will be performed on the other soon. The first operation was successful, the surgeon said.

PRESBYTERY PERMITS FOSDICK TO HOLD PULPIT TILL MARCH

Motion that Baptist Clergyman Resign Immediately Defeated by Vote of 65 to 18.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Baptist minister, will sever all connections with the First Presbyterian Church March 1, next, it was decided at a meeting of the New York Presbytery yesterday. In the meantime he will remain at the church as special preacher.

The Presbytery took this action by accepting with only two dissenting votes the report of a special committee which transmitted the reply of the First Church congregation to the demand of the Presbyterian General Assembly that Fosdick either become affiliated with the Presbyterian Church or relinquish his pulpit.

A motion that Fosdick resign immediately was defeated by a vote of 65 to 18. Vigorous arguments marked the meeting and at one time a speaker remarked that "the action of the Presbytery seemed like persecution of Dr. Fosdick." He was told that "we are in no position to persecute Dr. Fosdick because he is not a member of the Presbyterian Church."

Dr. George Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, before the vote was taken, told the meeting that, "in my judgment whatever you recommend, if acceptable to you, will be accepted by the church. The church will not revolt, sulk or disintegrate. It will go with you."

DIVORCE AWARDED TO MRS. JUSTIN B. BRENNAN

Niece of Augustin J. Cicardi Also Granted Custody of Two Children.

Mrs. Annunciata de Voto Brennan, 1115 Louisville avenue, a niece of Augustin J. Cicardi, was granted a divorce from Justin B. Brennan, real estate operator of 5130 Cates avenue, yesterday and awarded the custody of their two children. A stipulation was entered into whereby property valued at $35,000 is placed in trust for the two children to return an income of $40 each per month for their support.

They were married Dec. 29, 1914, and separated June 9, 1923. Mrs. Brennan alleged indignities and Brennan did not contest the suit. She did not ask for alimony.

The children are Jeanne Rose, 9 years old, and Justin B. Jr., 6.

AMERICANS TO REVISE NICARAGUA'S BANKING LAWS

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 18.—President Martinez of Nicaragua has named Abram F. Lindberg of New York, an expert in Latin-American finances, and Dr. Jeremiah W. Jenks, American economist, to revise the banking and financial laws of Nicaragua. The experts are expected to reach here in December to begin work.

Lindberg formerly was Deputy Collector General of Customs in Nicaragua and from 1917 to 1920 financial agent of Nicaragua.

MURRAY HULBERT OF NEW YORK IS ELECTED A. A. U. PRESIDENT

Rubien Remains As Secretary Of Sports Body

Association Votes to Join All-American International Boxing Union.

RECORDS ACCEPTED

Disputed Marks of Charles Paddock and Louis Clarke Are Approved.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 18.—The Amateur Athletic Union at its closing session today elected Murray Hulbert of New York as president, to succeed William C. Prout of Boston; selected Pittsburg as the 1925 convention city and approved two sprinting records, one by Louis Clarke and the other by Charley Paddock, after a spirited controversy.

The disputed records accepted were a new American mark of 9 4-5 seconds for 100 yards indoors, made by Clarke at Baltimore last February, and a record-equaling performance of 9 3-5 seconds for 100 yards outdoors, by Paddock, in winning the national championship at West Orange, N. J., in September. Both represent world's records.

Committee Overruled.

Both marks were approved by a majority vote of the convention over the objection of the Record Committee, whose spokesman, Louis C. Goldsmith of Philadelphia, refused to approve either performance. The committee's objections were based in Clarke's case on the ground that one of the three timers showed 10 seconds, while in Paddock's case a quartering wind was said to have aided him. Preponderant testimony to the contrary, however, led to the convention's approval.

Paddock's record-equaling time of 20 4-5 seconds in winning the 220-yard national championship at West Orange also was approved.

Bids for the 1926 convention were put forward on behalf of Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

Besides the unanimous election of Mr. Hulbert as president, Frederick W. Rubien of New York was re-elected secretary-treasurer for the eleventh time. Other new officers are: First vice president, W. S. Haddock, Pittsburg; second vice president, A. A. Doonan, Atlanta; third vice president, C. P. Wendell, Omaha; fourth vice president, E. S. Ferris, Spokane, Wash.

New Boxing Federation.

Principal among the steps taken today to widen the A. A. U. field of activity was endorsement of plans to ally the organization with a newly formed boxing federation among North and South American nations. William H. Cuddy of Boston, chairman of the A. A. U. boxing committee and of the leading spirits in the new "all-American" ring proposal, advised the convention that he had already come to a tentative agreement with Dr. Carlos Gallegos of Buenos Aires, representative of five South American countries, for the first international amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the new body, to be held in New York next April. Canadian support to the move was pledged today by Dr. A. S. Lamb of the Dominion A. A. U.

Development of general recreational and playground work outlined by Murray Hulbert, reflected another avenue of A. A. U. progress, while national control was taken over two new branches of sports, squash handball and indoor baseball, the former at the request of the Southern Pacific Association and the latter on the motion of the Southern Association.

New District Created.

A new district association, consisting of the entire State of Florida, heretofore under the Southeastern Association, was admitted to membership in the A. A. U., bringing up to 23 the total of sectional branches. Formal admission of the new Michigan Association also was approved by constitutional amendment but the application of the Piedmont Association for admission was turned down.

The 137 record performances approved included 75 which will go in the books as new American records and 62 noteworthy performances. Twenty-one other marks were rejected or held over for further consideration, making a total of 158 considered.

The bulk of these performances, 98, were credited to men and women swimmers, while 39 were made in track and field competition. Women athletes figured in only three track marks, but accounted for a majority of the swimming figures, 52, as compared with 46 for the men.

Thirteen new American outdoor track and field records are featured by the 200-meter mark of 20 9-10 seconds, made by Jackson Scholz of the New York A. C. in the final Olympic tryouts at Cambridge, Mass., June 14, and the high jump record of 6 feet 8¼ inches by Harold Osborne of Illinois A. C., made at Urbana, Ill., May 27. Both of these performances also will stand as world records.

Perry Ranks Gophers First In Big Ten on Strength of Victory Over Illinois Team

Notre Dame Still Storms Along Clearly in the Lead of All Other Elevens — California May Develop Into Another of Smith's "Wonder Teams."

By Lawrence Perry.

(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Notre Dame still storms along clearly in the lead of all football elevens east of the Sierras. The South Benders have the will to victory and the means thereof.

In California the Berkley team stands out among a West coast outfits, and if the writer is not mistaken the Bears stand an excellent chance of developing into one of those well known and justly famous "wonder teams" that Andy Smith has turned out so frequently in recent years.

Of all the so-called big teams in the country Notre Dame and Leland Stanford have neither been tied nor defeated. From this fact one of two conclusions may be drawn—either excellence has prevailed upon the gridiron never before or else the general rule of play has trended toward mediocrity.

Relied on Strong Defense.

One might without hesitation accept the former conclusion were it not for the demonstration which Notre Dame has made and is still making of the ability of fine material, ably coached, to speed along to victory on high gear.

No, in a majority of cases—a sufficiently great majority to establish the fact—mediocrity prevails. Illinois, for instance, went along relying on a strong attack to discount defensive flaws. In the end she paid the penalty. Until the Princeton game Yale was nothing to brag about.

Dartmouth, on the other hand, is better than she has been in several years, but for some time back the Green has been well below her standard. Now she is just an average strong eleven. Rutgers on the contrary is high above her normal class, an exception to the rule.

Has No Brilliant Team.

The Big Ten boasts no brilliant eleven. No team of the Southern Conference has escaped defeat with games within or without the organization. Just the same, mediocrity does not prevail in Dixie. Never have there been so many teams playing football of quality so high.

The rankings follow:

EAST, first group: Yale, Dartmouth and Rutgers, bracketed. Second group: Pennsylvania, Lehigh, Army, Columbia, Princeton and Penn State.

WESTERN CONFERENCE: Minnesota (wherever the Gophers ranked last week or may rank next, and irrespective of games won and lost, their 20-to-7 defeat of Illinois entitled them this week to the head of the column), Chicago second. Then Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Ohio, Indiana, Purdue, Northwestern and Wisconsin.

PACIFIC COAST: California first, Stanford second.

SOUTH ATLANTIC: (Rated by William T. Christian, Richmond News-Leader), Navy, Georgetown, Washington and Lee, and Virginia in first group. Virginia Tech, Wakeforest, Maryland, Carolina, V. M. I., Carolina State, William and Mary, Roanoke, Davison, Trinity, George Washington, Johns Hopkins, Richmond, Hampden, Sydney, Catholic U., Galludet, St. Johns and Randolph Macon in second group.

Drake Placed on Top.

SOUTHERN: (Rated by Zip Newman, Birmingham News), Georgia, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Mississippi A. and M., Florida, Auburn, Louisiana, Kentucky, Sewanee, Tennessee, Mississippi.

SOUTHWEST: (Rated by Sam Pace), Baylor and Southern Methodist, bracketed for first. Texas A. and M., Arkansas, Rice, Texas, Christian and Oklahoma A. and M.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN CONFERENCE: (Rated by Les Goates, Salt Lake Desert News), Colorado U., Colorado Aggies, Utah U., Denver U., Utah Aggies, Montana State, Brigham Young U., Colorado College, Colorado Mines and Wyoming U.

MISSOURI VALLEY: (Rated by Frederick Ware, Omaha World-Herald), Drake, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa State, Grinnell, Kansas State, Kansas, Oklahoma, Washington.

Boxers Summoned After Short Bout

Fuente's Knockout of Fred Fulton in One Round Branded a Fake.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 18.—Fred Fulton, heavyweight prize fighter, who "took the count" after 35 seconds in the ring last night at Culver City, near here, with Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, was arrested today and rushed to the District Attorney's office for examination.

Fuente, Fred Winsor, manager for Fuente, and Jack Reddy, manager for Fulton, weer also summoned to the District Attorney's office today for questioning.

Virtually all the sporting editors of the Los Angeles newspapers have branded the alleged knockout a fake, while at the ringside last night storms of cushions were thrown by irate spectators and almost smothered principals, managers and seconds as they milled about the canvas following the end of the bout.

American Legion Post No. 46, at Culver City, owner of the arena there, announced that every possible effort would be made to investigate the affair.

Fuente, of Hermosillo, Sonora, Mexico, first came into the boxing limelight about 10 weeks ago when he passed under the managerial wing of Winsor after he had fought a few preliminary bouts in Mexico and Southern California.

In that period he has won seven fights on knockouts, not counting the affair of last night, besides taking a four-round decision from Floyd Johnson of Iowa.

The Mexican is 21 years old, stands 6 feet 2½ inches and weighs 190 pounds.

Last Night's Fights

CULVER CITY, Cal. — Tony Fuente, Mexican, knocked out Fred Fulton in first round.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Pal Moore of Memphis and Chicago was awarded the referee's decision over Pascal Colletti of New Orleans at end of their eight-round bout.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Jimmy Findley, Louisville, Ky., welterweight, outpointed Cowboy Padgett of Colorado in a 10-round bout, according to newspapermen at the ringside.

NEW ORLEANS.—Tommy Freeman, Hot Springs, Ark., welterweight, knocked out Al Knowles of New Orleans in the fourth of a scheduled 15-round bout.

PITTSBURG.—Harry Greb, middleweight boxing champion, was awarded a judge's decision over Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul light heavyweight, in a 10-round match. Greb's title was not involved. The weights were, Greb 169 and Delaney 173.

DETROIT.—Howard Mayberry, bantamweight champion of Canada, easily beat Joe Lucas, Detroit, 10 rounds. Babe Willard outpointed Joe McKean.

NEW YORK. — Solly Seaman, California, got decision over Frankie Ritchie, New York, 12 rounds. Spencer Gardner, Newport, R. I., got decision over Jackie Gordon, New York, 12 rounds.

260-Pound End Is Centenary's Outstanding Star

Cal Hubbard Bruises the Opposing Linemen—Will Appear Here Against Billikens.

That the Centenary College regular team, backfield and line, averages 210 pounds, is the outstanding feature of the report by Capt. Bill McKenzie of the St. Louis University squad who scouted the Southern Gentlemen's victory over Boston College last week. The famous Centre College star, Bo McMillin, who is coach of Centenary, brings his aggregation here Thanksgiving Day to battle the Billikens.

"It was one of the heaviest bone-crushing outfits I have ever seen," said the Blue and White leader. "They've got a 260-pound end, Cal Hubbard, built something on the order of Red Roberts, who is a tremendous asset to his team on both offense and defense. In the attack he almost heaves the defensive tackle out of the park when he takes him out. When the other side has the ball he shifts to defensive fullback.

"The line doesn't contain all the weight, either. The star backfield man, fullback Farrell, is a 203-pounder and a wonderful open field runner. Finnegan at left half, weighs 190 pounds and White, the right half, tips the scales at 180. Place, a splendid quarterback, is the lightest man on the squad. He weighs 170 pounds."

Few Substitutions.

McKenzie stated that Centenary deserved to win by two more touchdowns than the final score shows. On one occasion, Farrell, the ponderous fullback, broke away for a 45-yard run and unwittingly stepped out of bounds on Boston's 10-yard line, after which the ball was lost. Fumbles at crucial moments prevented the other touchdown and several opportunities for long gains, the scout said.

"You can get an idea of how hard they are," continued McKenzie, "when I tell you that they went through the whole game, which was certainly a hard one, without a single substitution except for White at halfback. This position was filled successively by three or four men. But the others stuck it out and while they didn't look fresh after the last period, they still had lots of stuff. Their bulk and condition is the undoing of most of their opponents."

The score of the game was 10 to 9. Boston College was a strong favorite to win after its 34-0 victory over Haskell and the 34-7 walloping it handed Marquette whose defeat of Navy was one of the first big upsets of the year. Centenary's victory avenges the defeat it got last year at Boston when it lost out by a close score.

The Southern Gentlemen, which name, by the way, is emblazoned across their jerseys, have this season beaten Butler College, which is exceptionally strong, and many Southern teams. They missed a goal after touchdown and lost, 7-6, to the hefty Tennessee Medics, who enjoy a high rating in the South.

Billikens Plan Rally.

Great preparations are being mad at the Grand boulevard school to concentrate student and alumni enthusiasm toward winning the Turkey day attraction. For tomorrow an automobile parade is scheduled for the afternoon as soon as the early classes are over. The caravan will tour the city and advertise the rally which is tentatively set for the same evening. It will be held either in the quadrangle at Grand and Pine or the athletic field on Laclede avenue. Bonfires, yells and speeches, interspersed with band music, are on the night's program. At least one more rally will be held before the game.

Coach Savage hopes to start scrimmage tomorrow against the Centenary formations and will continue the rough work for the remainder of the week. The first three days of next week will be devoted to dummy scrimmage.

The Billikens are in A-1 condition and undoubtedly Capt. McKenzie will once more head his henchmen, after being on the sidelines injured for two weeks.

Afternoon Games Saturday for High Teams Unlikely

St. Louis U. High to Meet Benld at 2 P. M., Forcing League to Play in Morning.

By Dent McSkimming,

There is little probability that the High School League doubleheader next Saturday will be changed from morning to afternoon, although Ben H. Barr, secretary-treasurer of the league, is making an effort to obtain the use of the park in the afternoon.

St. Louis University High School has scheduled a game with Benld (Ill.) High at the University Field at 2 p. m. Tickets have been printed for this game and there is little likelihood that a change can be made.

Saturday afternoon this week is considered a very desirable time for scheduling a high-school game since there is but one college game, that between Washington U. and Oklahoma, at Francis Field. The afternoon game at Grand and Laclede should help replenish the athletic association treasury of the school that competes at that time.

Both St. Louis U. High and Benld are undefeated and each is regarded one of the strongest prep school teams in the St. Louis district. The Billiken Juniors held Soldan to a scoreless tie several weeks ago.

Soldan Plays Yeatman.

While is it hardly likely that Yeatman will be able to halt Soldan's triumphant march, Saturday, there still remains a possibility of a real championship fight in the final game when Soldan meets Cleveland, the Saturday after Thanksgiving day. In order to make this possible, Cleveland, as yet undefeated, must win from McKinley.

Assuming that both Soldan and Cleveland win Saturday (and there is little reason to believe that either will be tripped up) the final clash of the season between Coach Cook's team and Bert Fenega's eleven would assume a genuine title atmosphere.

Cleveland Shows Strength.

Cleveland looms as a really formidable eleven because of its remarkable defense strength. Cleveland has lost only one game this season, dropping the opening contest to Kirkwood, 22 to 6. Since that time, only 6 points have been scored against the South Side team, a touchdown by Yeatman. Against Central, the eleven which all but whipped Soldan, Cleveland looked at all times superior and was not scored upon. Principia was held to a scoreless tie and Soldan beat out the same team, 10 to 0.

Comparative scores would seem to indicate that Soldan and Cleveland are well matched.

Mack Gives Five Players and Cash For Coast Star

Catcher Cochrane Comes to Mackmen—Receiver Hit .338 in 99 Games.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—With purchase from the Portland, Ore., team of Gordon S. Cochrane, one of the leading catchers of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Americans, said today that he would have a star battery from the minor leagues, as well as a number of other promising youngsters to send in to action at the start of the major league season next spring.

Mack said he was figuring on Cochrane and Groves, the southpaw pitching ace, for whom he was reported to have paid the Baltimore club of the International League $106,000 at the close of last season, developing into a great battery.

The Portland club received five players, Burns and Hasty, pitchers; Riconda, infielder; Shirling, outfielder, and Rowland, a catcher, and a cash consideration reported to have been $50,000 for Cochrane.

Thomas Turner, president of the Portland club, who yesterday closed the deal with Manager Mack, said that Cochrane was one of the greatest catchers he had ever seen work. "He has more natural ability than any backstop in the major leagues today," said Turner.

In the 99 games he played with the Pacific Coast team last season, Cochrane batted for an average of .338.

BOND THREW PASS IN YALE-PRINCETON GAME

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—The forward pass which led to a touchdown in the Yale game at Princeton last Saturday was thrown by R. W. (Ducky) Pond, it was stated by Capt. Lovejoy today. An argument had arisen among students as to whether Kline or Pond threw the pass. Newspaper accounts differed, even the Yale News, crediting the throw to Kline.

Many students had backed their claims with cash and some of those who stood by Pond offered odds as high as 100 to 1. The players were numbered.

The stadium, seating over 70,000 persons, is already sold out and thousands will view the struggle from the surrounding hills. This is the case every year, even though one of the teams may be known to be weaker than the other. This year, however, because of the fact both Stanford and Cal- a have been unbeaten, there sual interest and the game ttle beyond doubt the coast ence championship. Walter has announced his intention essing the game and the country will be interested to what this noted critic will say about the brand of l played on the coast as red with that in other sections of the country.

lifornia a Rebuilt Team.

California and Stanford are nted by very good teams. nia's prospects at the beginning f the season were not the due to an unusual loss of material, but Coach Andy and his able assistants, have lly developed a team which hown constant improvement ery game and the statement n made by members of the g staff that the Bears are good a team as they were ar, if not better, and their tends to bear out that statement.

Stanford started the season with a large percentage of varsity players on hand. The early dope on Stanford featured such extravagant expressions as "wonderful material," "giant tackles," "all star backfield" and numerous other over-optimistic statements which were entirely unwarranted. From last year's team, which was defeated by California, Stanford lost two great guards, and two of the regular backfield and by injury, one of the regular ends.

Nevers, of whom much was expected, was crippled in the preliminary practice and played his first game a little over a week ago. His injury handicapped him to such an extent and he has missed so much needed practice that he looks to be very little if any better than the men who have been playing the fullback position during his absence from the lineup. And the so-called "all star backfield" has proved to be just an ordinary good set of backs, hardly the equal of last year's quartet when Nevers was at his best.

The line, with the two veteran guards and a veteran end out does not look any stronger than last year's line, although Shipley and Johnston at the tackles and Capt. Lawson at end should show improvement over last year. Man for man, the two teams look about equal.

Both Teams Kick Well.

California is stronger in some positions and Stanford has the best men in others. Both teams kick and handle punts about equally well and both teams have been giving their punters plenty of time to get off their kicks, and they have been getting down the field well to prevent run-backs. Last season Nevers did the punting for Stanford and did unusually well, but due to his injury and lack of practice the punting this year will probably be done by Cleaveland, who has been punting consistently, although for no great distances. Both teams use nearly the same offensive formations, their style of game is somewhat similar and both teams have triple threat men in the back field. Both teams are good at line bucking, end running and forward passing and both teams have always shown a very strong defense. Stanford has not handled the ball as cleanly as has California and her backs have had a bad tendency to fumble.

California has played a harder schedule of games, due to the cancellation of the Stanford-Southern California game and the experience in those hard games has made veterans of her new men who have developed into better players than was expected early in the season. There appears to be very little difference in the weights of the two teams.

Field Goal May Win.

California, unbeaten for several years, is likely to have more confidence and be more cool-headed and less nervous than Stanford.

On the whole, the two teams look to be so evenly matched that the breaks of the game are likely to decide the winner and it may be that neither team will be able to gain consistently enough to score a touchdown, and a field goal might very easily decide the game. If this is the case, Stanford chances are very good, because I believe that in Cuddeback, Stanford has a field-goal kicker superior to any on the California team, and if Cuddebeck should have to be replaced, Capt. Lawson can place-kick nearly as well.

It should be a great game.

Hoff, Norweigan Athletic Star, May Appear in America

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 18.

CHARLES HOFF, star Norwegian athlete, characterized by Lawson Robertson, head coach of the American Olympic team, as the "greatest all around athlete in the world," may be added to the list of foreign stars invading the United States during the winter season. F. W. Rubien, secretary of the A. A. U., said yesterday Hoff was expected to come here soon to compete in leading indoor events.

Hoff holds the present world's pole vault record and also is a star middle distance runner. A stone bruise on his heel prevented him from competing in his favorite event at the Olympics but in spite of this injury he entered the 400 and 800 meter runs and reached the final in both.

Stecher Meets Evko Tonight in Wrestling Bout

Vadalfi Meets Martinson of Chicago, and Daviscourt Faces Hills at Coliseum.

John Evko, who won a three-fall match from Wladek Zbyszko last week in spite of the fact that he was entirely outclassed in skill and strength, will meet Joe Stecher, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion in the feature event of Tom Pack's program at the Coliseum this evening.

In the semiwindup, Oreste Vadalfi of Italy will meet Paul Martinson of Chicago in a match limited to one hour.

Dick Daviscourt and George Hills, heavyweight title contenders, will meet in the opening bout.

Unless Stecher shows a shocking reversal of form, he should experience no great difficulty in pinning Evko's shoulders to the mat.

Vadalfi in two bouts here has shown that he knows a great deal about the wrestling game and he has most unusual strength.

The first bout will start at 8:30 o'clock.

EPINARD ARRIVES AT HOME SAFE AND SOUND

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Epinard yesterday returned to Trainer Gene Leigh's stables at Maisons Laffitte safe and sound, but after vicissitudes which caused the famous French race horse at first to be admitted to France and treated as an undesirable.

The coolness of the French was not due to Epinard's defeats in the United States, but to the fact that when he arrived at Cherbourg from Southampton he encountered the customs red tape. It was discovered that his papers provided for his arrival from the United States instead of from Great Britain, consequently Epinard had to be taken back to Folkstone where new papers were drawn up. He finally landed at Boulogne and continued on to Maisons Laffitte.

"First Ten" Ranking Hurt Carl Fischer, Tilden Says

Player Listed Seventh Among Country's Best in 1923 Fell Down in 1924 Because He Tried Too Hard to Play Up to His Reputation, Champion Writes.

By William T. Tilden,
World's Champion Tennis Champion.

I have had so many requests to discuss the strange showing of Carl Fischer, the 1923 seventh ranking player, who in 1924 went into tennis oblivion, that I am seizing this chance to offer some impressions of Fischer's season and the outlook for his future.

He started the year badly during the college matches in which he participated. His early season tournaments produced no matches worthy of his ranking. Then he went to Wimbledon, where he was eliminated in crushing manner by F. Gordon Lowe of England. Following his return to the United States his play resulted in a series of defeats, but with flashes of form that gave promise of a return to his 1923 game.

The tournament season closed, to all intents and purposes, with the national championship, but Fischer did not drop tennis. He settled down to serious practice, and his earnest efforts were speedily rewarded. In the club championship of the Cynwyd Club he defeated Wallace F. Johnson, the first time he has done so in tournament play.

I was impressed by the fact it was Fischer's controlled speed that won the match.

Fischer's 1924 Record.

Now for the cause and effect in Fischer's strange record:

I believe that his retrogression was due primarily to overconscientiousness, to his effort to uphold his position as a "first-ten" player, coupled with a lack of analytic study of his game to discover what was wrong.

Fischer found early in the year that he was playing atrocious tennis, and worried about it, not from conceit, but from the fact that, since he was a first-ten player, he should play tennis worthy of this ranking. Not to do so only made him worse. He did not stop to ask himself wherein he was falling down. He kept right on trying to play his best game every match, yet never could attain it.

Fischer has the besetting sin of many good tennis players. He plays largely by instinct and when things start going wrong his instinct fails to point out his error. He does not analyze his game while he is on the court.

Once off it, Fischer is apt to know what was wrong, yet he is equally apt to go out and do the same thing in his next match.

Rushes His Opponent.

He overhit all year. He has always been prone to try to rush an opponent off his feet to the end that often he succeeded in rushing himself out of the match. This year the tendency became almost a habit. Time and again he threw aways matches by attempting impossible tactics in the pinch and breaking down in a series of errors.

I believe the many defeats of this last year taught Fischer his lesson. It it certain that during the latter part of the year, particularly against Jonson in the fall tournament, Fischer showed a new patience that I never dreamed he had.

If he will only be willing to steady down and wait his chance before attempting to launch his irresistible attack, I believe he will regain all his lost ground and more. He has a fine game, sound, aggressive shots, and plenty of experience if he will only profit by them.

Predicts Comeback.

My suggestion is, watch Fischer in 1925. This coming year will tell the story. Either he will be back among the leaders and once more one of the most promising young players in the United States or he will be lost in the ruck and must be counted as one of those numerous flash-in-the-pan players who come up for a year and then are lost forever.

I expect to see Fischer back among the leaders. Good luck to his comeback.

Johnson to Pitch 'Opening' for His Oakland Club

Transfer of Pacific Coast League Franchise Scheduled for Today.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 18.—Transfer of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League to Walter Johnson and George Weiss is scheduled for today, following close of negotiations for the club yesterday. While J. Cal Ewing, retiring owner, would not make known the sale price, the consideration is believed to be in the neighborhood of $385,000.

As a result of his acquisition of an interest in the Oakland club, Weiss is expected to sell his New Haven (Eastern League) franchise.

Johnson, who pitched the Washington team to the pennant in the American League in 1924, will manage the Oakland club and is expected to appear frequently in the box. It is understood he plans to hurl in three opening-day engagements.

With the club, Johnson and Weiss will get a fine plant, which it is proposed to name "Walter Johnson Field." Ewing will definitely retire from baseball along with Del Howard, his fellow owner on a smaller scale and fellow conferee in the negotiations just concluded. In the 35 years that the Oakland magnate has been in baseball he has owned the San Francisco and Oakland clubs and has been president of the league. Howard, former big leaguer, is also former manager of the San Francisco and Oakland clubs. Ivan Howard, his brother, is present skipper of the Oaks.

Griffith to Consent to Loss of Johnson.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Word that Walter Johnson practically had completed a deal for part ownership of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League was received by Washington fandom with regret that he would not pitch the Senators to victory again, mingled with sincere good wishes for him in his enterprise.

President Griffith and Manager Harris agreed that Johnson's departure would mean a big loss to the Washington team, but for the veteran star's sake they were glad he was about to realize his hope.

Griffith, when informed of the developments, reiterated that he would not stand in Johnson's way, but would give him his release from the Washington team if he received assurance that the pitcher "had negotiated a successful deal in Oakland." He explained that before Johnson could be a free agent, all other major league clubs would have to waive their claim to him, but, as his club will be the one suffering the "real loss," he did "not suppose that any of the other owners will stand in his way."

Harris, who piloted the Senators to their first championship, admitted he couldn't "smile much when I think of losing a pitcher who won 23 games for us last year," although he was "glad for Walter's sake."

ALL TICKETS FOR MISSOURI-KANSAS GAME ARE SOLD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 18. — The Missouri-Kansas game tickets are sold.

A week of work at filling applications ended at Rothwell Gymnasium last night and this morning the 14,000 pasteboards available were either in the mails to out-of-town subscribers or were being distributed to local applicants. The advance applications exhausted the supply.

Applications for approximately 13,000 seats were filled here, while 1000 tickets were sent to K. U.

All orders and remittances for tickets received today were mailed back to the applicants. Student ticket-holders, stadium subscribers, alumni and former students were given preference in the filling of applications, but in spite of the preferential rights and limitation imposed upon number of tickets to each applicant, many of the holders of first preference were allotted seats at the ends of the field.

GREEN WILL REPLACE GRANGE IN OHIO TILT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—Harold "Red" Grange, famous Illinois halfback, out of football for the remainder of the season, will resume his meteoric athletic career when the basketball season rolls around next month.

Grange plans to try out for the University of Illinois varsity five and also figures on being a candidate for the baseball team. If Grange can throw baseballs like he heaves forward passes, he may land a job pitching for the Illini, George Huff, director of athletics, indicated last night.

Green, a substitute halfback, will take Grange's place against Ohio in the final football game of the present season at Champaign next Saturday.

Yale Top-Heavy Favorite to Win Over Harvard

Elevens Will Meet at New Haven Saturday in 43rd Game Between Schools.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Two rival gridiron elevens, Yale and Harvard, will meet in the Yale Bowl in New Haven Saturday in the forty-third renewal of this event of the college world.

As in 1923, Yale will be the top-heavy favorite but the wave of upsets which has swept over the East may keep the Elis from their goal. By all the "dope" the Bull Dog should win.

Princeton crushed Harvard, 34 to 0, and Yale, in turn defeated Princeton, 10 to 0. Yale boasts an undefeated team while Harvard has lost to Dartmouth and Brown. But past records mean little when the Blue and the Crimson mix on the gridiron as all preceding games are regarded as practice tilts for the one final thrust of the season.

Scott a Kicking Star.

Win or lose, Yale's array of backfield performers will cause trouble for the Harvard forward line. In Scott the Elis have a toe artist with the accuracy of a Brickley and the nerve of a Mahan.

In Kline and Cottle, the Blue boasts of a pair of booters who can hold their own against any similar pair in the East. And in "Ducky" Pond Yale has one of the most elusive runners in the game. Bench and Bunnell are a shifty pair of field generals, both capable of running the team and carrying the ball, accurate in handling punts and equally efficient in running them back. Allen and Cutler complete the array of the Blue backfield.

Harvard's Backfield.

The first Crimson backfield quartet of Howe, Maher, Sayles and Stafford, cannot be compared with the Yale first string quartet. The Harvard stars proved inefficient in handling the pigskin against Brown last Saturday and similar slips of this nature against Yale will prove disastrous to the Crimson cause if the Elis follow the ball as closely as they did in the Princeton and Army games.

But, irrespective of the merits of the two rivals, this game is always one which attracts widespread interest. It will be a fighting Bull Dog, eager to keep its record clean, against a determined Crimson, foe, reluctant to allow a coveted prize to slip from its grasp without a struggle.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—The twenty-third casualty in Harvard's football squad of 46 players became known today when Alfred H. Stafford, 'varsity quarterback, appeared on the street wearing a slipper and carrying a cane. A heavy bench fell on Stafford's foot yesterday and crushed two toes. It is said he hopes to be able to get in the Yale game Saturday in spite of the injury.

BILLIARD NOTES

John Layton's National Three-Cushion Billiard League match with Clarence Jackson of Buffalo, scheduled to be played here tomorrow, has been postponed to Friday, according to word received today from John Scanlan, of Milwaukee, secretary of the league. Jackson's illness caused a general postponement of his schedule.

Charles C. Peterson will open a handicap balkline match with Ed Wills, city amateur champion, this evening at Peterson's billiard theater. Blocks of 300 to 150 points will be played tonight, tomorrow and Thursday. The match will start at 8 p. m.

PITTSBURG. — Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia won two Three-Cushion League matches from William Greenwood of this city yesterday. The scores were 50 to 45 in 58 innings and 50 to 28 in 41 innings. Greenwood had high runs of seven and six while Reiselt's best was a five.

Frank Keith, representing Pesch's rooms, defeated Harry Kirk of Krembs' parlors, 40 to 38, in 66 innings in a City Three-Cushion League championship match last night. Tonight John Layton will oppose Allen Hall at Corse's rooms on Delmar boulevard.

Springfield Sells Hurler.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 18.—Leo Rossi, star southpaw, with the local Western Association club, and who has been a holdout since the close of the 1923 season, was sold last night to the Lincoln club of the Western League, according to an announcement.

Many Seek Place On Boxing Body

California Governor Deluged With Applications for Jobs Created by New Law.

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 18.—As a result of the passage of an initiative measure permitting 12-round boxing contests in California, Gov. Friend W. Richardson has been deluged with applications for the position of Boxing Commissioner created by the new law. In regard to the task before him the Governor said:

"My ignorance regarding prize fighting is being dispelled rapidly and I appear to be living in an atmosphere of 12-round bouts. Would-be Boxing Commissioners to the right of me, to the left of me and in front of me, volley and thunder of their patriotic zeal to serve this great sport. I asked one applicant why he wanted to serve on a commission without pay. He went out for the count and at the end of 10 seconds was still speechless and hugging the ropes.

"A political rounder who wanted to be a commissioner was more honest. He admitted to a friend that he needed the fresh air of the fight arena and the inspiration of gate receipts. Several of the cauliflower ear type have insisted that their head ornaments should be good for a commission.

"The law softly calls the commission an athletic one, the newspaper boys call it a boxing commission, but really it is a prize-fight commission. I am trying to attend to important State business, but I am at times groggy from encounters with patriotic disciples of the alleged manly art who uppercut me with appeals for commissionerships, feint at me for secretaryships and sidestep for positions as referees."

Lombard Star Injured.

By the Associated Press.

GALESBURG, Ill., Nov. 18.—Earl Murphy, halfback on the Lombard College football team, was taken to a local hospital here yesterday suffering with internal injuries received in a game with Lake Forest Saturday. Murphy was carried from the field after five minutes of playing, but the injury was not considered serious until yesterday, when he was ordered to the hospital.

Chilhowee Sold.

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 18.—Sale of Chilhowee, 3-year-old son of Ballot and Bourbon Lass by J. C. and A. B. Gallaher of Lexington, to the Swingalong Stable, owned by Samuel M. Newman of New York, was confirmed here today by the Gallaher brothers. The reported price is $75,000.

Soldan Seconds Win.

The Soldan High second football team defeated the Principia Academy seconds, 7 to 0, in a game on the Academy field yesterday afternoon. Soldan scored in the second quarter. A blocked kick caused the ball to roll behind the Principia goal line where Lichty, the Soldan end, fell on it for a touchdown. Landray kicked the goal for the extra point.

RAILS LEAD NEW UPTURN IN STOCKS

Sales Again Exceed 2,000,000-Share Mark—Industrials Active Too—Sterling Is Strong.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Seldom do all financial markets move in unison, but except for early weakness in wheat and some irregularity in bonds, all departments persistently moved forward today. Stocks presented the new familiar spectacle of advancing prices all along the line in a heavy volume of trading, the turnover again topping the 2,000,000 share mark after failing to come up to this figure in recent days. Railroad shares were the undisputed leaders, but industrials also came in for a good share of attention, with buying of Steel Common setting the pace. Profit-taking was, of course, in evidence and there continued to be a shifting about of speculative interest, but these operations did not affect the trend. At the close gains of good-sized fractions were liberally sprinkled with 1 and 2 point advances and the day brought the usual batch of new high records among both railroads and industrials. Bonds were active, with gilt-edged descriptions and Liberties easier. There was also profit-taking in one or two speculative rails in which the 'good news' is out, but the trend in these groups was higher. Call money renewed at 2 per cent, but advanced to 2½ per cent towards the end of the second hour.

Rails Again Prominent.

"The bull movement in railroad shares appears to be getting a fresh start after a temporary breathing spell which followed the first post-election rush. Meanwhile shareholders are beginning to get proofs that they will share in the improved earning power of the carriers, now that the possibility of adverse legislation is faint. Already preparations are being made by some roads to resume or inaugurate dividends; others are likely to follow. Within a few days earnings statements for the month of October will appear, and they promise to make encouraging reading. From now until the beginning of the new year, however, car loadings will show the usual seasonal decline. Loadings for the week ended Nov. 8, as reported today, fell below the 1,000,000 car mark and show a decrease of 78,926 as compared with those of the previous week. In addition to the seasonal decline, which this year has come later than usual, the week in question contained two holidays.

Sterling Recovers.

"With sterling in the lead the foreign exchanges came back strongly. The movement appeared to be a resumption of the trend which has persisted with only occasional interruptions since the British elections. It has for its basis the improved outlook for European trade and the extension of financial aid to Europe by American capital. Purely speculative operations are, of course, factors in the day-to-day fluctuations and at the same time a number of cross currents are continually flowing through the exchange stream which makes it difficult to account for many individual movements. Sterling at $4.52½ was up 1½ cents on the day. French francs gained ⅜ of a point at 5.24 cents and other continentals were moderately higher. Dutch guilders came within a point of par and Swedish currency was quoted above par. Danish, on the other hand, was slightly easier despite announcement of a coming loan here for the purpose of stabilizing the exchange. South Americans were notably higher on the agricultural export position. A fair volume of business was transacted in most departments and a goodly number of commercial bills were easily absorbed.

"Wheat was under pressure from profit-taking sales and selling on reports of rain in Argentina. The undertone remained strong, however, with most traders clinging to the view that the world position of the cereal means higher prices. After dropping 2 cents, May deliveries rallied and closed unchanged at $1.60⅝. Talk of poor husking returns brought pronounced strength into the corn market. May corn closed 3⅛ cents higher at $1.22⅜.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The upward movement on the Stock Exchange gained fresh momentum today under the lead of the railroad shares, which were in excited demand at top figures.

The revival of the buying in the rails swept high-grade and non-dividend-paying stocks as well in many instances to the highest levels reported in several years. The gains amounted to 2, 3 and even more points. The broad list of industrial stocks at the same time were bid up sharply, and speculative syndicates were encouraged to resume operations in the stocks of the specialty type. Many stocks which had hung fire under the lead of profit taking the past few days went ahead briskly again.

Southern Railway common at 75, where it was 1½ points above its previous high; Missouri Pacific preferred above 69, New York Central across 119, St. Louis & San Francisco at a new top figure around 53, B. & O. above 70 for the first time this year, and Rock Island, New Haven and Texas & Pacific back to their previous high points, were some of the main features in the railway share movement. Still another was the advance of 1½ to 3 points in the Northwestern group—Great Northern preferred, Chicago Northwestern, Northern Pacific and the St. Paul preferred.

There was a sharp advance in Davison Chemical.

The Bond Market.

Renewed selling of U. S. Government loans, heaviness in high-grade rails and industrials and strength in high-yielding bonds were the features of today's bond market.

The selling of Libertys carried quotations down below anything recorded since the present movement began. Treasury 4¼s, which less than a month ago made a high record of 107.7, were quoted today practically down $2 on the $100. The fourth 4¼s Libertys sold below 102 and the second 4¼s below 101. There was no real weakness in the savings bank mortgages. The market was simply inclined to sag while good investment bonds such as American Smelting and Refining 5s were substantially lower.

The last named, for instance, which made a high record for all time at 97⅞, 10 days ago was off nearly 2 points. This is simply an illustration of the shifting that is going on to high-yielding securities, both stocks and bonds.

Today's market had many points of strength. Seaboard Air Line issues were prominent. All the New Haven issues were strong again. St. Louis San Francisco incomes ran up a point above 75. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s were in demand above 76. New York Central convertible 6s went along with New York Central stocks. Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5s touched for the first time this year. There was moderate improvement in the St. Pauls. M. K. T. adjustments were very active but failed to make much gain.

Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7s, however, continued their advance and among the sugars Eastern Cuba Sugar 7½s were higher. Buying kept up in International Mercantile Marine 6s. Good inquiry was reported for convertible oil bonds. There were no important changes in the foreign list. The German 7s were steady just below 95.

Today's new offerings included $11,500,000 Cleveland Electric Illuminating general 5s at par, $800,000 City of Greensboro, N. C., 4¾ serial bonds to yield from 4 to 4.50 per cent, $6,000,000 State of Missouri 4 per cent road bonds at 99, and $950,000 San Antonio joint stock land 5 per cent farm loan to yield 4.80 to the optional redemption date in 1934.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange today were 2,302,400 shares, compared with 1,703,100 yesterday, 2,471,500 a week ago, 918,600 a year ago and 1,187,600 two years ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 263,788,399 shares, compared with 204,826,800 a year ago and 241,272,100 two years ago.

Following is a list of today's individual sales in 100-share lots on the Stock Exchange, with the high, low and closing prices and the net changes for the day. Symbols—†Partly stock. ††Partly extra. ††Payable in preferred stock. †Ex-dividend. •Increase. —Decrease. ....Unchanged:

Owing to the revival of activity on the exchange, total sales exceeding 2,300,000 shares, the market was late in closing and individual stock sales were not available for publication in this edition today.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 18.—Wheat ruled lower and corn steady on the exchange today. The 1⅛ to 2¼d lower Liverpool close, lower Buenos Aires and comment on United States visible were factors in wheat. Offerings of corn were light.

Strength of corn featured the late trade and brought wheat back to near previous close.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was 1c lower and hard ½c lower. Demand was slow. Cash corn was 1 to 3c higher on old and ½c to 1½c up on new. Demand was good. Oats were steady to ½c lower.

The weather and increased demand for feeding were factors in the corn trade.

Wheat futures ranged off more than a cent in the early trade, following lower opening. Liverpool in afternoon cable was 1⅛d to 2¼d lower. Corn futures here sold off fractionally.

December wheat opened at $1.52¼; May wheat, $1.59; July wheat, $1.38¼ and May corn, $1.18½.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 2515 cars of wheat, compared with 2429 last year. Minneapolis received 177 cars, Duluth 1164 and Winnipeg 1174.

Local wheat receipts, which were 845,700 bushels, compared with 95,625 last year, included 32 cars local and 33 through. Corn receipts, which were 35,000 bushels, compared with 63,700 last year included 22 cars local and 3 through. Oats receipts, which were 74,000 bushels, compared with 128,000 last year included 24 cars local and 13 through. Hay receipts were 9 cars local and 12 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were heavier than a year ago; corn receipts were lighter than a year ago; oats receipts were heavier than a year ago; wheat shipments were heavier than a year ago; corn shipments were lighter than a year ago; oats shipments were heavier than a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 2,398,000 bushels, compared with 942,000 last year; corn receipts were 548,000 bushels, compared with 911,000 last year; oats receipts were 781,000 bushels, compared with 623,000 last year; wheat shipments were 3,177,000 bushels, compared with 1,207,000 last year; corn shipments were 319,000 bushels, compared with 320,000 last year; oats shipments were 534,000 bushels, compared with 529,000 last year.

Clearances were 889,000 bushels of wheat, 2000 bushels of oats, 26,000 barrels of flour and 1,006,000 bushels of wheat and flour.

The slump in Liverpool morning as a result of big stocks weak opening in Buenos Aires to pressure in the local wheat pit as the opening bell sounded this Much of the pressure came from that have identified with the buying recently. This led to the belief the were beginning to lose confidence to the excessive supplies at terminal kets. An increase of over 5,000,000 els in the Canadian visible supply the total to within less than bushels of last year's supply ing to the speculative holder Longs gave the market support break and locals who had early selling were scared into and this led to some recovery Primary receipts are falling off strengthens the belief that the visible ply is nearing the peak. However authorities think the total will high as 110,000,000 bushels before ducing movement sets in. Seaboard vices told of unsatisfactory bids abroad and local shippers as well port brokers reported a lull in the from the seaboard.

Corn acted rather choppy, but the ing power was of the best on all sions. Local selling caused an dip, but these sellers rushed to cover commission houses absorbed the the pit. A good demand for cash spot was reported, the yellow variety ceiving the most attention and for that kind were a full half cent than yesterday. The country is very little corn, despite the high prevailing. The cold wave is creased consumption on the farms.

Oats dipped at the opening, but market met with influential house buying and prices rallied in the trading. Northwest houses changed hedges from December to May at ference. Shipping demand was light.

Provisions started lower under selling caused by the weakness in market. Packing interests were ers on the setback and the market sponded to this demand with higher in the later trading. Cash demand lard has improved.

Warren Foundry & Pipe Co.
First Mortgage 6½s
Dated Oct. 1, 1924 Due October 1, 1939

This old established and leading Company in the cast iron pipe industry is to be consolidated with Empire Steel and Iron Company, and will acquire the entire capital stock and funded debt of Wharton and Northern Railroad Company. Over 90% of the stock of the Consolidated Company will be owned by Replogle Steel Company. This issue is secured by first mortgage on a complete industrial unit—raw material to finished product—and has behind it assets equivalent to $2780 for each $1000 bond. The output of the Company goes principally to municipalities in the Eastern States and enjoys a steadily increasing demand. The long record of earnings and the lease of part of the properties assure ample income for the protection of principal and interest requirements of these bonds.

HIGHER PRICE RANGE TO NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Reactions in the cotton market yesterday were followed by rallies in todays' early dealings.

Liverpool made a steadier showing than apparently was expected by some of yesterday's sellers while there also was some bullish comment on the news from the local goods market, and after opening unchanged to nine points higher, the market soon showed net gains of 23 to 27 points.

Covering by some of yesterday's sellers and moderate trade buying on the advance, carried January contracts up to 24.50c before the end of the first half hour. Rumors of a private crop report estimating the crop at 12,540,000 bales were not definitely confirmed, but probably helped the tone of the early market.

Private estimates of a crop of 12,540,000 bales and ginnings to Nov. 14, of 10,920,000 bales helped the tone of the market of the mid-morning advance. January contracts sold at 24.58 or about 33 points net higher, but trading became quiet and prices eased off under realizing. Midday prices were ruling around 24.48 for January, wit hthe active months about 19 to 23 points higher.

Reports that Europe was buying spots in the Eastern belt, and encouraging advices from the stock market, led to another spurt of demand in cotton which sent the early afternoon market up to 24.63c for January, or about 35 to 40 points net higher.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Cotton, spot steady, middling 24.50c.

HORSES AND MULES—The market averages about tsteady this week under moderate receipts and a fair demand. Horses on commission for the two days aggregated 100 head, while mules in first hands totaled 400. Mules showed more activity than horses, as a rule.

RADIO ISSUES FEATURE SESSION ON THE CURB

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The radio group was the chief feature of the curb market today and a number of stocks in that group moved up to new high records on unusually large trading. Radio of America was the leader of these issues, having a further advance of these issues, high record of 8⅛. Dubilier rose 2 points to 57½, a new high level, and Hazeltine reached a new top on an advance of 1½ points to 37⅛. Thermiodyne also was in steady demand, holding close to its previous high record price. Ware Radio and Freed Eisemann each advanced more than a point.

Baking stocks were comparatively neglected, there being little business in either United Bakeries or Ward Baking B. Continental Bakeries, when issued, was traded on a fairly large scale showing a fractional loss in the forenoon. In Columbia Gas and Electric preferred A there were large transactions. American Gas and Electric, after starting with an advance of 3¼ at 105, had a sharp drop to 102¼. There was initial trading in Brunswick-Balke-Collender, the stick ranging from 49⅝ to 50¼. American Power and Light was firm, making a fractional gain to 48½. Nickel Plate issues also were firm, the common stock moving up to 78¼.

Solar Refining responded to the declaration of the extra dividend with an advance of 203, but other Standard Oil stocks were heavy. DIAMOND ROBBERY CLEW BARES "FENCE"

Woman's Address Found on Prisoner Guides Kansas City Police to Joplin Holdup Loot.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 18.—Following a clew picked up in the investigation of the Gray diamond shop robbery here, Oct. 14, police have cleared up the holdup of Mr. and Mrs. James Roten, in Joplin, Mo., early in October, and have recovered from a pawnbroker in Wichita, Kan., $3000 in gems stolen from the Rotens, it was announced last night.

Sam Miller, the pawnbroker, was arrested at his shop in Wichita and, according to the police, confessed he purchased the Roten gems for $135. He also confessed he had been acting for several years as a "fence" for robbers in the Middle West, according to the police.

An envelope bearing the penciled address of Margaret Vaughn, Cadillac Hotel, Joplin, was the clew which led to the Joplin robbery. It was found in the motor car used by John Ray Smith when he was captured here following the Gray diamond shop robbery.

John E. Roberts, 23 years old, Joplin, is in jail here in connection with the Joplin holdup. He made a statement admitting that he shared in the proceeds of the robbery, but denying that he was an actual participant.

Roberts asserted that he and Harry Bartdorff entered the Palace Hotel, which is owned by the Rotens, and stole the gems.

He stated during the confession that he met Bartdorff in a restaurant. Roberts' story states that he drove to the pawnbroker's in Wichita after stealing the gems. Upon arriving in Joplin, the men went to the Cadillac Hotel, opposite the place where Smith met Margaret Vaughn. Mrs. Vaughn suggested robbing the Rotens, estimating that $35,000 in diamonds and $600 in currency could be obtained, Roberts said. Smith agreed to the plan and Mrs. Vaughn arranged a signal to be given should the police appear.

A DAILY DOUBLE GE FOR

by Edna Ferber

FORTY-FOUR

"NO. If Dirk were killed my life would stop. I'd go on living. I suppose, but my life would have stopped."

They all were doing some share in the work to be done.

Selina had thought about her own place in this war welter. She had wanted to do canteen work in France but had decided against this as being selfish. "The thing for me to do," she said, "is to go on raising vegetables and hogs as fast as I can." She supplied countless households with free food while their men were gone. She herself worked like a man, taking the place of the able-bodied helper who had been employed on her farm.

Paula was lovely in her Red Cross uniform. She persuaded Dirk to go into the Liberty Bond selling drive and he was unexpectedly effective in his quiet, serious way; most convincing and undeniably thrilling to look at in uniform. Paula's little air of possession had grown until now it enveloped him. She wasn't playing now; was deeply and terribly in love with him.

When, in 1918, Dirk took off his uniform he went into the bond department of the Great Lakes Trust Co. in which Theodore Storm had a large interest. He said that the war had disillusioned him. It was a word you often heard uttered as a reason or an excuse for abandoning the normal. "Disillusioned."

"What did you think the war was going to do?" said Selina. "Purify! It never has yet."

It was understood, by Selina at least, that Dirk's abandoning of his profession was a temporary thing. Quick as she usually was to arrive at conclusions, she did not realize until too late that this son of hers had definitely deserted building for bonds; that the only structures he would rear were her own castles in Spain. His first two months as a bond salesman netted him more than a year's salary at his old post at Hollis & Sprague's. When he told this to Selina, in triumph, she said, "Yes, but there isn't much fun in it, is there? This selling things on paper? Now architecture, that must be thrilling. Next to writing a play and seeing it acted by real people—seeing it actually come alive before your eyes—architecture must be the next most fun. Putting a building down on paper—little marks here, straight lines there, figures, calculations, blueprints, measurements—and then, suddenly one day, the actual building itself. Steel and stone and brick, with engines throbbing inside it like a heart, and people flowing in and out. Part of a city. A piece of actual beauty conceived by you! Oh, Dirk!" To see her face then must have given him a pang, it was so alive, so eager.

He found excuses for himself. "Selling bonds that make that building possible isn't so dull, either."

But she waved that aside almost contemptuously. "What nonsense Dirk. It's like selling seats at the box office of a theater for the play inside."

Dirk had made many new friends in the last year and a half. More than that, he had acquired a new manner; an air of quiet authority, of assurance. The profession of architecture was put definitely behind him. There had been no building in all the months of the war; probably would be none in years. Materials were prohibitive, labor exorbitant. He did not say to Selina that he had put the other work from him. But after six months in his new position he knew that he would never go back.

From the start he was a success. Within one year he was so successful that you could hardly distinguish him from a hundred other successful young Chicago business and professional men whose clothes were made at Peel's; who kept their collars miraculously clean in the soot-laden atmosphere of the Loop; whose shoes were bench made; who lunched at the Noon Club on the roof of the First National Bank where Chicago's millionaires ate corned-beef hash whenever that plebeian dish appeared on the bill of fare. He had had a little thrill out of his first meal at this club whose membership was made up of the "big men" of the city's financial circle. Now he could even feel a little flicker of contempt for them. He had known old Aug Hempel, of course, for years, as well as Michael Arnold, and, later, Phillip Emery, Theodore Storm, and others. But he had expected these men to be different.

Paula had said, "Theodore, why don't you take Dirk up to the Noon Club some day? There are a lot of big men he ought to meet."

Dirk went in some trepidation. The great grilled elevator, as large as a room, whisked them up to the roof of the fortress of gold. The club lounge furnished his first disappointment. It looked like a Pullman smoker. The chairs were upholstered in black leather or red plush. The woodwork was shiny red imitation mahogany. The carpet was green. There were bright shining brass cuspidors in the hall near the cigar counter. The food was well cooked. Man's food. Nine out of every ten of these men possessed millions. Whenever corned beef and cabbage appeared on the luncheon menu 9 out of 10 took it. These were not at all the American Big Business Man of the comic papers and of fiction—that yellow, nervous, dyspeptic creature who lunches off milk and pie. They were divided into two definite types. The older men of between 50 and 60 were great high-colored fellows of full habit. Many of them had had a physician's warning of high blood pressure, hardening arteries, overworked heart, rebellious kidneys. So now they waxed cautious, taking time over their substantial lunches, smoking and talking. Their faces were impassive, their eyes shrewd, hard. Their talk was colloquial and frequently illiterate. They often said "was" for "were." "Was you going to see Baldwin about that South American stuff or is he going to ship it through without?" Most of them had known little of play in their youth and now they played ponderously and a little sadly and yet eagerly as does one to whom the gift of leisure had come too late. On Saturday afternoon you saw them in imported heather green golf stockings and Scotch tweed suits making for the links or the lake. They ruined their palates and livers with strong cigars, thinking cigarette smoking undignified and pipes common. "Have a cigar!" was their greeting, their password, their open sesame. "Have a cigar." Only a few were so rich, so assured as to smoke cheap light panatellas. Old Aug Hempel was one of these. Dirk noticed that when he made one of his rare visits to the Noon Club his entrance was met with a little stir, a deference. He was nearing 75 now; was still straight, strong, zestful of life; a magnificent old buccaneer among the pettier crew. His had been the direct and brutal method—swish! swash! and his enemies walked the plank. The younger men eyed him with a certain amusement and respect.

These younger men whose ages ranged from 28 to 45 were disciples of the new system in business. They were graduates of universities. They had known luxury all their lives. They were the second or third generation. They used the word "psychology." They practiced restraint. They knew the power of suggestion. Where old Aug Hemple had flown the black flag they resorted to the periscope. Dirk learned that these men did not talk business during meal time except when they had met definitely for that purpose. They wasted a good deal of time, Dirk thought, and often, when they were supposed to be "in conference" or when their secretaries said primly that they were very busy and not to be disturbed until three, they were dozing off for a comfortable half hour in the private offices. They were the sons or grandsons of those bearded, rugged, and rather terrible old boys who, in 1835 or 1840, had come out of County Limerick or County Kilkenny or out of Scotland or the Rhineland to mold this new country in their strong hairy hands; those hands whose work had made possible the symphony orchestras, the yacht clubs, the golf clubs through which their descendants now found amusement and relaxation.

Dirk listened to the talk of the Noon Club.

"I made it in eighty-six. That isn't so bad for the Tippecanoe course."

". . . boxes are going pretty well but the Metropolitan grabs up all the big ones and the house wants names. Garden doesn't draw the way she used to, even in Chicago. It's the popular subscription that counts."

". . . grabbed the Century out of New York at 2:45 and got back here in time to try out my new horse in the park. She's a little nervous for city riding but we're opening the house at Lake Forest next week"——

". . . pretty good show but they don't send the original companies here, that's the trouble . . ."

". . . in London. It's a neat shade of green, isn't it? You can't get ties like this over here, I don't know why. Got a dozen last time I was over. Yeh, Plumbridge in Bond street."

Well, Dirk could talk like that easily enough. He listened quietly, nodded, smiled, agreed or disagreed. He looked about him carefully, appraisingly. Waist lines well kept in; carefully tailored clothes; shrewd wrinkles of experience radiating in fine sprays in the skin around the corners of their eyes. The president of an advertising firm lunching with a banker; a bond salesman talking to a rare book collector; a packer seated at a small table with Horatio Craft, the sculptor.

AN ADOPTED FAMILY

By Sophie Irene Loeb

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB

A SHORT time ago I visited a home—a beautiful one, not unlike an old English castle, with its lovely lawns, great trees and flower gardens—all that goes to make up charm—a home that it has taken a great deal of thought and love and joy to make, to say nothing of much money.

In that household there are three children—two boys and a little girl. And such lovely children! They just belong to the place. Somehow, the environment made them, and they made the environment, and they seemed a part of it all.

Yet these three children have been adopted by the good man and woman who have become their real father and mother—children who doubtless might have been reared in a far different and perhaps pathetic atmosphere.

But here they are—the most joyous group one could ever imagine. Their lives are full of love and beauty, and long, long ago these foster-parents forgot that they are not the real flesh-and-blood relations of the children.

They not only regard themselves as such, but the tiny arms have wound themselves into the hearts of these people so strongly that the pain of any possible parting would even be more poignant than if they were their own.

Without these little ones their lives would be more empty, less happy. It has made a different kind of living for them, and all of their friends know it, and are gladdened by it. But they are the right kind of people. They have hearts and souls, and they are not satisfied with merely doing things for themselves. They are forever wanting to play their part in a humanitarian way, giving all they can, all the time.

Many a one wants to be charitable and it eases consciences to give in money and in social ways. This, of course, is commendable and all very good; but how many people want to go to the actual burden of taking cares upon themselves—real cares—personal problems like these children must present.

Most people would rather let somebody else do that, than go to the trouble of rearing children.

And as I was entertained in this home, many thoughts came to me—of the hundreds of children—fatherless, motherless — children housed in large places—many of them the house of a thousand children, and yet not the home of one; children who have perhaps, enough food and clothes to keep them from want and cold, but who have never known the gladness of a good-night kiss—the voice that reassures—the sympathetic smile of a loved one.

And then, on the other hand, the thousands of childless couples who have never felt clinging arms about them, nor heard the patter of little feet, and the clasp of baby fingers in helplessness and dependency.

I wish I could take all of these childless couples into this home that I visited, and let them see where sunshine really dwells, and where, if anywhere, angels are forever present in blessing.

I am confident they will stretch out their empty arms, and repeat the words of the Nazarene, who said: "Suffer little children to come unto Me."

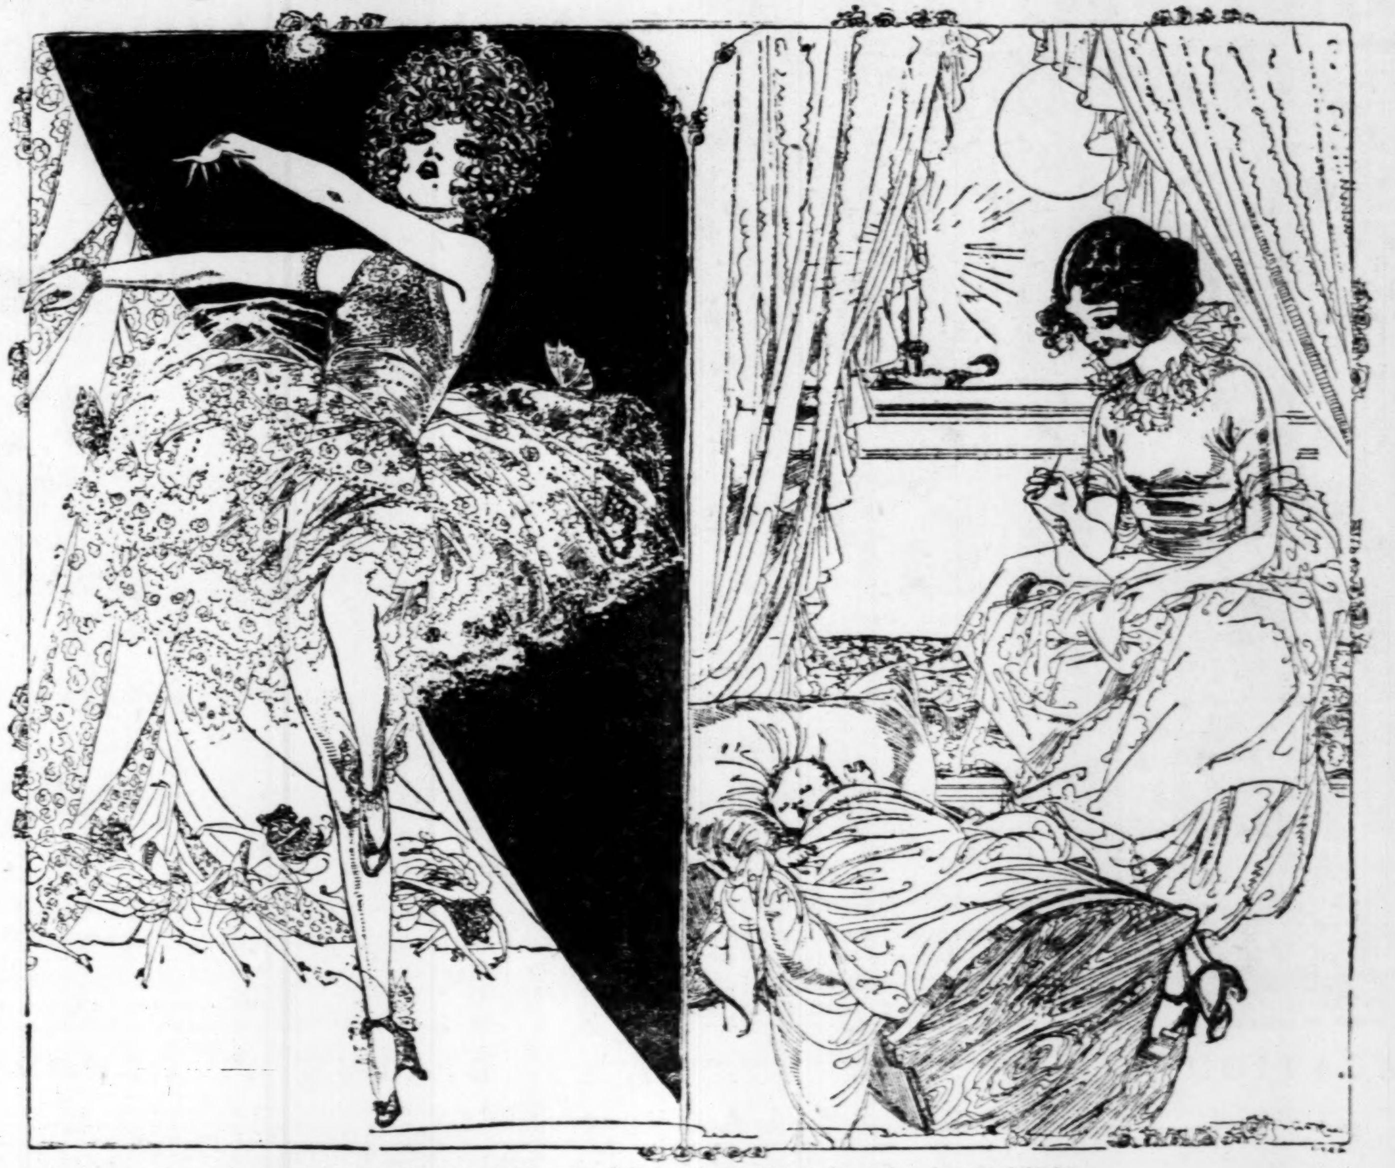
Shining Lights

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY



A SHINING light! A light flames on Broadway for your delight. And another burns in a window for your guidance. Both are of their own peculiar good in the world, though sometimes we have heard it whisper that the light on Broadway is a will-o'-the-wisp that leads into the deep water of nowhere, or the swamp-of-the-lost-man. We'll not go into the history of that one.

This one is a bit of fluff and joy, with years of hard work and self-denial behind the finished abandon of her flying feet, a bright flame that flickers for sheer beauty's sake. Even the Light That Shines in The Window for Someone, likes to go and see the other light dance, for a few hours' delight.

Shining down the home-path for someone, and shining down beauty's lane are not so widely different sometimes. One is for steadfastness and joy. The other is many times for joy and steadfastness. I know one little light on the great white way that is the whole illumination in a little house in the suburbs, a house with a crew of small brothers making it rattle with their high spirits. She shines in two places at once, this star.

Around the world, the candle in the window gleams, and around the world the torch of beauty flares.—NELL BRINKLEY.

What to Serve Tomorrow

SCALLOPED EGG PLANT.

Pare an egg plant and cut in two-thirds-inch cubes. Cook in a small quantity of boiling water until soft, then drain. Cook two tablespoonfuls of butter with one-half onion finely chopped, until yellow, add three-quarters tablespoonful finely chopped parsley and combine with egg plant. Turn into greased casserole dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until crumbs are brown.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Are You Planning to Refurnish the Nursery?

NURSERY furniture has become a staple in furniture circles and each season we find it more charming than ever before. Interior decorators prepare a room for the fittings in these days like an appropriate frame for a picture, taking into consideration the style and period of the house, its natural lighting, the situation of the room, and the future occupants, their ages, tastes and looks. This means the most perfect harmony and happiest surroundings.

There are three sizes in the nursery suites—that for wee run-arounds, then for the five to nine year youngsters, then the next size that is not outgrown until the fifteenth year. Strictly speaking, the first is the real nursery furniture, yet many refurnish as fast as the children outgrow the things and pass them on to young relatives and friends.

Needless to say the furniture chosen is of the painted variety, though it is also to be had in the straight woods. One white enamel set is decorated with bluebirds, the straight chair and rocker having cane seats and backs painted blue like the birds. In the room where the set was to be used the woodwork was white, the paper silver and white striped with a cut-out bluebird border, and the floor of polished oak had blue and white woven rugs scattered over it. The draperies of white fluted muslin had ties of blue ribbon the shade of the bird's wings. The play chest was covered with bluebird cretonne.

Nursery breakfast sets are rather new and consist of the small round or oblong tables with as many chairs to match as are needed. They seat four very comfortably. These sets are in white, gray or blue with colored decorations. Some have two-inch borders in floral design. Grecian key, or alternate colored blocks. Others have the alphabet in a medallion in the center or in a border running around the edge of the table. The small chairs in many sets are bent wood with cane seat.

The nursery screens have frames to match the furniture, but the panels are covered to match the draperies, or with one of the nursery cretonnes that tell a story. In one nursery the screen was covered with white muslin and the children were allowed to paste picture cut-outs on it as a special privilege and when they got tired of the pictures they were easily removed and fresh ones pasted in their place.

The wooden soldier set is always a favorite, especially with small boys, for soldiers form the legs of the chairs and tables, stand at either side of the looking glass on the dressing table, and appear again as bed posts. The military colors of the uniforms are quite gay looking on the white woodwork of the set.

The pleasant coloring used on some of the sets is very striking out the linens embroidered to match temper all into a harmonious whole. There are a number of chintz wall papers that go with this style of decoration, especially those having floral medallions on yellow or soft green backgrounds, which are most effective.

FOODS THAT GO TOGETHER

Panned chicken, cream gravy, rice croquets, peas, lettuce and tomato salad with French dressing, oranges and bananas with lemon juice and sugar.

Broiled veal cutlets, Spanish sauce; mashed potatoes, stewed salsify, shredded lettuce and pepper with Russian dressing and chocolate blancmange.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Cover the Broom.

If you have no wall brush, cover the broom with a piece of clean flannel and brush ceiling and walls with a downward stroke. As the covering becomes soiled, it must be replaced with a new one. You will find it as effective as a brush.

Home-Made Breadcrumbs.

Now that cooler weather is here, breadcrumbs can be made safely in quantity and kept in a glass jar for future use. Put your stale bread in the colander and dry it out in the oven. When crisp, put through the grinder. You will find them much more satisfactory and very much cheaper than the bought variety.

Worthwhile Tricks.

Floors should be waxed with the grain of the wood.

Silk stockings should be washed in tepid water.

Colored handkerchiefs should be soaked in cold water containing a little salt before they are washed, to prevent fading.

Always empty the teakettle in the morning and put in fresh water before putting it on to boil for tea. It is unhealthy to use that which has stood all night.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Wise Old Honker

Who does not wholly trust his eyes
Is seldom victim of surprise.
—Honker the Goose.

HONKER the Goose and his flock had remained many days. They spent their nights in the pond of Paddy the Beaver. Every morning they flew over to the Big River and feasted on delicious corn scattered for them at the mouth of the Laughing Brook where it enters the Big River. Honker was a wise old bird. Otherwise he wouldn't have been the leader of the flock. He was no longer suspicious of Farmer Brown's Boy. It was Farmer Brown's Boy who scattered that corn, and Honker knew that it was done out of friendship. He and his flock fed contentedly even with Farmer Brown's Boy standing in plain sight on the bank.

It hadn't taken Honker long to find out that no hunters with terrible guns were allowed on that land. It was a blessed feeling to know that they were safe there. But Honker was too wise a bird to allow this feeling of safety to make him any less watchful. Not only his own safety but the safety of the other members of the flock depended on him. So his keen eyes were always watching for possible danger.

So it was that one morning he discovered out in the Big River a pile of brown rushes drifting slowly toward him. It was quite a way up the Big River when Honker first saw it. He said nothing to the others, but he stopped looking for corn and kept his keen eyes on that pile of brown rushes. It looked harmless enough, but because it looked so harmless Honker was the more suspicious. What was a pile of brown rushes doing so far out in the Big River? Rushes had no business to be so far out from the shore.

What was a pile of brown rushes doing so far out in the Big River?

"It may be that those rushes have been cut and thrown into the river and are drifting down, but, just the same, I don't like the looks of them," thought Honker. "There may be no danger in those rushes, but the way to make sure is not to be here when those rushes get down here."

He spoke in a low voice to the other Geese. Instantly they stopped feeding and their long necks came up straight as they looked at Honker. He gave a low signal to swim out toward the middle of the Big River. Without question the others followed him, although they had not finished their breakfast. He was their leader and they had learned to trust his judgment.

When they were well out toward the middle of the Big River Honker took to his wings and the others followed. They flew down the Big River, all the time getting higher and higher in the air. Finally Honker turned and led them back, very high in the air. As they passed over that drifting pile of rushes Honker looked down. He looked down into a boat with those rushes fastened all around it. In that boat were two hunters with terrible guns. They hadn't dared to try to shoot these Geese from Farmer Brown's land, and so they had thought to drift down on the Big River near enough to shoot. But for wise old Honker they probably would have succeeded.

Once more Honker turned, and the others turned with him. Then he headed straight south. It was time for them to be on their way to their winter home. Peter Rabbit, who had seen it all from a hiding place in the bushes on the bank, heard them honking their farewell and understood. "Oh, I do hope nothing will happen to them and that they will come back again in the spring," said he.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Struggle.

STRUGGLE and toil, so the swift years go, battle of winds and the fields in snow, daytime or night, tempest and fight wait on the path that a man must go. Gladly he'd turn to the ways of ease, flower-strewn meadows, where bright views please, sunshiny days, rainbow-hued haze, life like a vision the dreamer sees. Something of this is his whole desire, this is the goal where his hopes aspire; joyous and free, thus man would be, free as the spirits of wind and of fire. Yet with the struggle the triumph goes, he who has planted may pluck the rose; ever for man this is the plan, striving and toiling without repose. His was the conquest of lands and seas, his was the founding of dynasties. Supine content is not his bent; stern are his weapons for tasks like these. Weapons of strength and a will like steel, driving him on till his senses reel; driving through strain, driving through pain, thus on man's spirit life sets its seal. Struggle and toil while the swift years glide, man like a ship on the ocean wide; plunged in the strife, fighting for life, breasting the winds and the turbulent tide. Yet, were man swathed in an endless peace, then would the worth of his being cease; burdens to bear, struggle and care, these are the price of a soul's release.

E FOUNDATION OF GOOD BAKING

Bubbling From the Fountain of Style
FROM Paris we take a striking thought. It is a message of importance to every woman, young or old, who fancies Fashion and the figure it demands.
There where Style first bubbles into being, those gloriously graceful mannequins who triumph over boulevard, race-course and cosmopolitan cafe, never could find a corset so adaptable as the P. N. Practical Front, reducing so pleasantly and capably where necessary.
This is due to its patented, exclusive Inner Elastic Vest that gives a fresh fitting daily.
Since these are the models upon whose beautiful figures are displayed the fashions in gown, in suit and coat that cross the waters to our shore, you can be sure that immediate selection of your Practical Front will begin your figure's betterment at once. In the favored models and materials.

There is a style of Mérode to suit every preference. Ask the nearest Mérode merchant to let you examine different fabrics and styles from which to make your selection.
A very popular Mérode style is U/D30—an elbow sleeve, ankle length Undersuit. Ask for it in fabric Mabel 686.
For girls, the same style, U/D30. In any one of the four popular fabrics, 2601, 2603, 2694 and 2598.
MANY women who have wearied of the extravagances and "colds" that so often follow the continuous wearing of perishable novelties, have turned to the most natural and health-insuring garment that there is—a latch-knitted fabric of cotton or worsted.
They examined Mérode and found that in manufacturing processes it had individuality. Particularly did they sense the meaning of the hand-tailoring, the dexterous finishing and final cleansing!
They decided that an undergarment so obviously made to fit, and not just made to sell, was the undersuit they most wanted, since they determined to keep well.
And Mérode will fit you like your very skin. The most important shops throughout the country carry it for you—and these same shops are displaying it widely during this season.
Are you reducing?
The body moisture that successful reducing methods stimulate is counteracted by Mérode hand-tailored knit underwear. Mérode fabrics absorb perspiration—and the snug fit protects against colds—and against binding. Wear Mérode—if reducing.
Mérode

THE BUG HAS 'EM.

THE bloomin' cross-word puzzle
craze
Is taking up our nights and days
In futile toil and midnight oil
And dictionary combing.
We fret and stew and think in vain
And overhaul our so-called brain,
To find a word that means a bird
That whistles "In the Gloaming."

Mah Jongg and bridge are on the bum
And still the worst is yet to come,
For puzzle ginks desert the links
And lay aside the putter,
The wily synonym to snare
And hunt the adverb in its lair
And ask to know if "olio"
Has aught to do with "butter."

And workmen in the building trade
And artisans of every grade,
Have joined the chase, to hunt and trace
The synonym so fickle.
They're making lots of overtime
By looking for a word to chime
With something that may mean a "hat,"
An "onion" or a "pickle."

TODAY'S HORRORSCOPE.

A child born in the United States on this day will be eligible to run for President in 35 years.

So ambitious parents should not be downhearted because it happens to be a girl.

New York and Ohio seem to like a division of power: A Democratic Governor and a Republican President. Not a bad idea.

THE NEXT CABINET MEETING.

The President: "Now, gentlemen, before taking up the relation of the League of Nations to baseball in general and the Senators in particular, we'll first dispose of the unfinished business. Now, who can give me a synonym for a hyphenated word of nine letters beginning with s and ending in t, meaning a receptacle used for catching the drippings from a sugar-maple tree?"

"Master Forger Wanted."

FAVORITE STORIES

By Irvin S. Cobb

SIGHT UNSEEN.

PROBABLY this story has been told at the expense of every great American lawyer. In the version I heard, the central figure was the late Joseph Choate, who afterwards, as will be recalled, became one of America's most distinguished barristers and served his country as Ambassador at the Court of St. James.

The story dates back to the time when he was a very young man, newly admitted to the bar and very much in need of what all lawyers need—and that is clients.

On an indictment for a serious felony a shabby-looking person was arraigned for trial in one of the high courts of the State.

"Who represents you?" asked the Judge.

"Nobody, your honor."

"Can you afford to hire a lawyer to defend you?"

"No, your honor."

"Well then in that case," stated the justice, "it devolves upon me to assign you counsel in order that all your rights may be protected. I shall name some younger practitioner as your attorney."

He pointed to three callow-looking youths sitting in an expectant group within the bar.

"Yonder," he said, "are Mr. Jones, Mr. Robertson and Mr. Brown. And," he added, "Mr. Choate is just outside in the corridor, I believe. Which one will you choose?"

The defendant eyed the three present critically.

"I'll take the one that's outside," he said.

LITTLE TALES OF WAYSIDE TEES.

GOLFERS have laughed over the story of the methodical but absentminded professional who, having just made a satisfactory drive, was preparing to move along the fairway when, from behind the wall of a sand-pit abutting on the adjacent green, there burst a wild-eyed, white-faced amateur.

"Great Heavens!" exclaimed the newcomer. "Come quick! I've just killed my wife."

"Where?" inquired the professional, intent, as any really seasoned golfer's mind should be, upon the game.

"How?"

"I swung with my niblick and——"

"Is that so?" said the professional, preparing to move on. "Well, a niblick is certainly the proper club for a bunker."
